General Resigns, Goes To Syria To Cause Arab Crisis

AMMAN, Jordan, April 20 (UP)—King Hussein's hand-picked army chief of staff abruptly went to Syria today and resigned his post by telephone.

The surprise resignation was handed in during an investigation of anti-Western elements in the Jordanian army.

(Sources in Damascus said Maj. Gen. Ali El Hayyari, appointed only two days ago to replace Maj. Gen. Ali Abu Nuwar as military chief, was seeking asylum in the Syrian capital.

The 22-year-old king met with Premier Hussein Khalidi and other government leaders supporting him in his efforts to oust pro-Communist elements from the military and civil leadership.

"On Official Duty"

The Jordan Jerusalem radio, in a broadcast heard in Beirut, quoted Khalidi as saying Hayyari quit after being ordered to conduct an investigation into the attempted military coup against Hussein last weekend. The king smashed the plot and ousted Gen. Nuwar, replacing him with the mustachioed Hayyari, known as a field soldier with no interest in politics.

Hayyari, who twice had tried to beg off taking over as army chief, went to Damascus "on official duty" and from there telephoned Amman to say he had resigned, the radio said.

Some 3,000 Syrian students demonstrated in the streets of Damascus in favor of ousted Nuwar and the leftist government of former Jordanian Premier Suleiman Nabulsi.

Still Likes Russia

Nabulsi, himself now foreign minister in the moderate Khalidi regime, told the Soviet party newspaper "Pravda" in an interview broadcast by Radio Moscow that Jordan still likes Russia.

"We are confronted by aggression on the part of Israel and the imperialists," he said.

Nabulsi was ousted by the king April 10 to climax a quarrel over Nabulsi's efforts to establish formal diplomatic relations with Russia. He and his followers are pro-Soviet and favor the Syrian-Egyptian netural Arab alliance.

RAINFALL HEAVY

Many Tornadoes Sighted In Texas

By UNITED PRESS

Tornadoes and hailstorms buffeted the Upper South Plains of Texas Saturday night, while record rainfall caused flooding along the Brazos River and in the Tyler and Corsicana areas.

A tornado — the 13th to be reported in the state in 24 hours — hit a farm 12 miles southwest of Paducah Saturday afternoon and destroyed a residence and outbuildings, the U.S. weather bureau reported. There were no injuries.

The rash of new violent weather came as Waco started cleanup operations from the worst floods in memory. A deluge of 9.8 inches fell at Moody, near Waco in southern McLennan county Friday night and Saturday.

Tornado Reports

Tornadoes also were reported at Brownfield, near the New Mexico border, at Spur, 75 miles to the northeast, 10 miles south of Odessa in the Permian Basin, and in Parmer county between Friona and Dimmit.

The other twisters apparently did little or no damage as they flitted up and down.

Brazos Flood Poses Threat Below Waco

WACO, Tex., April 20 (UP)—The runoff from a drought-breaking Central Texas deluge roared down the Brazos river toward the Gulf of Mexico tonight, setting off a flood warning for 89 miles south of Waco.

Rains totaling up to 9.61 inches at some points hit Central Texas Friday night and early today. At least nine tornadoes were sighted in the past 24 hours, but nobody was reported hurt and damage was light

But the rains were the biggest in memory. At least 100 families were flooded out of their homes in Waco. They were able to return today after the Brazos River subsided.

Coffins Washed Out

At McGregor, 18 miles south of Waco, flooding Harris creek washed 22 coffins and bodies up in the town cemetery.

Police Chief Joe Burks reported 11 coffins found—the bodies were still inside—had 12 to 15 men out hunting for the others. One coffin had floated half a mile from the cemetery.

Burks said the exhumed corpses had been buried four or five years. He said that he expected a few, buried longer, were so badly deteriorated that they will never be found.

Swept From Bridge

Cars were swept from bridges as the flood burst down creeks. Mrs. Wilson Crawford, her son Raymond, and her daughter Joyce, of Lovelady, Tex., and Rena Tolbert of Sun Valley, Calif. were all swept into Harris Creek in an automobile last night.

Miss Tolbert swam to shore and got help for the Crawfords, who

U. S. Resuming Economic, Other Aid To Israeli

WASHINGTON, April 20 (UP) — The United States is resuming economic and technical aid to Israel.

The aid is a continuation of the assistance program which the United States off last Oct. 29 when Israeli forces attacked Egypt.

The State Department announced on March 14 that talks on resuming aid would begin soon. Today, a spokesman for the department said the talks are now under way both here and in Tel Aviv and that "the American aid program to Israel is being resumed after a stoppage of more than five months."

A spokesman for the international cooperation administration, which handles American aid programs, said U. S. personnel who were withdrawn from Israel last fall "have been authorized to return."

About 50 Americans assigned to aid projects were pulled out of Israel when the attack on Egypt began. Only six remained behind in a caretaker status.

But now more than a half-dozen of the group are back at their jobs on agriculture, health, sanitation, education, communications and other projects.

U. S. aid to Jordan and Lebanon also was cut off at the same time aid to Israel was halted. But officials would give no indication as to when aid to those countries will be resumed.

Officials said the amount of aid Israel will receive under the revived program has not been finally decided.

Ferry Riders Join In Cruise

BATON ROUGE, April 20 (AP)—Passengers on the Port Allen-Baton Rouge ferry today got more than they paid for—a 40-minute cruise on the Mississippi River.

A drifting log jammed the paddle wheel on the City of Baton Rouge, shutting off the power, and the ferry drifted almost a mile downstream before two tugs shoved it over to the Baton Rouge landing.

The other boat on the run, the Louisiana, chugged along beside the drifting ferry as a safety measure.

About a dozen autos and two dozen passengers were on board for the unscheduled river cruise.

Repairman Admits 2 Brutal Murders

NEW YORK, April 20 (UP)—A young oil burner repairman today confessed the hammer slaying of 19-year-old Patricia Ruland three days ago and admitted slaying another woman in the same area last January.

Police said Joseph Higgins, 22, admitted the "pink glove" murder of Miss Ruland, sister of a police officer, after 30 minutes of questioning.

Miss Ruland was found dying in the gutter of a street in the fashionable Bay Ridge section of Brooklyn Wednesday night. Her skull fractured in 17 places, the girl died in a hospital without regaining consciousness.

After Necking Session

"I struck her on the head with a hammer," police said Higgins told them. "Just how many times I don't recall. It happened after a necking session."

Police said Higgins also admitted the murder of Mrs. Dorothy Campbell, 52. Mrs. Campbell was beaten fatally in her car last January less than a mile from where Miss Ruland was found.

Miss Ruland, beaten viciously while apparently fighting off a rape attempt, was thrown moaning and screaming from a car into the rain-soaked street. One of her pink gloves and her shoes were missing. Otherwise, she was fully clad.

Fitted Description

Miss Helen Esposito, who discovered her in the street, told police that she saw a green car leaving the scene. Police said Higgins owned a car fitting the description.

Higgins, police said, wore blood-stained dungarees when arrested.

Higgins, who also admitted several other assaults in the Bay Ride section, told police that the day after the murder he bought new seat covers for his car because the old ones were covered with blood.

Police said Higgins appeared calm after confessing the slaying of Miss Ruland.

"Now I will tell you of another one," he said, referring to the murder of Mrs. Campbell.

He said he picked up Mrs. Campbell in a bar and took her on a tour of bars before beating her to death.

WASHINGTON, April 20 (AP) — The Teamsters Union is reported to have asked that no record be kept of its AFL-CIO trial on corruption charges.

Resurrection Symbolized By Easter Rites

JERUSALEM, Sunday, April 21 (AP) — Easter pilgrims packed the Church of the Holy Sepulchre today to witness the ancient ritual of the Holy Fire, the symbol of Christ's resurrection.

As flames burst from a hole in the side of the Savior's Tomb, brightening the church interior, the throng shouted: "He is risen!"

Hundreds pressed near the lighted candles. In a matter of seconds tiny flames leaped from candle to candle, lamp to lamp across the heads of the pilgrims to those high in the balconies and through the doorways to Christians waiting in the courtyard.

Roman Catholics did not participate in this part of the ritual. They are forbidden because of the physical danger from fire. The Latin patriarch presided later over a simpler service, blessing the Holy Fire for Roman Catholics.

Most of the pilgrims were members of Eastern Rite churches. Thousands jammed the church, from its cold stone floor to the arched windows high up near the dome.

In mid-morning the Holy Sepulchre opened and Orthodox and Armenian clergymen entered. Outside, just before their arrival, boys brandishing whips, sticks and revolvers were carried on the shoulders of pilgrims. All shouted religious slogans on Greek, Arabic and Armenian as the crowd surged back and forth in a primitive sword dance. Quiet fell after the clerics entered.

After the flames appeared runners who lighted tapers and dashed from the church, racing across the old Jordan-held sector of Jerusalem to churches on the Israeli side.

Easter Bunny May Get Wet

Scattered thundershowers may place a damper on some of the outdoor services and Easter egg hunts planned in the Twin Cities today, according to the federal weatherman. Mild temperatures are expected to prevail, however.

The high recorded at the CAA's Selman Field station here yesterday was 86 degrees. The low was 65. Rain which fell in the area last night was accompanied by brisk winds in some spots. Trees were blown down in some sections of the district.

Mayflower II Sets Sail

PLYMOUTH, England, April 20 (AP) — Mayflower II set sail for America from this English port today with 32 modern Pilgrims aboard—and one stowaway.

Bob Lewis, 27, a baker's salesman with a wife and two children in his hometown near London, was discovered hiding between decks as the wooden sailing ship passed Eddystone Lighthouse, 14 miles south of Plymouth.

It was the first sensation of the new Mayflower's trip duplicating the voyage of the Pilgrim Fathers from England to Plymouth Rock in 1620. The new ship has one big advantage: two-way radio communication with ports and other ships.

Lewis was manhandled across the deck of Mayflower II and dropped into a photographers' launch riding alongside. A member of the crew later threw down Lewis' overcoat and jacket.

The bedraggled stowaway was brought back to Plymouth by the photographers. He told newsmen he arrived here only this morning and looked over the Mayflower II from a small pleasure boat in the harbor.

Lewis said he telephoned his wife and told her his plans before returning to the Mayflower.

"It was the easiest thing in the world to stow away on that ship," he said. "Anybody could have done it."

Mayflower II meanwhile headed out into the English Channel, without escort but weighted with good wishes and followed by prayer.

The Mayflower was engaged tonight in a slow and unexciting struggle against both tide and wind. There was almost no wind but what little there was, being from the southwest, was against the ship.

The vessel made no progress westward and the incoming tide, due to reach its height about midnight at Plymouth, was trying to sweep the ship back to shore.

In six weeks, if providence is kind, the 180-ton square-rigger will reach Plymouth, Mass. There, after an exhibition visit to New York, she will remain, a gift of Britain to the people of the United States.

Solon Urges Teacher Pay Scale Repeal

Lancaster Says Louisiana Should 'Admit Mistake'

BATON ROUGE, April 20 (AP)—Rep. Edgar H. Lancaster, Jr., said today the Legislature should admit its 1956 teacher pay scale was a mistake and rewrite it to fit the money available.

The "practical solution," he said, is for the Legislature first to determine how much money can be spent for raising teacher pay, then provide a salary schedule.

'ADMIT MISTAKE'

"We should admit we made a mistake" in adopting the 1956 teacher salary schedule, the Madison Parish legislator said in an interview.

"What's causing all the trouble is that the teachers feel we are obligated to provide money for the minimum salary level established in that schedule," he said. "They have the idea that the new salary schedule is the full amount the Legislature says they should get."

Lancaster said he recalled that teacher leaders in the 1956 session hoped to get the new pay schedule on the books and then to work toward the pay ceiling over a period of years.

'Never Expected It'

"They never expected to get the full amount then," he said.

The new schedule was adopted in the 1956 Legislature almost unanimously. But the House rejected a 2½ cent raise in the gas gathering tax to finance the estimated 32 million dollar expense.

Gov. Earl Long early this year dug up 16 million dollars in surplus funds to provide half the pay scale, and commented later teachers would be "lucky" to get the same amount again in the new fiscal year beginning July 1.

Educators, under the leadership of State Supt. Shelby Jackson and Marvin Bass, president of the Louisiana School Boards Assn., for several weeks have been promoting public interest in the record 181 million public school budget Jackson proposes.

$51 Million

It includes about 51 million dollars to carry out the 1956 salary schedule, making allowances for school employes such as bus drivers, new teachers required because of expanding enrollments and retirement benefits.

Revenue Collector James Reily said 28½ million dollars in surplus funds will be available to the May Legislature. He stressed if the Legislature merely carries over the 16 million pay raise next year, nearly all the 28½ million would be required for that purpose alone.

Follows Law

Jackson told public audiences his budget for teachers pay raises merely carries out the 1956 salary schedule.

Educators this time aren't suggesting tax raises, after teachers were criticized in 1956 for backing the gas gathering tax boost.

Lancaster, one of the "34 club" of the tax foes in 1956, voted for the salary schedule. While it contains a clause saying the pay minimums shall be reduced accordingly to the funds made available, Lancaster says that's "putting the cart before the horse.

"I hope we can continue the present raise," he said. "But if we have to cut the full pay raise schedule in half to fit the money available, then that's what we should do.

Not Excessive

"The salaries teachers seek are not excessive, but we just don't have that kind of money this time. I believe the eventual solution will have to be some kind of merit system for teacher pay raises.

"I just don't see how the state can afford to keep giving across-the-board pay raises, considering the high cost of government today."

In six weeks, if providence is kind, the 180-ton square-rigger will reach Plymouth, Mass. There, after an exhibition visit to New York, she will remain, a gift of Britain to the people of the United States.

Solon Urges Teacher Pay Scale Repeal

Lancaster Says Louisiana Should 'Admit Mistake'

BATON ROUGE, April 20 (AP)—Rep. Edgar H. Lancaster, Jr., said today the Legislature should admit its 1956 teacher pay scale was a mistake and rewrite it to fit the money available.

The "practical solution," he said, is for the Legislature first to determine how much money can be spent for raising teacher pay, then provide a salary schedule.

'ADMIT MISTAKE'

"We should admit we made a mistake" in adopting the 1956 teacher salary schedule, the Madison Parish legislator said in an interview.

"What's causing all the trouble is that the teachers feel we are obligated to provide money for the minimum salary level established in that schedule," he said. "They have the idea that the new salary schedule is the full amount the Legislature says they should get."

Lancaster said he recalled that teacher leaders in the 1956 session hoped to get the new pay schedule on the books and then to work toward the pay ceiling over a period of years.

'Never Expected It'

"They never expected to get the full amount then," he said.

The new schedule was adopted in the 1956 Legislature almost unanimously. But the House rejected a 2½ cent raise in the gas gathering tax to finance the estimated 32 million dollar expense.

Gov. Earl Long early this year dug up 16 million dollars in surplus funds to provide half the pay scale, and commented later teachers would be "lucky" to get the same amount again in the new fiscal year beginning July 1.

Educators, under the leadership of State Supt. Shelby Jackson and Marvin Bass, president of the Louisiana School Boards Assn., for several weeks have been promoting public interest in the record 181 million public school budget Jackson proposes.

$51 Million

It includes about 51 million dollars to carry out the 1956 salary schedule, making allowances for school employes such as bus drivers, new teachers required because of expanding enrollments and retirement benefits.

Revenue Collector James Reily said 28½ million dollars in surplus funds will be available to the May Legislature. He stressed if the Legislature merely carries over the 16 million pay raise next year, nearly all the 28½ million would be required for that purpose alone.

Follows Law

Jackson told public audiences his budget for teachers pay raises merely carries out the 1956 salary schedule.

Educators this time aren't suggesting tax raises, after teachers were criticized in 1956 for backing the gas gathering tax boost.

Lancaster, one of the "34 club" of the tax foes in 1956, voted for the salary schedule. While it contains a clause saying the pay minimums shall be reduced accordingly to the funds made available, Lancaster says that's "putting the cart before the horse.

"I hope we can continue the present raise," he said. "But if we have to cut the full pay raise schedule in half to fit the money available, then that's what we should do.

Not Excessive

"The salaries teachers seek are not excessive, but we just don't have that kind of money this time. I believe the eventual solution will have to be some kind of merit system for teacher pay raises.

"I just don't see how the state can afford to keep giving across-the-board pay raises, considering the high cost of government today."

Home FirefightingCourse Announced

Skills in emergency firefighting in the home were requested by residents of the Monroe area who attended the civil defense course on "Home Preparedness' held recently at Lakeshore Elementary school.

Chief H. D. Massingill, instructor for the Monroe Fire Department, will present this course for civil defense Monday night at 7 o'clock at the Central fire station on St. John Street.

Massingill announced that this two-hour course will cover certain safety measures to take when fire is first discovered, methods of controlling fire to small areas. Demonstrations of certain home fire extinguishers or emergency methods to combat electrical and grease fires.

He commented that during certain disasters or emergencies the fire department would be combatting large fires to reserve mass survival and that home fires may of necessity be an individual resonsibility.

Those interested in taking the emergency fire fighting course should call civil defense headquarters Monday to be enrolled for the course that night.

OAK RIDGE, April 20 (Special) Dr. William M. Alexander, of the University of Miami, was main speaker at Professional Growth Day for junior and high teachers held in the Bastrop High School Thursday.

Dr. Alexander led a discussion on questions and reactions to reports on an experiment "Can a Teacher Improve in his teaching by reading a good professional book and conscientiously testing out the ideas contained in the book."

Teachers reporting on experiments were Frank A. Bishop, J. G. Mulholland and Joe Mott, Jr., Bastrop High School teachers; Oralee Wixcoxon, of Central Junior High of Bastrop; L. J. Fontenot, Jr., Mer Rouge School; and Joyce Givens and William Bost of the Bonita High School.

Teachers from Oak Ridge attending were W. P. Smith, Mrs. Hazle Mott, Mrs. Zelma Pipes, Mrs. Eugenia Mott, and Mr. Deal.

Area Family Is Homeless After Blaze

New Easter clothes, just bought Thursday ... furniture ... appliances .. home ... everything —destroyed by fire. That's what happened to the J. W. Cootes family shortly after 1 o'clock Friday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Cootes, and their two children, had left their house 1602 Evergreen street in Bawcomville about 6:40, to drive out to visit Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Foster on the Red Cut Road, West Monroe. After they arrived, they received an emergency phone call from Mrs. H. B. Foster, a relative of the T. D. Fosters, who lives at 1608 Evergreen street, just a few houses away from the Cootes. Mrs. Foster said that the Cootes' house was on fire.

Other neighbors on the block had noticed the flames, and called the fire station at 7:10 p.m. Engine Company 107 arrived at the house within ten minutes, to find the flames broken through all the windows and the roof.

The house was too far gone to save, but the firemen directed streams of water on both the house and a nearby frame building, to prevent the spread of the flames.

Meanwhile, the T. D. Fosters drove the Cootes back to the scene where they found that all that was saved was one scorched mattress, pulled out by the family who lived on the next street in back of the Cootes.

Firemen said that the cause of the conflagration was unknown. The house belonged to Mr. A. J. Lester, and was insured, but the Cootes had no insurance whatsoever on their furniture.

Mrs. Cootes, who has been under doctors' care recently, almost collapsed when she saw her home as nothing but a pile of rubble and glowing embers. "She had just waxed the floors during the afternoon" Mr. Cootes mentioned. The entire family was shocked and "broken-up" by the loss of all their possessions but the clothes they were wearing and their 1950 Chevrolet.

They had just returned from Shreveport in November, where they had lived for a year. Previously Twin Cities' residents, they rented a four-room frame house, and Mr. Cootes started work for the Trenton Appliance Co. in West Monroe.

Mrs. Foster revealed that the Cootes have put all their extra funds into medical bills, and have no savings. "Both Mrs. Cootes and the two girls, Catherine Ann, aged nine, and Shirley Jean, seven, had gotten new dresses and shoes for Easter, as a special occasion, and of course they were all destroyed by the fire," Mrs. Foster added.

The Cootes had no where to turn and the Foster family took them for the night. However, the situation there is cramped, since there are five in the Foster family, plus four "refugees," and only three bedrooms.

CHARLES E. TOOKE

Women Voters Scheduled To Hear Tooke

Charles E. Tooke, Jr., former state senator from Shreveport will address the Louisiana League of Women Voters Convention meeting in Monroe, April 24-26, announced Mrs. Joseph Daum, president of the League.

Mrs. Emilio Levy, member of the Board of Directors of the League will also be a featured speaker at the luncheon hour Thursday on the Hotel Frances Roof.

Senator Rooke's subject will be "The Property Tax in Louisiana." This is one of the two proposed items for the state current agenda for the years 1947-59, and includes assessments, homestead exemptions, property tax relief fund and their effects on the individual taxpayer, the La. Tax Commission and its relationship to local tax governing bodies.

Mrs. Levy will discuss "Conservation of Water Resources," the other item on the current agenda. She has done much research and study on the subject. "The League of Women Voters was in the vanguard of those who recognized the vital importance of water conservation," said Mrs. Levy.

Proposed Youth Center's Work To Date Outlined

CROSSETT, Ark., April 20 (Special) — Crossett's long hoped for Youth Center is rapidly moving out of the dream stages and may soon become a reality, according to R. P. Meredith.

As president of the new Youth Center Corporation, Meredith has outlined the center's plan.

At the present time the Youth Center has $1017.88, he said, which was raised by a gift from the Crossett Company and from proceeds from a youth dance. He asked the Council at its recent meeting, to transfer an additional $7,200, which was left over from the Recreation Survey Fund, which was also donated by the Crossett Company.

The Council agreed to do this, so the Youth Center building fund now stands at $17,567.88 after $250 raised by the Kiwanis Club was also donated.

With this amount in hand, Meredith said he feels work on the Center can move forward. He said a proposed budget had been drawn up for the center which calls for an annual expenditure of $5,500. He said that although plans for the building had not been completed, it is hoped the building can have from 3,500 to 4,000 square feet, including a 2,000 square foot dance floor, rooms for TV and reading, ping - pong and table games, a snack bar, rest rooms and cloak rooms.

Estimated cost of the structure is about $35,000 Meredith said, with $20,000 of that amount going for materials, and the balance of $15,000 coming in the form of donated labor.

South Mountain Park near Phoenix, Arizona is the world's largest municipally owned park. It has 15,000 acres.

CHARLES E. TOOKE

Women Voters Scheduled To Hear Tooke

Charles E. Tooke, Jr., former state senator from Shreveport will address the Louisiana League of Women Voters Convention meeting in Monroe, April 24-26, announced Mrs. Joseph Daum, president of the League.

Mrs. Emilio Levy, member of the Board of Directors of the League will also be a featured speaker at the luncheon hour Thursday on the Hotel Frances Roof.

Senator Rooke's subject will be "The Property Tax in Louisiana." This is one of the two proposed items for the state current agenda for the years 1947-59, and includes assessments, homestead exemptions, property tax relief fund and their effects on the individual taxpayer, the La. Tax Commission and its relationship to local tax governing bodies.

Mrs. Levy will discuss "Conservation of Water Resources," the other item on the current agenda. She has done much research and study on the subject. "The League of Women Voters was in the vanguard of those who recognized the vital importance of water conservation," said Mrs. Levy.

Proposed Youth Center's Work To Date Outlined

CROSSETT, Ark., April 20 (Special) — Crossett's long hoped for Youth Center is rapidly moving out of the dream stages and may soon become a reality, according to R. P. Meredith.

As president of the new Youth Center Corporation, Meredith has outlined the center's plan.

At the present time the Youth Center has $1017.88, he said, which was raised by a gift from the Crossett Company and from proceeds from a youth dance. He asked the Council at its recent meeting, to transfer an additional $7,200, which was left over from the Recreation Survey Fund, which was also donated by the Crossett Company.

The Council agreed to do this, so the Youth Center building fund now stands at $17,567.88 after $250 raised by the Kiwanis Club was also donated.

With this amount in hand, Meredith said he feels work on the Center can move forward. He said a proposed budget had been drawn up for the center which calls for an annual expenditure of $5,500. He said that although plans for the building had not been completed, it is hoped the building can have from 3,500 to 4,000 square feet, including a 2,000 square foot dance floor, rooms for TV and reading, ping - pong and table games, a snack bar, rest rooms and cloak rooms.

Estimated cost of the structure is about $35,000 Meredith said, with $20,000 of that amount going for materials, and the balance of $15,000 coming in the form of donated labor.

World Is Beautified By Bothersome Dust

Without dust little rain or snow would fall, and much of the world's color would disappear, says the National Geographic Society. Sky and lake would lose a great deal of their blue; fiery sunsets would not be possible. And rainbows would vanish with the rain.

Although smokestacks, incinerators, automobiles, locomotives, and atomic tests throw vast quantities of soot and other products into the air, the presence of dust does not require man's inventions. Eve found it waiting in the Garden of Eden.

Dust is everywhere in the air. Particles of soil and rock, worn off by the wind, join plant pollen and spores, dried sea spray, and bits of organic material in the sky. Much of this material is invisible, even under a high-powered microscope. Motes in a sunbeam falling into a darkened room are giants of their race.

Water has an affinity for tiny bits of salt, sulphur compounds, and other materials in the atmosphere. When there is sufficient moisture in the air, it gathers into droplets around the particles, producing fog, clouds, and, eventually, rain or snow.

For years, scientists believed dust particles essential to rain production. It has been proved recently, however, that drops can form without dust nuclei under certain unusual conditions.

The blue sky owes its color to dust and vapor molecules, which scatter the sunlight. The blue end of the spectrum is spread across the heavens, where it is reflected in the water below.

The glories of sunset and sunrise are dust-born. When the sun is low on the horizon, its light ..ts through a greater portion of ..t-laden air than when it is overhead. Air-borne particles break up the light rays, scattering the blue and green. Red-orange rays pass through to touch clouds and buildings with glowing rose and scarlet.

Great volcanic eruptions may change sunsets everywhere. The explosion of Krakatau in 1883 threw so much fine dust into the atmosphere that two years of spectacular sunsets followed.

Eruptions can even change the weather. Dust from the Tamboro volcano on Sumbawa Island east of Java is believed to have reflected and absorbed so much of the sun's heat that it made 1816 a cold year around the globe. It was known as "the year without a summer" and "eighteen-hundred-froze-to-death."

Monroe Residents Will Vote On Tax

The four-mill operation and maintenance tax voted by the property owners of Monroe in May, 1947, for support of the city schools will expire next month.

To continue operation of the city schools, it will be necessary for the people to re-vote the school tax for another 10-year period. An election will be held Tuesday, April 23, for this purpose.

Because of the tremendous increase in operational costs, city and school officials have figured that it will be absolutely necessary to increase the tax from four to seven mills and it will be on this amount of tax that the property owners will vote Tuesday.

There are many reasons why school costs have increased since 1947, the chief reason being a rapid increase in the number of children in school. For example, in 1947 there was an enrollment of 3228. Today there is an enrollment of 7426. This represents an increase for 10 years of 4199, or a percentage increase of 130. Today there are 265 teachers, compared to 113 in 1947, a percentage increase of 135. Now there are 292 classrooms against 104 in 1947, an increase of 181 per cent.

With the opening of two junior high schools in the fall of 1957, the number of school buildings will have doubled since 1947.

In 1948 the Monroe city schools inaugurated school bus transportation. There are now 18 buses in operation and the number will need to be increased with the beginning of the fall term, to take care of the new junior high schools.

Although the Monroe property tax assessment has increased 65 per cent since 1947, the student enrollment for the same period has increased 130 per cent, or exactly twice as much as the assessment.

All property owners can vote the full assessed value of their property, even though the $2,000 exemption for home owners or the $5,000 exemption for veteran-home owners would apply.

These facts have been prepared by city school officials. They regard passage of the tax as an absolute necessity if operation of the city schools is to continue. In this, we believe the officials are right, since no other method of supplying this needed money for the school exists.

Speidel's Job Shows European Integration

When a German general was installed as commander of all land forces in Europe of the North Atlantic Treaty (NATO) powers, the tremendous changes that have occurred since World War II were marked in bold lines.

Observers expected serious demonstrations by the French against giving a top post to a German. It was felt that the centuries-old distrust of anything German and anybody German would cause serious repercussions.

There were some demonstrations, in the French Assembly and elsewhere, but only by the communists. And they demonstrate so often and have shown themselves so anti-French that these had little effect.

Too much importance should not be attached to the French general's refusal to have his picture taken shaking hands with German Gen. Hans Speidel. This indicates a latent distrust still exists, that Gen. Jean Etienne Valluy was making sure no one would ever be able to wave the picture in front of him and accuse him of being a traitor.

This distrust cannot be wiped out in a few years, but the very fact that the ceremony took place at all should give hope that it can be overcome eventually.

The importance of Speidel's taking command is not really in the fact that he is a German. The importance is in the welding of Europe into a joint defense organization, which took place with creation of NATO and admission of West Germany.

Speidel is merely a symbol that integration of European nations continues on the military plane as well as on the economic.

Opposition To Huge Foreign Aid May Force Change In Eisenhower Policy

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The accumulating opposition to future large scale foreign aid may force a change in the Eisenhower foreign policy for the remainder of its term, when the U.S. Senate, probably sometime late in May, turns to debate on the mutual security section of the budget with its 4.4 billion dollars for further military and economic assistance to free and neutral nations.

Never in the peace time history of the U.S. have the American people had less detailed and specific information about any major expenditure program than about foreign aid, which began with the inauguration of the Marshall plan, with its initial 17 billion dollars in 1949. By June of this year the total outlay under continued extension of the program will approach 60 billions and the taxpayers still have been given only overall information as to how their money is being spent.

The next criticism of the continuing foreign aid program is that it was established for one main purpose—to check Communist encroachment in countries which had been bled white by World War II. Since it began, however, its proponents have found so many outlets for foreign aid funds that nations deemed to be underdeveloped by American standards, but which are under little threat of Communist infiltration, have been receiving American millions for all sorts of projects, some of which are now said to have been almost forced on them.

This has led to a designation of the foreign aid program as "the Great Giveaway" which is the title of a book by Eugene W. Castle, containing much enlightening research about the program. Since the author takes a very partisan view of the whole program, the arguments for foreign aid should also be considered. It must be noted, however, that Castle approves of the original Marshall plan, which he describes as "a partial success," but heartily opposes continuance of foreign aid ad infinitum. He points out that Dean Acheson, then Undersecretary of State, pledged to Congress that American financial assistance to the rest of the free world would end when the original 17 billions was spent.

In the intervening years Soviet Russia, with the same guile shown in all her overtures to dependent countries has tried to keep pace with American foreign aid by a simulation of economic and military assistance which has been designed to influence their governments rather than to strengthen their independence. Proponents of continued U.S. multi-billion foreign aid programs concede that the Red program has been carried out at about one tenth the cost of the American assistance.

Recently the case for foreign aid has been stated very directly by several groups of American businessmen, labor leaders and economists. A committee headed by Benjamin Fairless, former U.S. Steel official, recommended a long term aid program, after visiting a number of the countries which are now receiving U. S. assistance. More recently the Committee for Economic Development, which includes some 150 U. S. businessmen, has urged the continuance of foreign aid on a more limited scale, with an outlay of five billions over five years as a starter.

Meanwhile the Eisenhower administration has tentatively suggested that in future, low interest loans to foreign countries might be substituted for grants to a large extent. But the loan idea will be subject to criticism on the score that few governments feel they have to repay loans to the big hearted U. S. Great Britain, which has many fiscal problems, has just been given favorable consideration in a House bill allowing that nation to postpone payments of interest and principle on her 1945 debt to the U.S. for the next seven years. But it must also be remembered that Britain has just cut her national defense budget to the bone, partly to continue its welfare state program, which the government pays for, and which costs as much as the country's military budget.

Castle asks a pointed question in his book, "With all its resources, has America the wealth or the wisdom to play such an Olympian role?"

Or as Spruille Braden, retired American diplomat, has said of our total foreign aid expenditure, "I grasp the value of 55 billion when I add the assessed valuation of all property ... in the 13 biggest cities of this country. New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Los Angeles, Detroit, Baltimore, Cleveland, St. Louis, Washington, San Francisco, Boston, Houston and Pittsburgh and arrive at the grand total of just over 55 billion.

Mountains, Sea Timeless Symbols Of Liberty, Especially When Greek

SUDA BAY, Crete — Mountains and the sea are the timeless symbols of liberty, especially when they are Greek. We dropped out of the unbelievably blue Mediterranean sky and saw the snow-spread mountain range, eight thousand feet above the sea level where two ships rode at anchor off this Grecian island.

The plane's pilot, not so poetical as the scenery, remarked as we depaned: "Here's where you hit the boondocks." He meant that we had come to the back of beyond, navy - wise speaking, past the civilizing touch of officers' clubs and spring mattresses. I had started with the flight logistics planes out of Norfolk and Charleston, into Nouasseur and Port Lyautey, into Naples and Malta and now — the last jump - off place before our cargo hits the decks of the sixth fleet. All along the way the planes have become progressively smaller. Across the Atlantic in a Constellation, across the Mediterranean in a Loadmaster, eastward in a Skytrain, now from shore to ship in a Trader, the last being a two-engine Grumman with folding wings, which will land me on the aircraft carrier, "Forrestal."

Well, the boondocks turned out to be an occupied World War II air base, belonging to Greece, and operated by NATO. Maintenance crews were bunked on cots inside the hangar. We ate our first meal in an old - fashioned chow - line—cabbage, hot dogs and coffee on an omnibus tray, but there was still further frontier. Lying at anchor in the bay was an LST, Number 32, "Alameda County," with a set of aviation wings painted on her bows.

This was the strangest yet. All along the route I had been writing about planes which support ships. Now, here was a ship that supported airplanes and airfields. I went aboard the "Alameda County" and soon learned from her executive officer, Lieut. Comdr. Charles Thomas of Sunbury, Penna., that she is unique in many ways. She is by far the oldest landing craft afloat, the only landing craft used for this purpose, and the only one commanded by pilots. The skipper, Lieut. Comdr. Andrew Sinclair of Providence, R. I., was off paying his respects to the Greek landlords, but acting skipper Thomas told me:

"After 15 years as a navy flier, this is my first duty afloat. We carry everything aboard that you'll find at La Guardia. Today we brought in a fire department, ambulance service, four two-ton trucks, a portable control tower, fresh water to activate the plumbing ashore, a generator for lighting and telephone service, plus food and clothing. We are set up to handle 25 aircraft and their crews."

This ship - to- plane concept of logistics support is fited to conditions in the Mediterranean, where the distances are short and where numerous and inconspicuous islands are equiped with semi-abandoned fields. If war should start, it's expected that American carriers would be primary targets and would eventually be disabled in these narrow waters. The NATO attack would then be carried on to the death from these half - hidden airstrips.

That sort of desperate last-ditch fighting has happened here before and the mementoes lie all about. The Nazis took Crete from the British and Greeks in one of the first parachute attacks of World War II, but the victory came high in German blood. After the defending soldiers were wiped out, the Cretan guerillas kept trying; and the Nazis resorted to shooting hostages. The bitter memories remain, as do the graves of the fallen soldiers, many of them unknown. Often, when a ship lifts anchor in shallow water, old weapons and vehicles come to the surface.

As always in human affairs, but most poignantly in human warfare, there is irony for the mirth of the gods. The British and Greeks died side by side on the scraggly soil of Crete, among the graceful olive groves, but today the one - time partners of the death - dance are rivals, almost enemices. The Greeks are seething over the British occupation in Cyprus and the exile of the now-liberated Bishop Markarios. A navy officer just in from Rhodes told me:

"I went into a blacksmith shop, when suddenly the proprietor leaped at me, crying, 'British!' I didn't lose any time yelling, 'American! American!' That made it all right."

All right—for how long? Nothing blows so hot or cold as an entangling military alliance. Friends today — enemies tomorrow. But that's one reason why the sixtr fleet is here in the eastern Mediterranean. The neighbors don't brawl so much when the tall cop is walking his beat.

Public Forum

City of Monroe
School Board
Monroe, Louisiana
Gentlemen:

On Tuesday evening, April 9 at Lexington School, a meeting was held to discuss the school program, and in particular to hear from the School Board concerning the new Junior High School and the question of the placement of the sixth grade.

As a result of this discussion, I reached several conclusions, and also felt the need of raising several questions.

I concluded, after hearing members of the School Board and the Superintendent, that all of the discussion concerning opportunity, enrichment of the program, etc., has very little, if any, bearing on the question at this time. The truth of the matter seems to be that the sixth grade is to be put in the Junior High for two reasons:

1. Having spent the funds available to it in the construction of these Junior High Schools, and therefore being unprepared to furnish additional classrooms at the elementary schools, the School Board has already decided, and committed itself, by its own actions, to putting the sixth grades in Junior High.

2. By placing the sixth grade in Junior High, the School Board will receive state funds for payment of one teacher for each twenty-five sixth grade students, instead of one for each thirty-sixth grade students, as in the elementary schools.

Both of these reasons for putting the sixth grade in Junior High apparently are based on dollars—not — education.

The inclusion of the sixth grade in Junior High is an experiment. It is not a normal or recommended practice.

My authority for this statement is as follows:

1. Table 18, Page 173, of the Report of the Division of Surveys and Field Services of George Peabody College for Teachers, entitled "Public Education in Louisiana." This table shows, that out of 363 White and 123 Negro schools, in only one Negro and no white school was the sixth grade included in Junior High for the 1952-53 school year.

2. In the same report, on page 171, is the following statement: "Although in the nation as a whole secondary education is considered to be that education provided in grades seven through twelve, it is clear that in the state of Louisiana, secondary education is defined as that which is made available in grades nine through twelve." This indicates that nationally the sixth grade is not considered a part of secondary education, and I conclude, therefore, that it belongs in the elementary school.

I further present to you the following questions:

1. Did I understand correctly that, not until year after next, will there be a lack of school rooms in the elementary schools as a whole?

2. Is it necessary to assume that the parents of our community must be convinced, by reference to opportunity, enriched program, etc., instead of being told in a straightforward manner: "This is what is planned 'and what our funds are committed to'"? An honest difference of opinion is nothing to be ashamed of.

3. What is being done, or what can be done to correct inferior planning and design in present facilities, which, let me say, I believe were made or contracted for by prior school boards.

Let me state in conclusion, I am in favor of the Junior High Program, but I believe that the great preponderence of evidence shows that it should contain either the seventh, eighth and ninth grades, or the seventh and eighth grades alone. I feel that the sixth grades should be put where sound and proven experience indicates they belong, with regard only to what is best for the children.

I further believe that a full and straightforward statement of the costs and the actions necessary to make this possible will be met by the enthusiastic support of the citizens of this community and votes at the polls for the necessary funds.

Yours very truly,
L. SLADE BROWN.

College Education Cost Steadily Grows Higher

If you're among the millions of young American parents who are hoping and planning to send your children to college, let the following statistics come to you as the shock I mean them to be.

Even if your child goes to a public college, it'll cost you a minimum of $1,500 a year for tuition and living expenses — and that's a minimum right now. If your child goes to a private college, the minimum will be $2,000 a year. And this does not include transportation.

The average will run as high as $2,550 a year at such universities as Princeton, as high as $2,250 a year at such colleges as Vassar.

Over the four - year college period, therefore, you must figure the financial wallop will come to $6,000 at the very least.

Since 1940, the cost of going to college has doubled and we have by no means seen the end of this uptrend. The costs in every category almost certainly will be higher five, seven, ten years from now.

With only about 125,000 scholarships available annually for 2,500,000 students, neither scholarships nor any other type of campus assistant program can cover more than a part of the cost. And educators agree that, at least during the freshman year, the student should have enough money on hand to see him through.

A recent survey of a group of high school students with the highest marks revealed only 15 per cent "could afford to go to college."

And yet, the value of a college education is undeniable. The estimate is the average college graduate earns $75,000 more than the average high school student during a lifetime — about 88 per cent more. There is just no arguing the intangible benefits of a college education to the individual, the benefits to the nation as a whole.

At this point, I can hear you moaning, "How will we ever manage it!" For you're the shining exception if you are confident you'll be able to meet the college expenses of your child or children.

Well, I'm writing this column because there is a way to manage it — a way so simple it's almost embarrassing to put in in print.

The secret lies in just these three moves: saving fixed amounts regularly; saving for the specific goal of a college education for your child; and directly enlisting your child's help as you build the college nestegg so your child will know the account is for his benefit and will be eager to cooperate in the savings program.

It's an almost embarrassingly simple formula, isn't it? And yet this formula is all that is behind the phenomenal growth of a new savings service — a service which in just a few months has leaped across the country.

The service is called the "College Club" — and it's basically nothing more than a familiar savings account "packaged" so that it encourages a family to save regularly for a child's college education.

The bank opens a College Club account as a joint account between parent and child; the parent and child strive to make regular deposits; the child gets a membership card, button, etc., to give him a sense of pride and participation; the deposits earn interest just as any other regular savings account does. (Incidentally, most other "Club" plans pay little or no interest on deposits.)

It was less than a year ago that a group of bright young men in Brookline, Mass., hit on this idea, but already 300 banks in the country have adopted it. The reason I heard about it is that on May 1 the first bank in New York City — the East River Savings, 10th largest savings bank in the nation — will join the others and offer the College Club through its five branches in the Manhattan area.

"From our point of view, it has the advantage of being a long-term savings account which a parent will tap only in a real emergency," said George O. Nodyne, president of the East River Savings Bank, when he told me about the program. "From the parent's point of view, it has the advantage of adding compulsion to his desire to save regularly and of giving the children part in the savings effort."

Congress Eyeing Control Of Professional Sports

WASHINGTON, April (CQ) — Congress is looking to the bleachers of public opinion before calling the play of professional sports and antitrust laws.

The Supreme Court gave Congress the umpire role Feb. 25 in ruling that professional football was subject to anti trust laws. Its decision said that of it appeared "illogical" to put football under the laws while exempting baseball from them, it was up to Congress to eliminate unfairness through legislation.

A Congressional Quarterly survey of Senators and Representatives revealed a widespread wait-and-see attitude on the sports question. On the 147 questionaires returned by Congressmen:

62 said they were undecided about whether professional sports should be placed under antitrust laws.

43 said all professional sports should be covered by the laws.

29 said all professional sports should be exempted from them.

12 said just football and baseball should be exempted.

1 said just baseball should be exempted.

The preponderant indecisiveness on the issue carries trrough to Rep. Eamanuel Celler (D. N. Y.) whose Judiciary subcommittee would air the question. "I don't know at this juncture whether we'll have hearings or not," Celler said. "We're letting the matter simmer a bit so we can find out what the public thinks."

But the wait - and - see attitude is not shared by the sports world itself. Their representatives are girding for action. Commissioner Bert Bell of the National Football League, for example, and one of his lawyers recently registered as lobbists for "any and all legislation affecting professional football."

The comments of Rep. Stewart L. Udall (D Ariz.) on his questionnaire typified those of the Congressmen favoring the application of antitrust laws to all sports: "The step will force the owners to establish a new system which will give more adequate protection and fuller opportunity to the players."

Typifying the opposing views, Rep. Jackson E. Betts (R Ohio) said: "I think that there should be one area in American life beyond the scope of Federal snooping. I think that sports have enough high minded men to run their business, if it is a business, in a respectable manner."

Congressmen were asked whether they played varsity sports in high school or college. Their replies indicated that a sports background did not influence opinions.

Of the 43 who favored putting all professional sports under antitrust laws, 25 were high school or college lettermen. Of the 29 who wanted sports exempted, 17 were lettermen.

Bills to carry out the various opinions on the sports issue already have been introduced. But the general reluctance to start hearings on the question makes it doubtful any legislation will be passed this year.

1951 Investigation.

In 1951, Celler's House Monopoly Power Subcommittee held hearings on organized baseball. In its report of May 27, 1952, the Subcommittee concluded "legislation is not necessary until the reasonableness of the reserve rules (under which a player is bound to one club for life unless he is sold or traded) has been tested by the courts. If those rules are unreasonable in some respects, it would be inappropriate to adopt legislation before baseball has had an opportunity to make such modifications as may be necessary."

Rep. Patrick J. Hillings (R Calif.) argues that the umbrella over baseball soon will be blown away. He contends it is only a matter of time before the Supreme Court rules that baseball is subject to the antitrust laws.

"I want to see legislation passed for the good of the sport," Hillings said. "A court decision putting baseball under the laws would be much worse than legislation." He said legislation putting sports under antitrust laws could give sports special consideration while a court decision could not.

In addition to football, the Supreme Court has ruled that boxing and the legitimate stage are subject to the antitrust laws. Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes in a 1922 majority decision, said baseball could not be classified as interstate commerce and therefore was not subject to antitrust laws. "Personal effort," Holmes said, "not related to production, is not a subject of commerce. That which in its consummation is not commerce does not become commerce among the states because the transportation (of players across states) that we have mentioned takes place."

World Is Beautified By Bothersome Dust

Without dust little rain or snow would fall, and much of the world's color would disappear, says the National Geographic Society. Sky and lake would lose a great deal of their blue; fiery sunsets would not be possible. And rainbows would vanish with the rain.

Although smokestacks, incinerators, automobiles, locomotives, and atomic tests throw vast quantities of soot and other products into the air, the presence of dust does not require man's inventions. Eve found it waiting in the Garden of Eden.

Dust is everywhere in the air. Particles of soil and rock, worn off by the wind, join plant pollen and spores, dried sea spray, and bits of organic material in the sky. Much of this material is invisible, even under a high-powered microscope. Motes in a sunbeam falling into a darkened room are giants of their race.

Water has an affinity for tiny bits of salt, sulphur compounds, and other materials in the atmosphere. When there is sufficient moisture in the air, it gathers into droplets around the particles, producing fog, clouds, and, eventually, rain or snow.

For years, scientists believed dust particles essential to rain production. It has been proved recently, however, that drops can form without dust nuclei under certain unusual conditions.

The blue sky owes its color to dust and vapor molecules, which scatter the sunlight. The blue end of the spectrum is spread across the heavens, where it is reflected in the water below.

The glories of sunset and sunrise are dust-born. When the sun is low on the horizon, its light ...its through a greater portion of ...st-laden air than when it is overhead. Air-borne particles break up the light rays, scattering the blue and green. Red-orange rays pass through to touch clouds and buildings with glowing rose and scarlet.

Great volcanic eruptions may change sunsets everywhere. The explosion of Krakatau in 1883 threw so much fine dust into the atmosphere that two years of spectacular sunsets followed.

Eruptions can even change the weather. Dust from the Tamboro volcano on Sumbawa Island east of Java is believed to have reflected and absorbed so much of the sun's heat that it made 1816 a cold year around the globe. It was known as "the year without a summer" and "eighteen-hundred-froze-to-death."

Monroe Residents Will Vote On Tax

The four-mill operation and maintenance tax voted by the property owners of Monroe in May, 1947, for support of the city schools will expire next month.

To continue operation of the city schools, it will be necessary for the people to re-vote the school tax for another 10-year period. An election will be held Tuesday, April 23, for this purpose.

Because of the tremendous increase in operational costs, city and school officials have figured that it will be absolutely necessary to increase the tax from four to seven mills and it will be on this amount of tax that the property owners will vote Tuesday.

There are many reasons why school costs have increased since 1947, the chief reason being a rapid increase in the number of children in school. For example, in 1947 there was an enrollment of 3228. Today there is an enrollment of 7426. This represents an increase for 10 years of 4199, or a percentage increase of 130. Today there are 265 teachers, compared to 113 in 1947, a percentage increase of 135. Now there are 292 classrooms against 104 in 1947, an increase of 181 per cent.

With the opening of two junior high schools in the fall of 1957, the number of school buildings will have doubled since 1947.

In 1948 the Monroe city schools inaugurated school bus transportation. There are now 18 buses in operation and the number will need to be increased with the beginning of the fall term, to take care of the new junior high schools.

Although the Monroe property tax assessment has increased 65 per cent since 1947, the student enrollment for the same period has increased 130 per cent, or exactly twice as much as the assessment.

All property owners can vote the full assessed value of their property, even though the $2,000 exemption for home owners or the $5,000 exemption for veteran-home owners would apply.

These facts have been prepared by city school officials. They regard passage of the tax as an absolute necessity if operation of the city schools is to continue. In this, we believe the officials are right, since no other method of supplying this needed money for the school exists.

Speidel's Job Shows European Integration

When a German general was installed as commander of all land forces in Europe of the North Atlantic Treaty (NATO) powers, the tremendous changes that have occurred since World War II were marked in bold lines.

Observers expected serious demonstrations by the French against giving a top post to a German. It was felt that the centuries-old distrust of anything German and anybody German would cause serious repercussions.

There were some demonstrations, in the French Assembly and elsewhere, but only by the communists. And they demonstrate so often and have shown themselves so anti-French that these had little effect.

Too much importance should not be attached to the French general's refusal to have his picture taken shaking hands with German Gen. Hans Speidel. This indicates a latent distrust still exists, that Gen. Jean Etienne Valluy was making sure no one would ever be able to wave the picture in front of him and accuse him of being a traitor.

This distrust cannot be wiped out in a few years, but the very fact that the ceremony took place at all should give hope that it can be overcome eventually.

The importance of Speidel's taking command is not really in the fact that he is a German. The importance is in the welding of Europe into a joint defense organization, which took place with creation of NATO and admission of West Germany.

Speidel is merely a symbol that integration of European nations continues on the military plane as well as on the economic.

Opposition To Huge Foreign Aid May Force Change In Eisenhower Policy

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The accumulating opposition to future large scale foreign aid may force a change in the Eisenhower foreign policy for the remainder of its term, when the U.S. Senate, probably sometime late in May, turns to debate on the mutual security section of the budget with its 4.4 billion dollars for further military and economic assistance to free and neutral nations.

Never in the peace time history of the U.S. have the American people had less detailed and specific information about any major expenditure program than about foreign aid, which began with the inauguration of the Marshall plan, with its initial 17 billion dollars in 1949. By June of this year the total outlay under continued extension of the program will approach 60 billions and the taxpayers still have been given only overall information as to how their money is being spent.

The next criticism of the continuing foreign aid program is that it was established for one main purpose—to check Communist encroachment in countries which had been bled white by World War II. Since it began, however, its proponents have found so many outlets for foreign aid funds that nations deemed to be underdeveloped by American standards, but which are under little threat of Communist infiltration, have been receiving American millions for all sorts of projects, some of which are now said to have been almost forced on them.

This has led to a designation of the foreign aid program as "the Great Giveaway" which is the title of a book by Eugene W. Castle, containing much enlightening research about the program. Since the author takes a very partisan view of the whole program, the arguments for foreign aid should also be considered. It must be noted, however, that Castle approves of the original Marshall plan, which he describes as "a partial success," but heartily opposes continuance of foreign aid ad infinitum. He points out that Dean Acheson, then Undersecretary of State, pledged to Congress that American financial assistance to the rest of the free world would end when the original 17 billions was spent.

In the intervening years Soviet Russia, with the same guile shown in all her overtures to dependent countries has tried to keep pace with American foreign aid by a simulation of economic and military assistance which has been designed to influence their governments rather than to strengthen their independence. Proponents of continued U.S. multi-billion foreign aid programs concede that the Red program has been carried out at about one tenth the cost of the American assistance.

Recently the case for foreign aid has been stated very directly by several groups of American businessmen, labor leaders and economists. A committee headed by Benjamin Fairless, former U.S. Steel official, recommended a long term aid program, after visiting a number of the countries which are now receiving U. S. assistance. More recently the Committee for Economic Development, which includes some 150 U. S. businessmen, has urged the continuance of foreign aid on a more limited scale, with an outlay of five billions over five years as a starter.

Meanwhile the Eisenhower administration has tentatively suggested that in future, low interest loans to foreign countries might be substituted for grants to a large extent. But the loan idea will be subject to criticism on the score that few governments feel they have to repay loans to the big hearted U. S. Great Britain, which has many fiscal problems, has just been given favorable consideration in a House bill allowing that nation to postpone payments of interest and principle on her 1945 debt to the U.S. for the next seven years. But it must also be remembered that Britain has just cut her national defense budget to the bone, partly to continue its welfare state program, which the government pays for, and which costs as much as the country's military budget.

Castle asks a pointed question in his book, "With all its resources, has America the wealth or the wisdom to play such an Olympian role?"

Or as Spruille Braden, retired American diplomat, has said of our total foreign aid expenditure, "I grasp the value of 55 billion when I add the assessed valuation of all property ... in the 13 biggest cities of this country. New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Los Angeles, Detroit, Baltimore, Cleveland, St. Louis, Washington, San Francisco, Boston, Houston and Pittsburgh and arrive at the grand total of just over 55 billion.

Mountains, Sea Timeless Symbols Of Liberty, Especially When Greek

SUDA BAY, Crete — Mountains and the sea are the timeless symbols of liberty, especially when they are Greek. We dropped out of the unbelievably blue Mediterranean sky and saw the snow-spread mountain range, eight thousand feet above the sea level where two ships rode at anchor off this Grecian island.

The plane's pilot, not so poetical as the scenery, remarked as we deplaned: "Here's where you hit the boondocks." He meant that we had come to the back of beyond, navy - wise speaking, past the civilizing touch of officers' clubs and spring mattresses. I had started with the flight logistics planes out of Norfolk and Charleston, into Nouasseur and Port Lyautey, into Naples and Malta and now — the last jump - off place before our cargo hits the decks of the sixth fleet. All along the way the planes have become progressively smaller. Across the Atlantic in a Constellation, across the Mediterranean in a Loadmaster, eastward in a Skytrain, now from shore to ship in a Trader, the last being a two-engine Grumman with folding wings, which will land me on the aircraft carrier, "Forrestal."

Well, the boondocks turned out to be an occupied World War II air base, belonging to Greece, and operated by NATO. Maintenance crews were bunked on cots inside the hangar. We ate our first meal in an old - fashioned chow - line—cabbage, hot dogs and coffee on an omnibus tray, but there was still further frontier. Lying at anchor in the bay was an LST, Number 32, "Alameda County," with a set of aviation wings painted on her bows.

This was the strangest yet. All along the route I had been writing about planes which support ships. Now, here was a ship that supported airplanes and airfields. I went aboard the "Alameda County" and soon learned from her executive officer, Lieut. Comdr. Charles Thomas of Sunbury, Penna., that she is unique in man ways. She is by far the oldest landing craft afloat, the only landing craft used for this purpose, and the only one commanded by pilots. The skipper, Lieut. Comdr. Andrew Sinclair of Providence, R. I., was off paying his respects to the Greek landlords, but acting skipper Thomas told me:

"After 15 years as a navy flier, this is my first duty afloat. We carry everything aboard that you'll find at La Guardia. Today we brought in a fire department, ambulance service, four two-ton trucks, a portable control tower, fresh water to activate the plumbing ashore, a generator for lighting and telephone service, plus food and clothing. We are set up to handle 25 aircraft and their crews."

This ship - to- plane concept of logistics support is fited to conditions in the Mediterranean, where the distances are short and where numerous and inconspicuous islands are equiped with semi-abandoned fields. If war should start, it's expected that American carriers would be primary targets and would eventually be disabled in these narrow waters. The NATO attack would then be carried on to the death from these half - hidden airstrips.

That sort of desperate last-ditch fighting has happened here before and the mementoes lie all about. The Nazis took Crete from the British and Greeks in one of the first parachute attacks of World War II, but the victory came high in German blood. After the defending soldiers were wiped out, the Cretan guerillas kept trying; and the Nazis resorted to shooting hostages. The bitter memories remain, as do the graves of the fallen soldiers, many of them unknown. Often, when a ship lifts anchor in shallow water, old weapons and vehicles come to the surface.

As always in human affairs, but most poignantly in human warfare, there is irony for the mirth of the gods. The British and Greeks died side by side on the scraggly soil of Crete, among the graceful olive groves, but today the one - time partners of the death - dance are rivals, almost enemices. The Greeks are seething over the British occupation in Cyprus and the exile of the now-liberated Bishop Markarios. A navy officer just in from Rhodes told me:

"I went into a blacksmith shop, when suddenly the proprietor leaped at me, crying, 'British!' I didn't lose any time yelling, 'American! American!' That made it all right."

All right—for how long? Northing blows so hot or cold as an entangling military alliance. Friends today — enemies tomorrow. But that's one reason why the sixtr fleet is here in the eastern Mediterranean. The neighbors don't brawl so much when the tall cop is walking his beat.

Public Forum

City of Monroe
Monroe, Louisiana
Gentlemen:

On Tuesday evening, April 9 at Lexington School, a meeting was held to discuss the school program, and in particular to hear from the School Board concerning the new Junior High School and the question of the placement of the sixth grade.

As a result of this discussion, I reached several conclusions, and also felt the need of raising several questions.

I concluded, after hearing members of the School Board and the Superintendent, that all of the discussion concerning opportunity, enrichment of the program, etc., has very little, if any, bearing on the question at this time. The truth of the matter seems to be that the sixth grade is to be put in the Junior High for two reasons:

1. Having spent the funds available to it in the construction of these Junior High Schools, and therefore being unprepared to furnish additional classrooms at the elementary schools, the School Board has already decided, and committed itself, by its own actions, to putting the sixth grades in Junior High.

2. By placing the sixth grade in Junior High, the School Board will receive state funds for payment of one teacher for each twenty-five sixth grade students, instead of one for each thirty-sixth grade students, as in the elementary schools.

Both of these reasons for putting the sixth grade in Junior High apparently are based on dollars—not — education.

The inclusion of the sixth grade in Junior High is an experiment. It is not a normal or recommended practice.

My authority for this statement is as follows:

1. Table 18, Page 173, of the Report of the Division of Surveys and Field Services of George Peabody College for Teachers, entitled "Public Education in Louisiana." This table shows, that out of 363 White and 123 Negro schools, in only one Negro and no white school was the sixth grade included in Junior High for the 1952-53 school year.

2. In the same report, on page 171, is the following statement: "Although in the nation as a whole secondary education is considered to be that education provided in grades seven through twelve, it is clear that in the state of Louisiana, secondary education is defined as that which is made available in grades nine through twelve." This indicates that nationally the sixth grade is not considered a part of secondary education, and I conclude, therefore, that it belongs in the elementary school.

I further present to you the following questions:

1. Did I understand correctly that, not until year after next, will there be a lack of school rooms in the elementary schools as a whole?

2. Is it necessary to assume that the parents of our community must be convinced, by reference to opportunity, enriched program, etc., instead of being told in a straightforward manner: "This is what is planned 'and what our funds are committed to"? An honest difference of opinion is nothing to be ashamed of.

3. What is being done, or what can be done to correct inferior planning and design in present facilities, which, let me say, I believe were made or contracted for by prior school boards.

Let me state in conclusion, I am in favor of the Junior High Program, but I believe that the great preponderence of evidence shows that it should contain either the seventh, eighth and ninth grades, or the seventh and eighth grades alone. I feel that the sixth grades should be put where sound and proven experience indicates they belong, with regard only to what is best for the children.

I further believe that a full and straightforward statement of the costs and the actions necessary to make this possible will be met by the enthusiastic support of the citizens of this community and votes at the polls for the necessary funds.

Yours very truly,
L. SLADE BROWN.

College Education Cost Steadily Grows Higher

If you're among the millions of young American parents who are hoping and planning to send your children to college, let the following statistics come to you as the shock I mean them to be.

With only about 125,000 scholarships available annually for 2,500,000 students, neither scholarships nor any other type of campus assistant program can cover more than a part of the cost. And educators agree that, at least during the freshman year, the student should have enough money on hand to see him through.

A recent survey of a group of high school students with the highest marks revealed only 15 per cent "could afford to go to college."

And yet, the value of a college education is undeniable. The estimate is the average college graduate earns $75,000 more than the average high school student during a lifetime — about 88 per cent more. Udall (D Ariz.) on his questionnaire typified those of the Congressmen favoring the application of antitrust laws to all sports: "The step will force the owners to establish a new system which will give more adequate protection and fuller opportunity to the players."

Typifying the opposing views, Rep. Jackson E. Betts (R Ohio) said: "I think that there should be one area in American life beyond the scope of Federal snooping. I think that sports have enough high minded men to run their business, if it is a business, in a respectable manner."

Congressmen were asked whether they played varsity sports in high school or college. Their replies indicated that a sports background did not influence opinions.

Of the 43 who favored putting all professional sports under antitrust laws, 25 were high school or college lettermen. Of the 29 who wanted sports exempted, 17 were lettermen.

Bills to carry out the various opinions on the sports issue already have been introduced. But the general reluctance to start hearings on the question makes it doubtful any legislation will be passed this year.

1951 Investigation.

In 1951, Celler's House Monopoly Power Subcommittee held hearings on organized baseball. In its report of May 27, 1952, the Subcommittee concluded "legislation is not necessary until the reasonableness of the reserve rules (under which a player is bound to one club for life unless he is sold or traded) has been tested by the courts. If those rules are unreasonable in some respects, it would be inappropriate to adopt legislation before baseball has had an opportunity to make such modifications as may be necessary."

Rep. Patrick J. Hillings (R Calif.) argues that the umbrella over baseball soon will be blown away. He contends it is only a matter of time before the Supreme Court rules that baseball is subject to the antitrust laws.

"I want to see legislation passed for the good of the sport," Hillings said. "A court decision putting baseball under the laws would be much worse than legislation." He said legislation putting sports under antitrust laws could give sports special consideration while a court decision could not.

In addition to football, the Supreme Court has ruled that boxing and the legitimate stage are subject to the antitrust laws. Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes in a 1922 majority decision, said baseball could not be classified as interstate commerce and therefore was not subject to antitrust laws. "Personal effort," Holmes said, "not related to production, is not a subject of commerce. That which in its consummation is not commerce does not become commerce among the states because the transportation (of players across states) that we have mentioned takes place."

Rejoice And Pray

THE Saviour is risen from ... His earthly tomb today ... Sing out with all the angels now ... And join them as they pray ... Give thanks to God for paradise ... That never would have been ... Had not his Son been sacrificed ... To expiate for sin ... It is the day of glory, and ... The hour to rejoice ... May all the world give praise to Him ... As with a single voice ... Dear Jesus, on this Easter Day ... We turn our hearts to You ... And promise to live better lives ... In everything we do ... We worship and adore You as ... Our only God and Lord ... And hope and pray that we may gain ... Your wonderful reward.

Postal Savings Are Down To $391,124 At Office Here

Monroe Postmaster Woodrow W. Hathorn said yesterday the post office department is urging congress to liquidate the postal savings system because it has outlived its usefulness.

Postmaster General Summerfield, the local postal head explained, has urged that the congress approve legislation which would permit liquidation of postal savings in such a way that there would be a minimum of inconvenience to depositors.

Such legislation, which is in line with recommendations of the second Hoover commission report and the comptroller - general of the United States, is now pending in congress, Postmaster Hathorn noted.

Pointing out that postal savings deposits have dropped rapidly—from $3,393,000,000 in 1947 to $1,765,000,000 in 1956, with declines continuing at the rate of about $20 million a month — Postmaster Hathorn said the post office department feels the system "no longer meets today's social conditions and savings habits."

Noting that today nearly all postal savings sytem depositories are concentrated in post offices in communities which have commercial banks, he added that "today funds are invested with confidence in United States savings bonds and in government - guaranteed bank and savings and loan deposits."

Recreation Plans For Crossett Laid

CROSSETT, April 20 (Special) — R. P. Meredith, chairman of Crossett's Recreation Commission appeared before the City Council at its regular meeting to present a plan for a summer recreation program.

Meredith pointed out that the success of a summer program rests on securing the services of adult leaders. He asked permission to hire Coaches Harry Denson, Dixie Howell and Cliff Horton to run the program, and permission to hire three high school senior boys to serve as assistants.

The Recreation Commission would need to purchase more equipment and this year they planned to give more publicity to their school playground activities in order that more children might participate, he added.

The Council approved the hiring of personnel and purchase of equipment.

"Detailed Study of Park and Recreational Facilities" of Crossett, a study which was completed last August by Harland Bartholomew and Associates of St. Louis, was presented to Council. The detailed study was paid for by the Crossett Company at an estimated cost of some $2,800, and sets out in minute detail each phase of the city's recreation development. The report contains some 50 pages of plans, maps and charts showing just where each park, picnic table and playing field should be located; when they should be built, and what they will cost.

"The problem of recreation will be with the city for a long time," Meredith said, "and we feel we have here a complete guide of the way our recreation planning should go. This report shows what can be done, as well as what is being done about the entire problem of securing good recreation facilities for all of our people."

An outstanding feature of the "Detailed Plan" is the use of school playgrounds for summer playground activity. The planners feel it is wasteful to plan and equip playgrounds for children to use during the nine months of school — then plan other playgrounds for their summer use. Hence, their plan involves the utilization of each of the school playgrounds as neighborhood recreation fields during the summer.

If the average person were credited with what he knows and charged with what he thinks he knows but doesn't, he would most likely be in the red.

Gibbs Answered On Right-Of-Way

In reply to a query by Ouachita Representative Lawrence Gibbs asking for the general average prices paid for "super highways" rights - of - way — one of which is to span through the Twin Cities area — the Louisiana legislative council quoted a $1,000 per mile range to $1,000 per foot price.

The council used as its basis, information obtained from the National Highway Users Conference, Inc., the American Association of State Highway Officials and the Bureau of Public Roads.

Actural value of property and assessed valution is the prime factor in determining what is to be paid for a right - of - way, the council pointed out to Gibbs.

The actual value of the property is determined by competent and qualified appraisers followed by the right - of - way engineer who attempts to secure a fair price with the land owner.

If the engineer can not agree with the land owner, the council pointed out, it may be necessary to take the land by eminent domain or condemnation. But if the land owner is not satisfied, he has recourse in the courts.

Eminent domain and condemnation proceedings, Gibbs was told, vary from state to state, but in no case is an arbitrary price put upon the land by an unassisted court.

It is the practice of the court in such cases to determine the value only after hearing the testimony of qualified and unbiased appraisers though the court is not bound by their opinions.

For the past several years there has been a great deal of legislation among the various states in connection with rights - of - way.

Most of the changes being made are primarily concerned with modernizing and streamlining the methods of acquisition of rights-of-way, the council added.

While one of the aims of these new laws, Gibbs learned, is to save money, none of the laws specifies any particular amount or sets any limits on the amount that may be paid for the acquisition of a right - of - way.

The savings are effected by speeding up and simplifying and the process of acquisition.

According to the March 1st, 1957 issue of "Trends," a publication of the National Highway Users Conference, at least one - half of the states are presently considering modernizaton of highway right-of-way acquisition laws and procedures. Legislation to provide faster, and in some cases less costly, right - of - way acquisition procedures has been introduced in 21 states, while officials have asked for remedial legislation in at least three other states, the council replied.

Quite a few of the states are setting up revolving funds for advance purchase of rights-of-way. This permits the state to acquire the property needed for the highway before the property is developed. By planning ahead and buying considerably in advance of construction, the cost of acquisition can be cut considerably.

Another method of streamlining acquisition procedures and eliminating delays is to permit the state to clear land and start construction prior to its getting a valid title to the land.

This eliminates the necessity of having to wait on the court's decision in condemnation proceedings.

Several states have authorized their highway departments to take more property than is needed for highway purposes if a plot or tract of land will remain after highway construction which is of little value to the owner or will give rise to litigation concerning severance or other damages.

Another problem which arises in the acquisition of rights - of - way is the question of who is to pay when public utilities have to be relocated because of highway improvement. The present trend seems to be to permit reimbursements for utility relocations when necessitated by expressway construction.

While most of the new acquisition laws being passed apply to all rights-of-way for highways, they are designed primarily to meet the needs of the large superhighways, the council pointed out.

Special Services, Other Events Set

were held in Catholic churches throughout the Twin Cities.

Today will be filled with plenty of activities designed to please the youngsters. Many egg hunts will be staged in yards, vacant lots, pastures, in parks and other areas.

Egg Hunts

Scene of one egg hunt, sponsored by the Monroe Fire Department, will be at Forsythe Park, starting at 2:30 this afternoon. The other scheduled from 1 to 2 p.m. will be held at the new playground at Kentwood Drive and Spencer in Lexington Addition. The hunt will mark official opening of the playground. The event will be open to all children eight years and under residing in Lexington and Marie Place additions.

Members of the Monroe fire department, sponsors of the Forsythe egg hunt, which is headed by Chief H. L. Hales and Capt. H. E. Roberts, together with assistance by members of the ladies auxiliary announced that all was in readiness for the big event to be held at 2:30 p.m.

A large attendance is expected from over the area and it was explained that it would be necessary to limit it to white children.

The eggs, colored by the firemen's wives will be hidden on the grounds early this morning. Over 2,500 eggs have been made ready for the hunt.

The hunt will be directed from the grand stand at the rear of the American Legion Home. A loud speaker system will be set up to give instructions to the children.

Separate Groups

There are to be separate groups so that there will be no confusion. All this will be explained over the public address system by Captain Roberts.

One section will be for small youngsters from three to eight years old. In the case of all but the very small tots, no adult or parent will be allowed to touch the eggs.

A group from eight to 12 will have a section of the park to hunt eggs in.

Captain Roberts said the eggs will have numbers on them and the lucky winners will be announced over the speakers.

Adults also may win a prize by having the lucky number on their cards.

Over a hundred merchants have donated prizes for the hunt, Captain Roberts said.

Special police will be on hand to supervise the routing of cars to the park. No car will be allowed to move out while the hunt is in progress, officials said.

were clinging to the tops of Elm trees.

Mike Jordan, an 18-year-old athlete at Reisel high school, and his sweetheart, Brenda Roberson, 15, were swept into Brushy Creek along with Jordan's automobile.

Climbed Into Tree

They climbed into a clump of trees. Firemen pushed them a boat and Jordan lowered Brenda into it. As her feet touched the boat, it turned over.

He drew her into the tree again by wrapping his legs about her and pulling her up.

Three fishermen from McGregor, Tex., who were trapped on the South Bosques River, saved themselves by grabbing a privy that was floating by and clinging to it until it lodged against pecan trees, which gave them a stouter refuge.

CLAIM MADE ON PAINTING

The broadcast heard here said identification was made by Prof. Mavei Gukovsky, a Leningrad art historian.

the Panhandle, was accompanied by a downpour of 3.20 inch of rain and hail.

Hail also struck nearby Vernon and rain there measured 4.40 inches causing flooding over highways 183 and 70 southwest of Vernon. The highway department temporarily closed the highways because of high water.

Baseball-Sized Hail

Hail the size of baseballs, was reported in the Guthrie, Quanah and Abernathy areas. Chillicothe got hail and high winds. Hail as big as golf balls fell at Lorenzo in Crosby county.

Rain of one and a half inches fell at Plainview in the South Plains and the weather bureau said heavy rain fell from Lubbock northeastward as thunderstorms crashed down in northeast Texas.

The bureau said the severe forecast for northwest and northeast Texas may have to be extended beyond the original 9 p.m. time.

Nearly five inches of rain in the past 24 hours sent creeks and rivers out of banks in the Tyler area.

Black Fork Creek in Northeast Tyler turned into a river and flooded a trailer park nearby. One person, suffering from measels, was evacuated, and officers started evacuation operations for others when water became waist deep.

State Highway 271 out of Tyler was partially blocked and Tyler Policeman Leroy Waterman said it was the worst flood in that city in 10 years.

Some 25 or 30 people live in the trailer park. Many moved their trailers to higher ground.

Constable Bill Hall said lightning hit five oil tanks and a service station at Hawkins and that between 7,000 and 8,000 barrels of oil were destroyed. The fire burned into the evening but was under control.

Boy, 15, Near Death; Three Others Hurt

A 15-year-old Farmerville Negro youth last night was near-death in St. Francis hospital, and three other Negroes were hospitalized, one with a broken neck, following a milk truck accident 13 miles east of Farmerville.

Bobby Dan Fields was the most seriously injured. He suffered shock and numerous lacerations on the abdominal wall and chest. Several inches of skin were peeled off the right side of his chest and abdomen in the 1:30 mishap, pieces of steel were lodged in hisabdomen and his left leg was fractured.

D. A. Cleveland, 46, of Farmerville, driver of the truck, suffered a broken neck, cuts on his back and head, and several bruises. He was taken to the Norris clinic in Farmerville by the Union Funeral Home ambulance, and later transferred to St. Francis.

In Wadlington's clinic at Farmerville were Emmett Mitchell, 17, and Billy Everett, 18, both of Farmerville. Mitchell sustained a broken right arm and lacerations to his right leg, knee and left arm. Everett suffered minor chest and ankle wounds.

State police from Troop F, who investigated the crash said that Cleveland was driving the truck owned by Roy Elkins of Farmerville. Fields, Mitchell and Everett were working with him. They were returning from Monroe to Farmerville with a full load of milk, and were a few miles from Rocky Branch on state highway 143, when Cleveland stooped over to straighten some milk bottles.

He said that as he stood up, the truck swerved off the road and shoulder, and landed in the ditch, overturning three times before haulting, bottom side up.

Cleveland, Mitchell and Everett were all thrown out of the truck as it overturned, but Page fell in such a way that when the truck turned over the second time it landed on top of him.

He was rushed to St. Francis hospital by Kilpatrick's ambulance service of West Monroe. A passing motorist took the Mitchell and Everett youths to the Farmerville clinic.

Cleveland was transferred to St. Francis at 5:30 p.m.

The truck was "demolished," according to state police, and glass from milk bottles was strewn around the vehicle.

advertantly left a little child behind. The king, entering the palace garden, was startled to find a strange child lying asleep upon a marble bench. For a long time he questioned the little stranger but could not make himself understood. When evening shadows fell and the king, despairing of finding any common grounds of speech, took the child by the hand and brought him to an old priest in the temple.

"As the child entered the temple, a slave came in through another door carrying a harp. When the child saw the instrument he ran to it as to an old friend. He pressed the harp to his breast and caressed its carvings; then lifting his face to the purple glory of the sunset, where clouds lingered like incense above an unseen altar of God, he swept his hands over the strings. Sweet sounds filled the temple and as the child fingered the harp, tears ran down his face as an ineffable longing was in his youthful eyes. It was spirit signaling to spirit across the far spaces, a sad and troubled soul, a stranger in a strange land, calling to those who had gone before. The king and the priest quietly departed. Next morning the harp was there, the child was gone. Those who had gone before had heard his call and had come for they are ever near us when needed most.

"Joe Jefferson, famous actor, owned a large south Louisiana plantation. As years passed he made many warm friends among the native cajuns and one of them, Pierre Landry, and his wife were specially friendly. One day Jefferson sook a picture of the old man. The wife was much interested. The operation was all new to her and she asked to see the picture at once. Jefferson told her she would have to wait and she did wait for a year. The picture was so good the actor had it enlarged and an artist tinted it in natural colors, and it was placed in a handsome frame.

"One year passed before the actor returned to the plantation, and he had not known that old Pierre Landry was dead. As he approached the house he failed to see a mound in the corner of the yard, covered with red roses. As he approached the house the widow welcomed him with an armful of red roses. As she approached the automobile, Jefferson placed the picture in her hands. She looked at it; dropped the flowers, fell upon her knees and as tears trickled down her cheek, she sobbed:

"Oh my darling, my darling you have come back to me!"

"Upon this Easter day, immortal souls on earth are signaling across the far spaces to the immortal souls of the sky. Spirit is calling to spirit through all the heights of Heaven. Down the long corridors of memory, from the beautiful temples of faith and hope, our loved ones come back to again," 'For ever near us, though unseen, the dear immortal spirits tread, and all the boundless universe is life, — there are no dead!"

new evidence against the union.

Situation Clouded

It is still not clear whether the Teamsters will send representatives to defend the union at the trial, scheduled to be held May 6 behind closed doors.

Such trials are customarily held in secret, and it is up to the defendant union whether a record will be kept.

The 1½-million member Teamsters organization came under charges from its parent AFL-CIO as a result of the Senate committee's disclosures against Teamsters President Dave Beck and other high officers.

Now Suspended

The federation has suspended Beck as an AFL-CIO vice president and council member, an action Beck is contesting, and has scheduled a hearing May 20 before the AFL-CIO executive council. Beck claims his suspension is illegal and therefore a "nullity." He has hinted he won't show up for his hearing.

The federation also has accused the Teamsters Union itself of being dominated by corrupt influences. This charge is the basis for the May 6 trial before the AFL-CIO ethical practices committee. If sustained, the charge could lead to eventual ouster of the AFL-CIO's largest union.

The AFL-CIO has assured the Teamsters no record of the May 6 trial will be kept unless the union wants one. This, it was said, is in line with a policy enunciated by George Meany, AFL-CIO president, that proceedings against Beck and the Teamsters will be conducted impartially in line with past practices.

It has always been optional with unions or leaders whether formal transcripts would be kept of their closed door trials. In nearly every case so far the defendants have wanted one, for use as the basis for appeals, including possible court actions.

Beck's troubles stem from his refusal to tell the Senate investigators under oath about his financial affairs. Outside the hearing he said he "borrowed" $300,000 to $400,000 of Teamster funds for his personal use, without paying interest, but has repaid the money.

Several other high Teamster officers are under indictments. One of these, James R. Hoffa, Midwest Teamster kingpin and Beck's rival for top leadership, has been accused of bribing a Senate investigator to feed Hoffa the committee's secrets. Hoffa's attorneys are due to file preliminary defense motions in Federal Court here Monday.

The Senate Committee, now in an Easter holiday recess after conducting hearings on alleged "goon squad" practices in Scranton, Pa., is expected to hold hearings in earl, May either on the Beck-Teamsters situation or on New York City area labor-management practices.

Blaze In Car Extinguished

A cigarette, left unnoticed on the front seat of an auto, set the car on fire yesterday afternoon. Engine Company number one was notified of the blaze at 4:22 p.m. and rushed to the corner of Oak and Jackson streets, where the 1954 Plymouth was parked.

Luckily, the doors were unlocked on the car, and the firemen were able to extinguish the blaze. They also had to cut out part of the cotton and foam rubber of the seat, which was still smouldering.

The car was registered to C. E. Lee of Jonesboro road, West Monroe.

The New Englander who was shoveling a 12 - inch snowfall off the sidewalk in front os his house was justifiable to a considerable extent in throwing a shovelful of snow in the face of the man who came along singing "Winter Wonderland."

were held in Catholic churches throughout the Twin Cities.

Today will be filled with plenty of activities designed to please the youngsters. Many egg hunts will be staged in yards, vacant lots, pastures, in parks and other areas.

Egg Hunts

Scene of one egg hunt, sponsored by the Monroe Fire Department, will be at Forsythe Park, starting at 2:30 this afternoon. The other scheduled from 1 to 2 p.m. will be held at the new playground at Kentwood Drive and Spencer in Lexington Addition. The hunt will mark official opening of the playground. The event will be open to all children eight years and under residing in Lexington and Marie Place additions.

Members of the Monroe fire department, sponsors of the Forsythe egg hunt, which is headed by Chief H. L. Hales and Capt. H. E. Roberts, together with assistance by members of the ladies auxiliary announced that all was in readiness for the big event to be held at 2:30 p.m.

A large attendance is expected from over the area and it was explained that it would be necessary to limit it to white children.

The eggs, colored by the firemen's wives will be hidden on the grounds early this morning. Over 2,500 eggs have been made ready for the hunt.

The hunt will be directed from the grand stand at the rear of the American Legion Home. A loud speaker system will be set up to give instructions to the children.

Separate Groups

There are to be separate groups so that there will be no confusion. All this will be explained over the public address system by Captain Roberts.

One section will be for small youngsters from three to eight years old. In the case of all but the very small tots, no adult or parent will be allowed to touch the eggs.

A group from eight to 12 will have a section of the park to hunt eggs in.

Captain Roberts said the eggs will have numbers on them and the lucky winners will be announced over the speakers.

Adults also may win a prize by having the lucky number on their cards.

Over a hundred merchants have donated prizes for the hunt, Captain Roberts said.

Special police will be on hand to supervise the routing of cars to the park. No car will be allowed to move out while the hunt is in progress, officials said.

the Panhandle, was accompanied by a downpour of 3.20 inch of rain and hail.

Hail also struck nearby Vernon and rain there measured 4.40 inches causing flooding over highways 183 and 70 southwest of Vernon. The highway department temporarily closed the highways because of high water.

Baseball-Sized Hail

Hail the size of baseballs, was reported in the Guthrie, Quanah and Abernathy areas. Chillicothe got hail and high winds. Hail as big as golf balls fell at Lorenzo in Crosby county.

Rain of one and a half inches fell at Plainview in the South Plains and the weather bureau said heavy rain fell from Lubbock northeastward as thunderstorms crashed down in northeast Texas.

The bureau said the severe forecast for northwest and northeast Texas may have to be extended beyond the original 9 p.m. time.

Nearly five inches of rain in the past 24 hours sent creeks and rivers out of banks in the Tyler area.

Black Fork Creek in Northeast Tyler turned into a river and flooded a trailer park nearby. One person, suffering from measels, was evacuated, and officers started evacuation operations for others when water became waist deep.

State Highway 271 out of Tyler was partially blocked and Tyler Policeman Leroy Waterman said it was the worst flood in that city in 10 years.

Some 25 or 30 people live in the trailer park. Many moved their trailers to higher ground.

Constable Bill Hall said lightning hit five oil tanks and a service station at Hawkins and that between 7,000 and 8,000 barrels of oli were destroyed. The fire burned into the evening but was under control.

Origin Of Easter Shows The Power Of Christianity

The origin of Easter reveals the power of Christianity. Actually, its roots reach far back into paganism, when there were many, many gods. Easter month was dedicated to the Goddess of Spring. Only her name survives today to tell of the devotion the people proclaimed for her before the advent of Christianity.

The Easter date, too, was originally set at the time the festival of spring was observed. The Feast of the Passover, the death, burial, and resurrection of Jesus came somewhere near the time — and the powerful force of Christianity took over the pagan celebration.

Easter today is the chief festival of the Christian year. Characterized by solemnity and joy, beauty and simplicity, loud hosannas and silent prayer, the chant of a priest and the laughter of a child, Easter week is observed by most everyone in northeast Louisiana.

Today there are sunrise services, Easter sermons, communion observances, cantatas, a parade of beautifully - gowned young ladies, and even bunnies to observe Easter. None is out of place.

Catholic ceremonies are resplendent with beauty and feeling. Faithfully they seek to follow Christ's journey to the cross, to the tomb, and the resurrection. By baptism they are individually made sharers in the saving death and resurrection of Christ. Solemnly they celebrate His passage from death to resurrection. But Easter does not end with the services on Sunday. Each day through the year they recall the resurrection: "Alleluia, Praise the Lord." He has passed from death to resurrection!

Protestant services are varied and simple. Some begin with sunrise services, when the dawn comes to bring a day set aside for remembering that the tomb is empty. Some observe the day with cantatas when beautiful voices are lifted in song to praise the one who lives on high. All have a sermon of dedication. Can you not hear the voices, too, raised by an humble congregation singing "He Arose"? He lives forever!

There is worshipful solemnity, and there is gaiety. As Jesus died to give new life, as he discarded the crown of thorns and the dark tomb, people discard the dark, drab clothes of winter and don the Easter frock. And everyone dons a brighter smile, a more vigorous handshake. Eastertime has come again. With it, spring, and hope.

Thump, thump. Is that the Easter bunny? Yes, he, too, makes his rounds on Easter day, and, for the children who do not yet understand fully the significance of the day as do their parents, he leaves a new egg. And what is an egg? An egg is the beginning—of life and of faith.

If we can look at one Easter observance and see the beauty of God; if we can look at another, void of any ornamentation, and see the simplicity of God; if we can hear the sound of music and Eastersong, and hear the voice of God; if we can look at a beautiful dress and an exquisite hat and see the joy of God; if we can lok at a rosy-cheeked child in an Easter frock, skipping and laughing, looking for eggs, and see our hope and our only future — we have seen God.

WEEK IN BUSINESS

Most Opinion On Business Outlook Still Optimistic

By WALTER BREEDE JR.

NEW YORK, April 20 (AP)—Business may level off in the months ahead. But it should come back strong in the fourth quarter.

Opinion was far from unanimous. But most of it was optimistic.

Bolstering confidence in the economy was a report from President Eisenhower's Council of Economic Advisers on the sum total of all business activity in the first three months this year. This total is measured on an economic yardstick called the "gross national product."

In the first quarter of 1957, the nation's gross national product climbed to a record high. Despite soft spots, cutbacks and layoffs, the economy as a whole raced along at a whirlwind pace of 427 billion dollars a year. That's three per cent more than in the booming fourth quarter of 1956. It's 2312 per cent greater than in last year's first quarter.

In striking fashion, the GNP report pointed up the mixed complexion of business. Spending by corporations on new plant and equipment — one of the main props of the long boom — turned down in the January-March period. But increased spending by individual consumers, and by government agencies, more than took up the slack, pushing total activity to a new record.

The obvious conclusion: in today's economy, when business falls off in one place, it's likely to pick up sharply in another.

You could find plenty of such ups and downs this week in the latest batch of corporate earnings reports.

Announcing or forecasting fat increases in profits for the first three months were such leaders as General Electric—up 16 per cent—Dupont, American Machine & Foundry, Caterpiller Tractor, Sun Oil and Chrysler.

The list reporting lower profits included an equally impressive assortment of blue chips: Aluminum Co. of America — Down 23 per cent from a year ago —Johns-Manville, M. Lowestein Sons, National Dairy Products, United States Rubber, and Union Carbide. Some reported falling profits on rising sales. National Dairy attributed this apparent paradox to "the continuing rise in the cost of doing business."

Retail merchants, many of them concerned about lagging Easter sales, had cause for joy. An 11th-hour buying surge was expected to boost the nation's total Easter trade slightly above last year's levels.

For the year as a whole, retailers were told to expect a sales increase of 3 per cent. That, said President Richard H. Rice of the National Retail Dry Goods Assn., is the least they'll need to keep profits on a par with 1956.

Signs of possible improvement in the long-depressed appliance industry were noted this week: the Youngstown Kitchens division of American Radiator Standard Sanitary Corp. put its plant at Salem, Ohio, on a two-shift basis. The plant had been operating on a single shift since October.

Best news for auto dealers was word that new car inventories were being kept within bounds, thanks to stepped-up sales and factory cutbacks. Field stocks on April 1 amounted to 763,000 cars, as compared to almost 900,000 at the same time last year.

Home builders were told this week that the outlook is improving slightly. President John F. Austin Jr. of the Mortgage Bankers Assn. of America said banks and insurance companies are making more cash available for home loans, and the tight mortgage market has eased a bit. But, said Austin, high interest rates are here to stay.

TO AID FARMERS

$100 Million U.S. Research Plan Sought

By OVID A. MARTIN

WASHINGTON, April 18 (AP) — A government commission recommended today that Uncle Sam set up a broadened 100 million dollar a year research program to put more farm products into industrial uses and to develop new crops to replace present surplus ones.

It said such a program is needed to help improve farm incomes and to bring about a "profitable" consumption of the output of a "free and efficient" agriculture.

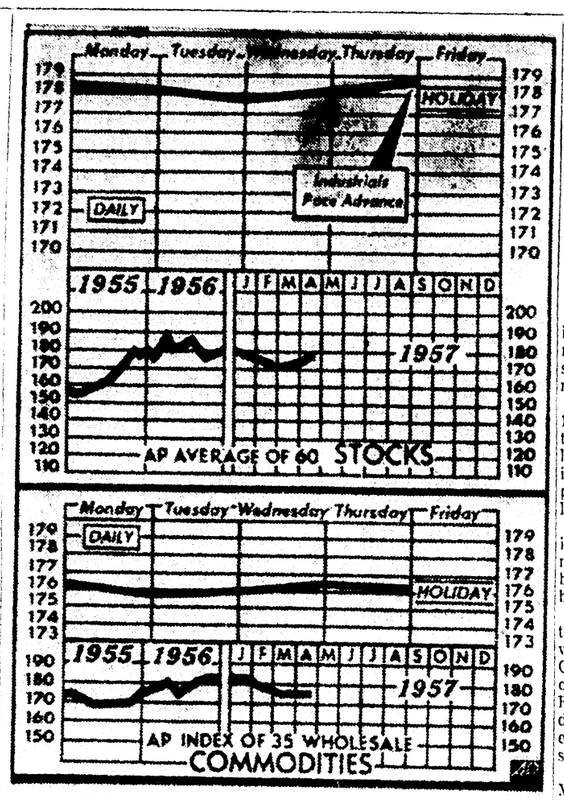
The commission on increased industrial uses of agricultural products—authorized by Congress last year and its five members appointed by President Eisenhower—made its recommendations in a report to Congress. It had studied the problem of farm surpluses and potential industrial uses for the past eight months.

It declared that agriculture has been "researched" out of many of its markets by more aggressive industries and by lagging research in the field of utilization of farm commodities. As a result, it added, costly farm surpluses are piling up and the government is being forced to spend billions for farm aid.

Members of the commission are J. Leroy Welsh, Omaha, Neb., grain operator and regent of the University of Nebraska, chairman; George Henry Coppers, Englewood, N.J., president National Biscuit Co.; Dr. Karl D. Butler, Ithaca, N.Y., farm counselor; Dr. Frank J. Welch, Lexington, Ky., dean of the College of Agriculture of the University of Kentucky; and Dr. Charles R. Sayre, Scott, Miss., president of Delta and Pine Land Co.

The commission report carried a broad list of possible research projects which, if initiated at once, would cost 211 million dollars a year. It turned thumbs down, however, on long-discussed proposals that grains be used to produce alcohol for motor fuel and for producing synthetic rubber. It said these proposals were not economically feasible.

The commission envisioned broad use of farm crops in making such products as paper, adhesives, coatings, insecticides, plastics, synthetic fibers, structural materials, industrial oils, antibiotics, medicines, waxes, improved cotton textiles, waterproofing materials, improved detergents as well as chemical materials.



STOCK AVERAGE ADVANCES AGAIN

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced for the eighth consecutive week, closing this week at 178.8 from 178.3 a week earlier. The commodity index remained unchanged this week at 176.2. Gains and losses were about evenly divided. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

UP 11 3-4 FOR WEEK

Lukens Continues To Pace Markets

NEW YORK, April 20 (AP) —The Stock Market consolidated recent gains this week and moved ahead a bit.

Wall Street was encouraged that the average turnover remained at more than two million shares a day, making the brokerage business profitable once more.

The market ended the week with a remarkable display of confidence. Wall Street pinned this rally on no particular piece of news but rather on the good technical conditions.

Although the market as a whole made very slight movements to the plus or minus side in the first three trading days, aluminums, oils and selected issues in other groups made some wide moves. On the final trading day, which put the week to the upside on balance, it was the industrials which were the pacemakers while rails declined an utilities were unchanged on average.

The terrific jump of 113/4 by Lukens Steel was in a class by itself. Other gains included Gulf Oil 5⅝, Kaiser Aluminum 2¾, General Electric 2⅞, Philadelphia & Reading 3½ and El Paso Natural Gas, 1⅞.

The Associated Press average rose 50 cents to $178.80. This was the eighth consecutive weekly rise in the average. Most advances have been very slight.

The week's news from business, economics and politics was mixed but reports from annual meetings of companies were favorable on the whole.

The five most active issues on the New York Stock Exchange this week were: Lukens Steel, up 113/4, at 88⅜; St. Regis Paper, off 3/8 at 33; Bethlehem Steel, up 1/4 at 44⅜; Raytheon, up 1 at 20; and Sperry Rand, up 1⅜ at 22⅝.

Cotton Shows Irregularity During Week

At the close of trading Thursday afternoon, active futures contracts on the New York Cotton Exchange were up $1.10 a bale to down 80 cents a bale from the previous week. The Exchange was closed on Good Friday.

Nearby May and July deliveries scored the only net gains for the short week, up 65 cents to $1.10 a bale. The more distant positions were off 20 to 80 cents. Nearby July and distant March and May contracts touched new life-of-contract highs.

Short covering and price fixing bolstered prices of old crop months while reports of cool wet weather, which delayed soil preparation and planting over a wide area of the cotton belt, strengthened distant months.

Profit-taking cut into earlier gains, however. At week's end new crop positions sagged, following President Eisenhower's announcement that the administration is proram. The planned proram would make farmers less dependent on federal subsidies, it was planning a new long-range farm program. The planned program would make farmers less dependent on federal subsidies, it was pointed out.

Exports of U. S. cotton during the seven days ended April 15 were estimated by the New York Cotton Exchange Service Bureau at 194,000 bales. This compares with 105,000 bales the previous week and 97,000 in the like week last year.

For the current season through April 15, exports were estimated at 5,933,000 bales, against only 1,338,000 bales at approximately the same time last year.

Traders noted that the Census Bureau placed exports for the first seven months of the cuerrent crop year (August through February) at 4,600,000 bales, as compared to 842,000 for the same period a year ago. Shipments abroad for the first seven months of the current season were the largest for any similar period since 1939-40.

Auto Industry Keeps Output Under Control

By DAVID J. WILKIE
AP Automotive Editor

DETROIT, April 20 (AP)—The auto industry is still building slightly more cars than its retailing division is selling, but inventories remain under sharp control.

One thing that stands out in the 1957 model year at this time is that there will be no repetition of last year's distress selling, with its somewhat chaotic effect on prices and profits at the retail level.

New car sales are up but the increase still is not sufficient to merit the designation of a spring boom. Some retail sources say the boom still can appear.

But whether it comes or not there isn't anything very much wrong with the industry over-all. Chrysler has just reported its first quarter sales topped $1,100,000,000; Ford continues to report growing demand for its product and General Motors also is experiencing sales increases.

Contrary to expectations the March sales upturn, while gratifying, was not broad enough to bring an upsurge in assembly line output. This is especially true of General Motors where output continues under restriction.

April output of the assembly plants is expected to total 561,500 units. This would compare with 578,826 assemblies in March. It would be the lowest monthly volume so far in 1957. But it still would top the total of April a year ago—547,617 units.

Despite the reported upturn in its retail deliveries, General Motors still has given no indication of increasing its assemblies. It has been running more than 162,000 units behind its nearly 1,200,000 unit output of the January to mid-April period last year.

There is a great deal of behind-the-scenes activity in General Motors aimed at stimulating retail deliveries. Each of its several car divisions has had top level executives in the field holding dealer meetings anl strategy aimed at increasing sales volume is being plotted more intensely than ever before.

Announcement that Studebaker-Packard will introduce a new low-priced economy model and at the same time take over the marketing of the German built Daimler-Benz cars caused more than a little speculation in automotive quarters this week.

There is wide agreement that a new low priced model maintaining the styling appeal of the Studebaker-Packard line should find a substantial market. Some trade sources also profess to believe Studebaker-Packard could boost sales of the Daimler-Benz cars, especially the Mercedes-Benz models. These latter models have engineering features just beginning to appear on American-made cars, like fuel injection systems, swing axles and other refinements.

Generally, however, much of the appeal of the Daimler-Benz units would be in the so-called "prestige" market. It isn't much of a secret that sales of the most recent American-built "prestige" cars have been disappointing.

Ford's Continental offers an example. Registration figures for January and February of this year showed only 138 listings for Continental compared with 379 in the same period last year. Production during the firs' quarter of 1957, meanwhile, dropped to 278 units from 767 in the like period last year.

The Continental has been called the $10,000 car. Cadillac's ElDorado brougham costs in excess of $13,000. The top of the Daimler-Benz line probably will match the latter in price tags.

Trouble Seen Ahead For Second Natural Gas Bill

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, April 20 (AP)—Despite President Eisenhower's approval, the new natural gas bill before Congress may be heading for trouble.

The bill includes some features which oil and gas operators consider attractive. But its proposed outright recognition of federal controls over gas prices apparently took most operators by surprise.

President Eisenhower last year vetoed a bill which would have freed wellhead prices from federal control. The new bill would authorize the Federal Power Commission (FPC) to establish reasonable market prices after considering natural gas as a commodity instead of as a public utility.

Abandonment of the current public utility rate base cost-of-service formula would be good news to gas producers but it remains to be seen whether they will accept a modified form of federal controls. Industry spokesmen who supported bills vetoed by Presidents Eisenhower and Truman included among their arguments a warning that recognition of federal controls, however small, could lead to even broader regulatory authority.

Eisenhower says his aides have told him the new bill appears to meet the criteria which he fixed last year in his veto message.

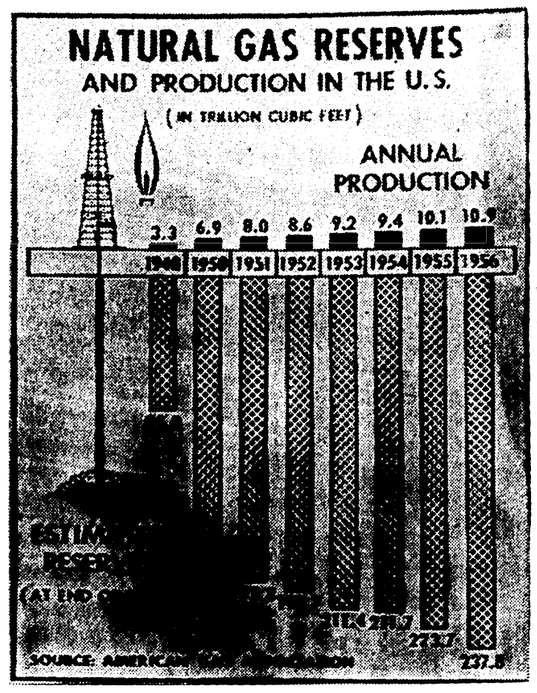
Last year's bill was vetoed because of what the President called "arrogant" lobbying by a small segment of the industry. He endorsed principles, however, which would protect both the producer and the consumer.

Olin Culberson, chairman of the Texas Railroad Commission, said the new bill does not provide safeguards needed by gas producers.

"I am not happy over its provisions," he said.

Ernest Thompson, senior member of the commission, said he was very happy over the President's remarks, adding that a reasonable market price is all any producer has been seeking.

"However the consumer must realize that federal regulation would not protect him from an increase in price," Thompson said.



NATURAL GAS RESERVES CLIMB

Natural gas reserves in the United States climbed to an all-time high of 237.8 trillion cubic feet at the start of 1957. Production during 1956 hit a record of 10.9 trillion cubic feet but additional proved recoverable reserves amounted to 25 trillion cubic feet. This resulted in a net gain of 14.1 trillion cubic feet, the greatest one-year advance recorded by the American Gas Association.

Chicago Grain Market Shows Dip For Week

CHICAGO (UP) — Grains on the board of trade closed lower this week. Closing prices were mixed, ranging from fractional losses to up to several cents decline.

December oats contracts were the only one on the board which showed a price gain — 3-8 cents over last week's close.

Compared to Friday's closing a week ago, wheat was off 3-8 to 2 1-4 cents; corn was off 5-8 to 1 1-4; oats were up 3-8 to off 1 1-2; rye was off 1-2 to 2 3-4 cents; soybeans were off 1 to 1 7-8 cents.

Monday's market was highlighted by the introduction of new wheat trading. Increased receipts at terminals and a let-up in export business early in the week helped pull prices down, and Monday's market closed with grains lower.

Midweek found trade becoming lighter, with fairly active profit-taking and hedge-selling in most grains. Export activity increased somewhat, but continued reports of good weather helped move prices lower in general.

The most significant factor in wheat trading was the firmness of old crop May contracts. These prices managed to hold their own, while new crop months were showing the effect of the good moisture over the Southwest.

BILLION - DOLLAR DEVELOPMENT

Giant Swedish Project To Open Canadian Wilds

By LARRY STANWOOD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER, April 20 (CP)—The treasure chest of British Columbia's northland—mysterious, elusive, and challenging—continues to dare man to rip off its lid and clutch the wealth within.

1. A billion-dollar plan to develop a 40,000 square mile tract known as the Rocky Mountain trench, stretching from Prince George in the middle of the province to the Yukon boundary, announced recently by Swedish financier Axel Wenner-Gren.

2. Agreement by the federal government to share the cost of a 12-million dollar highway to a point near the Yukon border, opening the western half of the north.

A few corners of the strong-box have been pried apart and some of the riches have spilled out. But nature fights back the invaders with the same resources that contain her wealth: rocky peaks and glaciers; muskey and rampaging rivers.

British Columbia reaps from agriculture, fishing, forestry and mining— developed mostly in the southern portion—an annual income of more than $1,350,000,000. Of the total, more than 60 per cent comes from the forest.

In addition, about 80 million dollars worth of aluminum a year is produced at the Kitimat smelter of Aluminum Co. of Canada. By 1959, production is expected to be 150 millions annually.

Only since the second World War has industry focused acute attention north of the 53rd Parallel. A 50-million dollar Columbia Cellulose Co. pulp mill was built at Prince Rupert in 1949.

More than 350 million dollars was spent in five years and the aluminum plant is still expanding.

A model city of more than 12,000 has mushroomed in the wilderness, 40 miles to the nearest civilization.

On the heels of Kitimat, in 1952, Frobisher-backed interests came up with plans for a 700-million-dollar metallurgical -chemical-forestry center in northwest British Columbia.

The ambitious plan hit snags. Surveys are still going on in the Atlin area for the project, but no work has been started. Attention shifted south until the Wenner-Gren proposal was made public.

Estimated to cost an ultimate two billion dollars, this plan calls for construction of a monorail railway up the Rocky Mountain Trench to join the B.C.-owned Pacific Great Eastern Railway with the Yukon border; pulp mills, steel mills and other metallurgical industries; and model communities complete with schools, hospitals and technical institutes.

The area embraces 40,000 acres of uninhabited country from 10 to 20 miles wide, described as a huge geological fault running north of Prince George into the Yukon.

It includes an estimated 100 million dollars worth of timber, 750 million dollars worth of hydroelectrical potential and unknown mineral resources.

Wenner-Gren B.C. Development Co. has deposited $500,000 with the B.C. government for the right to survey the area for its industrial potential. Cost of the survey, mostly aerial, is estimated at five million dollars. Results will determine further action.

The proposal has been received with mixed enthusiasm. Some members of Parliament called it a give-away.

Premier Bennett says the government has given Wenner-Gren "nothing . . . and we have $500,000 in the treasury."

While the proposal was being debated in the Legislature, the federal government announced it would split costs with B.C. on a 12-million dollar highway into the north from Stewart at the head of Portland Canal, the northernmost part of the province.

The 250-mile road would run through an area of potential mineral wealth to Cassiar, a company town of 800 near the Yukon border, which is supported by a productive asbestos mine.

Missouri Pacific Directors Seek Support In Proxy Fight

ST. LOUIS, April 20 (AP) —Management of the Missouri Pacific Railroad, engaged in a proxy battle with an opposition group seeking to elect four directors to the board, is appealing to the railroad's stockholders for support.

T. C. Davis of New York, who was MoPac board chairman when the company was in bankruptcy, is a member of the opposition slate.

"We know little of their present purpose and ambitions, except that they are manifestly opposed to your management," MoPac President P. J. Neff said in a letter to stockholders.

"In view of the fact that your company so recently emerged from its 23-year reorganization proceedings, that it has just completed a highly successful year your management had hoped there would be no contest for the election of directors."

Five directors will be named to the 15-member board at the May 14 stockholders meeting in St. Louis, the first such meeting since the company emerged from bankruptcy.

The management also assailed the action of Thomas B. Shearman of Lake Charles, La., a member of the opposing slate, in filing suit in Circuit Court at Independence, Mo., seeking a change from the staggered method of electing board members. The suit asked that all 15-members be elected annually instead of five being named each year to three-year terms.

"We have no alternative but to vigorously oppose Mr. Shearman's 11th hour attack on a feature of the reorganization plan which we propose to carry out in accordance with orders of the Interstate Commerce Commission and the U. S. District Court," he said.

WEEK IN BUSINESS

Most Opinion On Business Outlook Still Optimistic

By WALTER BREEDE JR.

NEW YORK, April 20 (AP)—Business may level off in the months ahead. But it should come back strong in the fourth quarter.

Opinion was far from unanimous. But most of it was optimistic.

Bolstering confidence in the economy was a report from President Eisenhower's Council of Economic Advisers on the sum total of all business activity in the first three months this year. This total is measured on an economic yardstick called the "gross national product."

In the first quarter of 1957, the nation's gross national product climbed to a record high. Despite soft spots, cutbacks and layoffs, the economy as a whole raced along at a whirlwind pace of 427 billion dollars a year. That's three per cent more than in the booming fourth quarter of 1956. It's 2½ per cent greater than in last year's first quarter.

In striking fashion, the GNP report pointed up the mixed complexion of business. Spending by corporations on new plant and equipment — one of the main props of the long boom — turned down in the January-March period. But increased spending by individual consumers, and by government agencies, more than took up the slack, pushing total activity to a new record.

The obvious conclusion: in today's economy, when business falls off in one place, it's likely to pick up sharply in another.

You could find plenty of such ups and downs this week in the latest batch of corporate earnings reports.

Announcing or forecasting fat increases in profits for the first three months were such leaders as General Electric—up 16 per cent—Dupont, American Machine & Foundry, Caterpiller Tractor, Sun Oil and Chrysler.

The list reporting lower profits included an equally impressive assortment of blue chips: Aluminum Co. of America — Down 23 per cent from a year ago —Johns-Manville, M. Lowestein Sons, National Dairy Products, United States Rubber, and Union Carbide. Some reported falling profits on rising sales. National Dairy attributed this apparent paradox to "the continuing rise in the cost of doing business."

Retail merchants, many of them concerned about lagging Easter sales, had cause for joy. An 11th-hour buying surge was expected to boost the nation's total Easter trade slightly above last year's levels.

For the year as a whole, retailers were told to expect a sales increase of 3 per cent. That, said President Richard H. Rice of the National Retail Dry Goods Assn., is the least they'll need to keep profits on a par with 1956.

Signs of possible improvement in the long-depressed appliance industry were noted this week: the Youngstown Kitchens division of American Radiator Standard Sanitary Corp. put its plant at Salem, Ohio, on a two-shift basis. The plant had been operating on a single shift since October.

Best news for auto dealers was word that new car inventories were being kept within bounds, thanks to stepped-up sales and factory cutbacks. Field stocks on April 1 amounted to 763,000 cars, as compared to almost 900,000 at the same time last year.

Home builders were told this week that the outlook is improving slightly. President John F. Austin Jr. of the Mortgage Bankers Assn. of America said banks and insurance companies are making more cash available for home loans, and the tight mortgage market has eased a bit. But, said Austin, high interest rates are here to stay.

TO AID FARMERS

$100 Million U.S. Research Plan Sought

By OVID A. MARTIN

WASHINGTON, April 18 (AP) — A government commission recommended today that Uncle Sam set up a broadened 100 million dollar a year research program to put more farm products into industrial uses and to develop new crops to replace present surplus ones.

It said such a program is needed to help improve farm incomes and to bring about a "profitable" consumption of the output of a "free and efficient" agriculture.

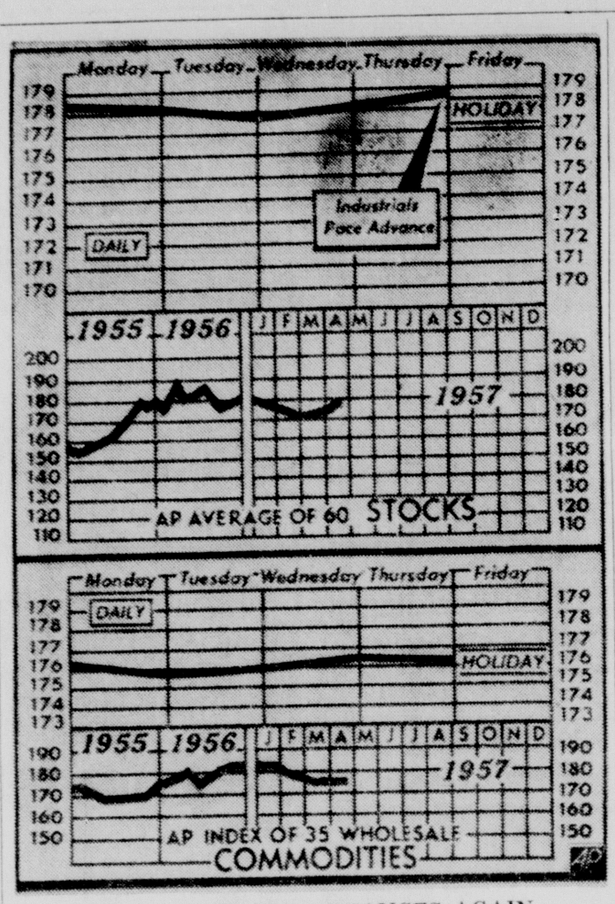
The commission on increased industrial uses of agricultural products—authorized by Congress last year and its five members appointed by President Eisenhower —made its recommendations in a report to Congress. It had studied the problem of farm surpluses and potential industrial uses for the past eight months.

It declared that agriculture has been "researched" out of many of its markets by more aggressive industries and by lagging research in the field of utilization of farm commodities. As a result, it added, costly farm surpluses are piling up and the government is being forced to spend billions for farm aid.

Members of the commission are J. Leroy Welsh, Omaha, Neb., grain operator and regent of the University of Nebraska, chairman; George Henry Coppers, Englewood, N.J., president National Biscuit Co.; Dr. Karl D. Butler, Ithaca, N.Y., farm counselor; Dr. Frank J. Welch, Lexington, Ky., dean of the College of Agriculture of the University of Kentucky; and Dr. Charles R. Sayre, Scott, Miss., president of Delta and Pine Land Co.

The commission report carried a broad list of possible research projects which, if initiated at once, would cost 211 million dollars a year. It turned thumbs down, however, on long-discussed proposals that grains be used to produce alcohol for motor fuel and for producing synthetic rubber. It said these proposals were not economically feasible.

The commission envisioned broad use of farm crops in making such products as paper, adhesives, coatings, insecticides, plastics, synthetic fibers, structural materials, industrial oils, antibiotics, medicines, waxes, improved cotton textiles, waterproofing materials, improved detergents as well as chemical materials.



STOCK AVERAGE ADVANCES AGAIN

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced for the eighth consecutive week, closing this week at 178.8 from 178.3 a week earlier. The commodity index remained unchanged this week at 176.2. Gains and losses were about evenly divided. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

Lukens Continues To Pace Markets

NEW YORK, April 20 (AP) —The Stock Market consolidated recent gains this week and moved ahead a bit.

Wall Street was encouraged that the average turnover remained at more than two million shares a day, making the brokerage business profitable once more.

The market ended the week with a remarkable display of confidence. Wall Street pinned this rally on no particular piece of news but rather on the good technical conditions.

Although the market as a whole made very slight movements to the plus or minus side in the first three trading days, aluminums, oils and selected issues in other groups made some wide moves. On the final trading day, which put the week to the upside on balance, it was the industrials which were the pacemakers while rails declined an utilities were unchanged on average.

The terrific jump of 11¾ by Lukens Steel was in a class by itself. Other gains included Gulf Oil 5⅜, Kaiser Aluminum 2¾, General Electric 2⅞, Philadelphia & Reading 3½ and El Paso Natural Gas, 1⅞.

The Associated Press average rose 50 cents to $178.80. This was the eighth consecutive weekly rise in the average. Most advances have been very slight.

The week's news from business, economics and politics was mixed but reports from annual meetings of companies were favorable on the whole.

The five most active issues on the New York Stock Exchange this week were: Lukens Steel, up 11¾, at 88⅞; St. Regis Paper, off 3⅞ at 33; Bethlehem Steel, up ¼ at 44¾; Raytheon, up 1 at 20; and Sperry Rand, up 1⅜ at 22⅝.

Cotton Shows Irregularity During Week

At the close of trading Thursday afternoon, active futures contracts on the New York Cotton Exchange were up $1.10 a bale to down 80 cents a bale from the previous week. The Exchange was closed on Good Friday.

Nearby May and July deliveries scored the only net gains for the short week, up 65 cents to $1.10 a bale. The more distant positions were off 20 to 80 cents. Nearby July and distant March and May contracts touched new life-of-contract highs.

Short covering and price fixing bolstered prices of old crop months while reports of cool wet weather, which delayed soil preparation and planting over a wide area of the cotton belt, strengthened distant months.

Profit-taking cut into earlier gains, however. At week's end new crop positions sagged, following President Eisenhower's announcement that the administration is proram. The planned proram would make farmers less dependent on federal subsidies, it was planning a new long-range farm program. The planned program would make farmers less dependent on federal subsidies, it was pointed out.

Exports of U. S. cotton during the seven days ended April 15 were estimated by the New York Cotton Exchange Service Bureau at 194,000 bales. This compares with 105,000 bales the previous week and 97,000 in the like week last year.

For the current season through April 15, exports were estimated at 5,933,000 bales, against only 1,338,000 bales at approximately the same time last year.

Traders noted that the Census Bureau placed exports for the first seven months of the cucrrent crop year (August through February) at 4,600,000 bales, as compared to 842,000 for the same period a year ago. Shipments abroad for the first seven months of the current season were the largest for any similar period since 1939-40.

Auto Industry Keeps Output Under Control

By DAVID J. WILKIE
AP Automotive Editor

DETROIT, April 20 (AP)—The auto industry is still building slightly more cars than its retailing division is selling, but inventories remain under sharp control.

One thing that stands out in the 1957 model year at this time is that there will be no repetition of last year's distress selling, with its somewhat chaotic effect on prices and profits at the retail level.

New car sales are up but the increase still is not sufficient to merit the designation of a spring boom. Some retail sources say the boom still can appear.

But whether it comes or not there isn't anything very much wrong with the industry over-all. Chrysler has just reported its first quarter sales topped $1,100,000,000; Ford continues to report growing demand for its product and General Motors also is experiencing sales increases.

Contrary to expectations the March sales upturn, while gratifying, was not broad enough to bring an upsurge in assembly line output. This is especially true of General Motors where output continues under restriction.

April output of the assembly plants is expected to total 561,500 units. This would compare with 578,826 assemblies in March. It would be the lowest monthly volume so far in 1957. But it still would top the total of April a year ago—547,617 units.

Despite the reported upturn in its retail deliveries, General Motors still has given no indication of increasing its assemblies. It has been running more than 162,000 units behind its nearly 1,200,000 unit output of the January to mid-April period last year.

There is a great deal of behind-the-scenes activity in General Motors aimed at stimulating retail deliveries. Each of its several car divisions has had top level executives in the field holding dealer meetings anl strategy aimed at increasing sales volume is being plotted more intensely than ever before.

Announcement that Studebaker-Packard will introduce a new low-priced economy model and at the same time take over the marketing of the German built Daimler-Benz cars caused more than a little speculation in automotive quarters this week.

There is wide agreement that a new low priced model maintaining the styling appeal of the Studebaker-Packard line should find a substantial market. Some trade sources also profess to believe Studebaker-Packard could boost sales of the Daimler-Benz cars, especially the Mercedes-Benz models. These latter models have engineering features just beginning to appear on American-made cars, like fuel injection systems, swing axles and other refinements.

Generally, however, much of the appeal of the Daimler-Benz units would be in the so-called "prestige" market. It isn't much of a secret that sales of the most recent American-built "prestige" cars have been disappointing.

Ford's Continental offers an example. Registration figures for January and February of this year showed only 138 listings for Continental compared with 379 in the same period last year. Production during the firs quarter of 1957, meanwhile, dropped to 278 units from 767 in the like period last year.

The Continental has been called the $10,000 car. Cadillac's ElDorado brougham costs in excess of $13,000. The top of the Daimler-Benz line probably will match the latter in price tags.

Trouble Seen Ahead For Second Natural Gas Bill

By MAX B. SKELTON

The bill includes some features which oil and gas operators consider attractive. But its proposed outright recognition of federal controls over gas prices apparently took most operators by surprise.

President Eisenhower last year vetoed a bill which would have freed wellhead prices from federal control. The new bill would authorize the Federal Power Commission (FPC) to establish reasonable market prices after considering natural gas as a commodity instead of as a public utility.

Abandonment of the current public utility rate base cost-of-service formula would be good news to gas producers but it remains to be seen whether they will accept a modified form of federal controls. Industry spokesmen who supported bills vetoed by Presidents Eisenhower and Truman included among their arguments a warning that recognition of federal controls, however small, could lead to even broader regulatory authority.

Eisenhower says his aides have told him the new bill appears to meet the criteria which he fixed last year in his veto message.

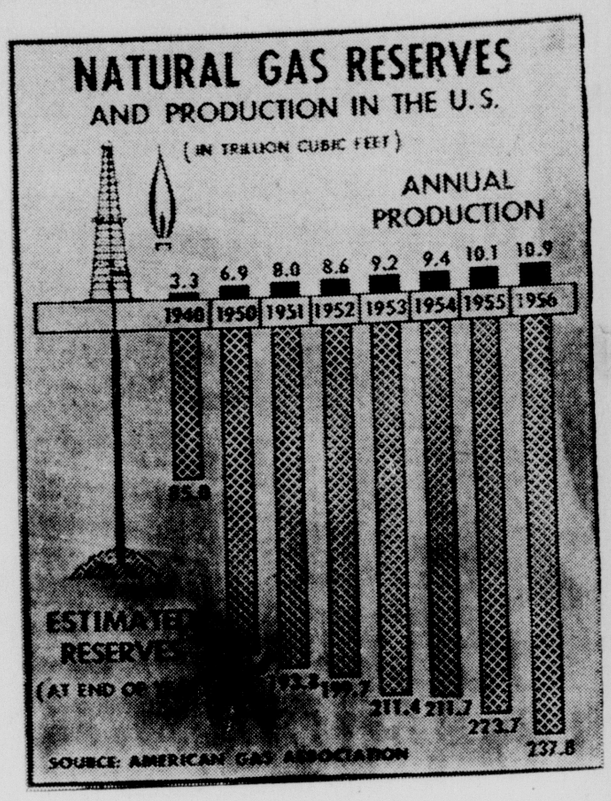
Last year's bill was vetoed because of what the President called "arrogant" lobbying by a small segment of the industry. He endorsed principles, however, which would protect both the producer and the consumer.

Olin Culberson, chairman of the Texas Railroad Commission, said the new bill does not provide safeguards needed by gas producers.

"I am not happy over its provisions," he said.

Ernest Thompson, senior member of the commission, said he was very happy over the President's remarks, adding that a reasonable market price is all any producer has been seeking.

"However the consumer must realize that federal regulation would not protect him from an increase in price," Thompson said.



NATURAL GAS RESERVES CLIMB

Natural gas reserves in the United States climbed to an all-time high of 237.8 trillion cubic feet at the start of 1957. Production during 1956 hit a record of 10.9 trillion cubic feet but additional proved recoverable reserves amounted to 25 trillion cubic feet. This resulted in a net gain of 14.1 trillion cubic feet, the greatest one-year advance recorded by the American Gas Association.

Chicago Grain Market Shows Dip For Week

CHICAGO (UP) — Grains on the board of trade closed lower this week. Closing prices were mixed, ranging from fractional losses to up to several cents decline.

December oats contracts were the only one on the board which showed a price gain — 3-8 cents over last week's close.

Compared to Friday's closing a week ago, wheat was off 3-8 to 2 1-4 cents; corn was off 5-8 to 1 1-4; oats were up 3-8 to off 1 1-2; rye was off 1-2 to 2 3-4 cents; soybeans were off 1 to 1 7-8 cents.

Monday's market was highlighted by the introduction of new wheat trading. Increased receipts at terminals and a let-up in export business early in the week helped pull prices down, and Monday's market closed with grains lower.

Midweek found trade becoming lighter, with fairly active profit-taking and hedge-selling in most grains. Export activity increased somewhat, but continued reports of good weather helped move prices lower in general.

The most significant factor in wheat trading was the firmness of old crop May contracts. These prices managed to hold their own, while new crop months were showing the effect of the good moisture over the Southwest.

BILLION - DOLLAR DEVELOPMENT

Giant Swedish Project To Open Canadian Wilds

By LARRY STANWOOD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER, April 20 (AP)—The treasure chest of British Columbia's northland—mysterious, elusive, and challenging—continues to dare man to rip off its lid and clutch the wealth within.

1. A billion-dollar plan to develop a 40,000 square mile tract known as the Rocky Mountain trench, stretching from Prince George in the middle of the province to the Yukon boundary, announced recently by Swedish financier Axel Wenner-Gren.

2. Agreement by the federal government to share the cost of a 12-million dollar highway to a point near the Yukon border, opening the western half of the north.

A few corners of the strong-box have been pried apart and some of the riches have spilled out. But nature fights back the invaders with the same resources that contain her wealth: rocky peaks and glaciers; muskey and rampaging rivers.

British Columbia reaps from agriculture, fishing, forestry and mining— developed mostly in the southern portion—an annual income of more than $1,350,000,000. Of the total, more than 60 per cent comes from the forest.

In addition, about 80 million dollars worth of aluminum a year is produced at the Kitimat smelter of Aluminum Co. of Canada. By 1959, production is expected to be 150 millions annually.

Only since the second World War has industry focused acute attention north of the 53rd Parallel. A 50-million dollar Columbia Cellulose Co. pulp mill was built at Prince Rupert in 1949.

More than 350 million dollars was spent in five years and the aluminum plant is still expanding.

A model city of more than 12,000 has mushroomed in the wilderness, 40 miles to the nearest civilization.

On the heels of Kitimat, in 1952, Frobisher-backed interests came up with plans for a 700-million-dollar metallurgical -chemical-forestry center in northwest British Columbia.

The ambitious plan hit snags. Surveys are still going on in the Atlin area for the project, but no work has been started. Attention shifted south until the Wenner-Gren proposal was made public.

Estimated to cost an ultimate two billion dollars, this plan calls for construction of a monorail railway up the Rocky Mountain Trench to join the B.C.-owned Pacific Great Eastern Railway with the Yukon border; pulp mills, steel mills and other metallurgical industries; and model communities complete with schools, hospitals and technical institutes.

The area embraces 40,000 acres of uninhabited country from 10 to 20 miles wide, described as a huge geological fault running north of Prince George into the Yukon.

It includes an estimated 100 million dollars worth of timber, 750 million dollars worth of hydroelectrical potential and unknown mineral resources.

Wenner-Gren B.C. Development Co. has deposited $500,000 with the B.C. government for the right to survey the area for its industrial potential. Cost of the survey, mostly aerial, is estimated at five million dollars. Results will determine further action.

The proposal has been received with mixed enthusiasm. Some members of Parliament called it a give-away.

Premier Bennett says the government has given Wenner-Gren "nothing . . . and we have $500,000 in the treasury."

While the proposal was being debated in the Legislature, the federal government announced it would split costs with B.C. on a 12-million dollar highway into the north from Stewart at the head of Portland Canal, the northernmost part of the province.

The 250-mile road would run through an area of potential mineral wealth to Cassiar, a company town of 800 near the Yukon border, which is supported by a productive asbestos mine.

Missouri Pacific Directors Seek Support In Proxy Fight

ST. LOUIS, April 20 (AP) —Management of the Missouri Pacific Railroad, engaged in a proxy battle with an opposition group seeking to elect four directors to the board, is appealing to the railroad's stockholders for support.

T. C. Davis of New York, who was MoPac board chairman when the company was in bankruptcy, is a member of the opposition slate.

"We know little of their present purpose and ambitions, except that they are manifestly opposed to your management," MoPac President P. J. Neff said in a letter to stockholders.

"In view of the fact that your company so recently emerged from its 23-year reorganization proceedings, that it has just completed a highly successful year your management had hoped there would be no contest for the election of directors."

Five directors will be named to the 15-member board at the May 14 stockholders meeting in St. Louis, the first such meeting since the company emerged from bankruptcy.

The management also assailed the action of Thomas B. Shearman of Lake Charles, La., a member of the opposing slate, in filing suit in Circuit Court at Independence,Mo., seeking a change from the staggered method of electing board members. The suit asked that all 15-members be elected annually instead of five being named each year to three-year terms.

"We have no alternative but to vigorously oppose Mr. Shearman's 11th hour attack on a feature of the reorganization plan which we propose to carry out in accordance with orders of the Interstate Commerce Commission and the U. S. District Court," he said.

"While our look and location have changed, our old policy is the same," he said. "As we approach our grand opening, we want to thank our landlord — The Western Star Lodge No. 24, F&AM ou. architects, contractors, subcontractors, mechanics and, most of all, our customers and friends who made our growth possible."

Twenty - seven valuable items have been set up as attendance prizes, and everyone is invited to register each time they're in the store between Monday and Friday night at 9:00, when the drawing will be made. There's nothing to buy and one need not be present to win.

Cotton Problems Studied Southwide

A painstaking examination of the numerous problems confronting the cotton farmer was made Friday in Memphis at a conference of mid-and deep-south cotton - belt representatives, John B. Filhiol, Jr., chairman of the cotton committee of the Farm Bureau in Ouachita parish, reported yesterday. The meeting was the second in a series of four being held in a 17-state cotton producing region.

Meetings within the various states are to be held within the next two weeks, Filhiol said, for presentation of the "overall cotton picture, in its many aspects." From these discussions, farm leaders hope to obtain suggesions for a program to be recommended at a May 10 conference of the cotton committee of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

The program which is finally decided upon as being the preferable course to pursue for the cotton - belt economy will receive the backing of the various cotton-industry groups, according to Filhiol.

Northeast Louisiana and the entire state were well represented at the meeting in Memphis. Attending from Ouachita parish were Fred Huenefeld, Jr., president of the parish Farm Bureau unit; Paul Ransom, chairman of the Louisiana Farm Bureau cotton committee, and Filhiol.

Solons Denounce Wheat Decision By Sec'y Benson

WASHINGTON, April 20 (UP)— Wheat state congressmen today vigorously protested Agriculture Secretary Ezra T. Benson's cut in wheat price supports. Two Democrats called on President Eisenhower to fire him.

Benson announced Friday that 1958 support prices on wheat would be lowered from $2 a bushel to $1.78. This is about 75 per cent of parity as compared with this year's level of about 80 per cent.

Rep. George S. McGovern (D-S. D.) wrote Eisenhower denouncing Benson's proposal as "irresponsible." He said it will mean a loss of more than 150-million dollars in income to the nation's wheat farmers next year.

McGovern told the President that Benson should be removed immediately and replaced "with someone more knowledgeable and understanding of farm problems and their effect upon all rural America."

A similar demand was made by Rep. Merwin Coad (D-Iowa) in a telegram to the President. Coad suggested that Eisenhower replace Benson with Former Rep. Clifford Hope (R-Kan.), onetime chairman of the House Agriculture Committee.

Coad said farmers already are "living on inventory and not on income." He added that "we cannot keep cutting the price and cutting the acreage and expect the farmer to live."

Army Exercise Sledge Hammer Starts In Lake Charles Wednesday

FORT POLK, La., April 20 (Special)— Exercise Sledge Hammer, the second phase of the Department of the Army Maneuvers to be held in Louisiana this spring will begin Wednesday and continue through May 24. Major General Edward G. Farrand, deputy exercise director, announced today.

Falling closely on the heels of King Cole, the exercise has a two-fold objective. First, to further the combat - readiness of the First Armored Division and, second, to conduct certain troop tests designed to improve the effectiveness of military units under tactical conditions.

The first troop test concerns the new concept of reconnaissance called SKY CAV II. It embraces the idea of incorporating, within the Armored Reconnaissance Squadron organic to the Armored Division, as specially equipped unit containing helicopters and light fixed - winged aircraft.

Utilizing photographic and electronic equipment, this unit is expected to increase the effectiveness of the Armored Reconnaissance Squadron in its traditional role as the eyes and ears of the division. This idea will, it is believed, greatly increased the ability of seeking out the enemy and gathering information so necessary for the field commander to intelligently conduct his battle.

The second test involves the employment of Bulk POL and Assault Pipeline Supply. This test seeks to improve means of gasoline supply of an armored division in the combat zone. By utilizing 'o'n the spot" filling stations and laying a flexible 4 inch assault pipeline along the zone of advance, gasoline can be moved at rapid speed to front line units, thereby assuring a continuous attack by armor.

Frisby Built, Wrecked Empire

Crumbling Brick House Is Symbol

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Many stories have been told and written of the fantastic life of Norman Frisby. An extensive amount of research went into preparation of this story in an effort to trace the "king's" life as he lived it. The writer checked records in five courthouses—Claiborne County, Miss., Tensas, Madison, Franklin and Concordia—and was assisted by the Old Natchez District Historical Society and the AP at Richmond, Va. which provided additional information. Numerous old-timers provided the colorful legend, and to all those who had a hand in helping publish this account of Frisby, gratitude is expressed We feel that those who have been fascinated through the years by the Old Brick House in Tensas Swamp will appreciate the detail.)

By SAM HANNA
Staff Writer

Empire of the swamplands? . . . castle in the woodlands?

Norman Frisby built it . . . Norman Frisby destroyed it.

He was a mortal man.

His was a dream to be king over a land raw with ideas and young with desires. His was an ambition to rise to great heights in a swamp that to this day defies conquest.

He bought thousands and thousands of acres rich in black soil, planted much of it in cotton and worked it with slaves, made his own brick, built a gin and began a brick mansion, straight-up, taller than the trees, a pinnacle over the surrounding countryside.

Over it he ruled; for it he lived; because of it he died.

Legend of the life of Norman Frisby as he lived it prior to the Civil War in Tensas Swamp today runs wilder than the swamp that has come back to claim what was once its own.

Buried Treasure

There are buried treasures and a hidden silver bell, and tales handed down from generation to generation left in the closet of making a rattling skeleton of the Southland.

Yet, as the father of seven minor children, he could have been a mild man, but one whose impatience drove him to be a tyrant in quest of success.

Regardless of his nature, however, fate and time did not ride with Norman Frisby, and a tragic death in a fight with an inlaw brought to an end probably the most fantastic story ever lived in this section of the country.

They said he was building the largest cotton plantation in the South, a kingdom of 40,000 acres, and a plantation home unequalled, three-stories high with a view of the lights of Vicksburg in one direction and those of Natchez in another, resplendid with trimmings and furniture shipped by stream from Natchez.

He was so rich he buried his gold, so cruel he killed the slave that dug the hole, and the land he owned was so mysterious it swallowed the silver bell everytime fortune-hunters came within sight. None of these tales have ever been proved.

MYSTERY

The old-timers said it was a mystery where Frisby came from, but the records show that he crossed the Mississippi River from Claiborne County, Miss. and maneuvered through property sales until his huge Palo Alto estate began to grow in the corner of Tensas, spreading into Franklin and Madison.

He owned property ir Claiborne County and had money — and access to more, either or both from a man named John E. Hall of Claiborne or his wife Anna—when he came; and there were those who thought and are some who still believe that he left treasure buried in the swamp.

Fresh-dug holes in the ruins are indicative that the spirit of Frisby is somewhat of a king even today —nearly 100 years after he died on the banks of Bayou Macon in Madison parish.

Frisby moved to Tensas in about 1855, six years after he bought his first property there. As a fast, shrewd opportunist, he purchased land through sheriff's sales and from several individuals, in one case buying a tract for $10 per acre and selling it shortly afterwards for $30 per acre.

It took him only 10 years to build the plantation, for property sales of Norman Frisby were numerous between 1850 and 1860. There is no way of determining just how many acres he did have. He owned a little over 19,000 at death, and probably sold that much before dying.

History told some that he planned to produce as much as 10,000 bales of cotton a year and raise enough food to make his plantation self - sufficient. It came down through the years of his making his own brick, but buying better in New Orleans, and of his bringing gin equipment from New Orleans, carried on a barge he built generated by the gin engine to navigate through the narrow Tensas River.

DEBTS MOUNT

As debts and law suits began to mount against Frisby and his property, he lived with his family in a small house from where he ran the operation of his plantation and the construction of the mansion.

One old-timer said, he knew a slave of Frisby's, who told of the unmerciful work and cruelty dealt them by the driving master. However, Frisby was said to have been as hard a worker as his slaves.

THE TRAIL OF FRISBY

Frisby's first move into Tensas was shown on Nov. 18, 1849 when he and David C. Griffing bought 1,158 acres from John E. Hall, Claiborne man with whom Frisby did much business.

Included in the sale were 31 slaves, ranging in age from 1 to 45, in names from Swean to David Redman. Both land and man cost the two $19,700.

His slaves dug dirt from the Tensas and built a levee around the mansion. Parts of the levee are still standing, and the river at one point runs into a sharp bluff where slaves a century ago took its bank.

Huge cypress trees were cut from a nearby brake and snaked through the woods and into the river, floating only a short distance to the site of the mansion. A scar was left on the bank. That too can be seen today.

There is no written detail of the house, but it was all brick, built on 10-foot tall pillars on a floor base 100 feet square. Buggs would have been run below the house. The interior was built of wood with furnishings from Natchez.

Records Non-Existent

Port records are non - existent there, and only the story that Frisby said his home would be as good as any in the old country, and Natchez newspaper ads from 1850-1890, indicate the nature of his shipments into the swamp.

He could have bought great artists busts, "tops in their field," marble and stone masons, mantles "of the finest," steps, iron railings, chimney tops, window sills and door facings, "highgrade" shingles, blinds, paint and varnishes, stained glass, door panels, and sashes for "steamboats, mansions and public buildings."

Importer and shipper H. M. Gastrell featured "lightning rods," a reflector against lightning. Would Frisby have been afraid and ordered one?

Possibly the silver bell was brought up from Natchez as a symbol of the supremacy of the empire, to be hanged from the top of the towering house, to be heard on still summer nights when Frisby would have sat in a top room and looked out over his darkened land below, looked to the lights of Vicksburg and Natchez, and listened to the spirituals of his harrassed slaves.

One man said he saw the bell, but explained that everytime he came within 30 yards of it, the swamp opened up and it sank below as though the land itself was Frisby's keeper. Another said he saw it once, but was never able to locate it again.

Superstitious, sure, but the scene of the remains of Frisby's mansion — known today as the Old Brick House — is much the same.

It's obscure from the world — 18 miles by river from one highway, a long walk through the swamp from another. Only the hunter and the fisherman visit there.

You climb the bluff from the river and walk a flat for about a hundred yards until it gradually comes into sight. It looks small at first and hidden by the dense saplings.

Silent, Alone

Silent, standing alone in the dark backwoods country, 32 pillars, some only nubbs, others intact with Frisby's personal design, mark the spot where the dream crumbled like the large heaps of brick piled in the center of the pillars where the house finally fell.

Vines have wrapped themselves around the pillars, and palmetto and plants are growing through the piles of brick, under which den uncountable snakes. Trees have sprung up, replacing the walls and spreading a roof of green. Little sunlight seeps through.

Except for the occasional song of a bird and signs of turkey and deer and the raccoon, the scene is empty of life—eerie in its remorse of yesteryear.

Quiet, silent, dead. Who walks there?

And then you get the feeling of not belonging. It seems to say "go away, leave him be."

But Norman Frisby was not the kind of man that is easily forgotten. It's hard to tell what possessed this man to shoot for a goal so far beyond that of those who surrounded him. However, it's easy to understand that a man that came so close to building a wonder left many enemies behind.

The Frisbys were a large family in Claiborne parish and from the number of property sales recorded there they were by no means poor. Yet the records fail to link their kin, and some could have possessed greater fortunes than their cousins.

Norman's brother, Thomas I. Frisby, was a lawyer in New Orleans. Another Frisby—Daniel W. —was shown to have sold a building Richmond, Va. So with Thomas being an educated man and Daniel owning property in Richmond, they could have originated there.

No Data

However, the Richmond court records, the Virginia State Library and the adjoining counties of Henrico and Chesterfield proved fruitless in producing data on Norman, Thomas and Daniel.

Nevertheless, the Frisbys of Mississippi and Louisiana stood well with men of respect and office. Brother Thomas bought 1,671 acres for $29,375 from H. M. Hymas and Judah P. Benjamin, the latter of whom as none other than the attorney general of the Confederate States of America.

Thomas made the purchase in New Orleans for Norman. Sixteen days later on April 18, 1954, Norman himself bought another tract from the Attorney General and Hymas—this time 785 acres for $11,200.

While the batchelor Thomas was in New Orleans practicing law and possibly mingling with Benjamin in society, Daniel W. And Aaron Frisby were old enough to be setting $200 bonds—as was the practice then—for their children to be married.

The marriage licenses in Claiborne go back to around 1843, but there was no record of Norman's bethrothal to Anna Joe Chambliss.

She no doubt was a young girl from a well-to-do family, as it was brought out in at least two property sales that she relinquished her rights "named from the matrimonial dotal," giving up entirely what she brought into the marriage.

At least it could be speculated of her young age, for she bore him seven children, a fact proving that Norman was not an old man at death. They couldn't have been married much over 20 years, and all their children were minors when Frisby died.

Norman had money, too, and paid $7,000 for 816 acres owned by Jesse O. Runell, the date of the sale being recorded as Oct. 16, 1845. Three years later he bought 896 acres of the "Samuel Hill Tract" in Claiborne from John E. Hall. He made that purchase for $800, which points out a vast difference in the value of land.

Then by 1854 he and Anna bought the remainder of the "Samuel Hill Tract," for $6,000. They bought it from Samuel L. Chambliss. Could it have been that Sam Chambliss was Annas father?

But the Frisbys were not alone as big land owners in Claiborne, for as they bought and sold, the Flowers family, at least one and perhaps two of them who were to play a predominant role in Frisby's doom to come, were spreading likewise.

Families Traced

Both the Frisbys and the Flowers can be traced from Mississippi through Madison and Tensas and finally into Franklin, buying and selling among themselves, back and forth between the two families.

So perhaps when Orlando H. Flowers, husband of Norman's sister, Gertrude, and Norman tangled on Nov. 24, 1864, a tension that had been building through the years had finally risen to a head.

It is doubtful that two men of such means would fight to one's death over a legandary stray mule.

There could have been any number of things and possibly a combination of all that would have caused tension between the two men.

Perhaps the succession of the old Frisby family arose, causing hard feelings between Norman and sister Gertrude and Orlando? Or perhaps the property sales were involved? And could it have been jealousy between the two?

All Tensas could have suspected that trouble was brewing on that summer day in 1855 when old Sheriff G. W. Williams posted a written notice at Waterproof, Kirk's Ferry and the Courthouse at St. Joseph announcing a property sale of 140 acres evolving from a suit between Orlando and Elisha Flowers of Kentu'.

Orlando owed Elisha money and Norman stepped in to buy the property for $1108. And a strange thing happened three years later when Norman — acting unlike the crafty trader that he was—and wife Anna sold 120 acres to Orlando for only $175. Did Anna influence the sale?

A year later Norman sold R. A. Flowers a half interest in a "considerable amount" of property for $11,425. Ten days later "Flowers and Frisby" sold 914 acres for $70,565 in Madison parish with Norman collecting the money and Anna again "relinquishing her rights." Was trouble caused between Norman and R. A. because of that?

So the seed had been planted by 1860, about when Norman stopped purchasing land for his plantation and began the mansion.

But Frisby's dream was still a gamble, for he at this time had gone into tremendous debt.

Not all of his land purchases were made by cash. In fact, he probably owed as much as he had paid out. And there was the operation of the plantation and the cost of building the mansion.

Frisby A Driver

So it was no wonder that Frisby was a driver. He had a mountainous deficit to overcome, and logically he suspected the sooner he put the empire on its feet the quicker his goal would be achieved.

Then what was life like on the plantation of Norman Frisby, his wife Anna and their one boy and six girls — Eugene, Matilda E., Alesta A., Emma, Ann E., Sallie and Mattie?

Was he building this kingdom for them? If so, what twist of irony brought about a business deal between man and wife? At death Norman owed Anna $25,530.

What had happened to David C. Griffing, the man with whom Frisby made his first purchase in Tensas?

Money was coming from several sources. He left this world owing John A. Stevenson $60,508.69, and his succession mentioned that there were "several creditors."

Frisby had reason to drive. He was in trouble. The king was making his last stand.

Some said he worked his slaves long hours in a vain attempt to capitalize off a climbing cotton market due to the Civil War.

It is at this point where the trial of Norman Frisby grows coldest. What was the man doing as news of advancing Union troops spread into the swamp?

He was said to have been building levees around the mansion to convert it into an island castle for protection against the Yanks. Later he was to have started West to build again, but met his death on the way.

Months previous to Frisby's death Port Gibson, Miss. fell to the Union army. Vicksburg followed in July before his death in November.

History proves that it was the control of the Mississipi river that brought Yankee troops down upon Vicksburg. But Frisby didn't know that, and perhaps he believed that they would eventually invade him deep in the Tensas Swamp.

But in face of his financial crisis, Norman Frisby did not pick up his slaves and flee to build another empire. His fight was in Tensas, and had he run from it, defeat would have been his for life. He had gone too far to quit.

Desperate in debt, tired by the long siege of work and nervous with the nearby war, Norman Frisby by now was a dangerous man. His back was to the wall of the swamp, which itself had fought him for nearly 10 years.

There are no records of his death. The war was on, and if there had been an inquest, there were no courts to try the case.

Therefore, the details of the death are numerous in accounts provided by a past generation. Even though not one has ever been proved legally, it's common knowledge in the swamp that Frisby did not survive a fight with his brother-in-law, Orlando H. Flowers.

Assuming that Frisby was not leaving Tensas, the most logical account sent Flowers and his men and stock past the Frisby mansion on their way to join the Confederates in Texas.

Filing past Frisby's home, a mule joined the Flowers ranks and could not be discouraged into returning home. And it was because of this mule that the men finally clashed on the banks of the mansion.

His lion head bent forward against the neck of the big bay horse, Frisby swirled into the center of the Flowers clan at a ferry landing on the bayou. Imagine it. There were few words said, and the battle was on.

Frisby was to have pulled a riding quirt, lashing Flowers down. Eventually both were on the ground. A knife was pulled. Norman Frisby did not ride back home conqueror of another foe.

Somebody had to bring the body home. Anna emerged from the house, the smaller children gathering around. Work stopped at the mansion. The slavemen trembled. The "old marster" was dead.

Wind Blew

And, oh don't you know that night the wind blew and the silver bell rang as the spirit of Frisby walked moaning through the swamlands.

Anna ran the plantation for seven years after Frisby was buried. She fought a flood and law suits, and it was difficult keeping labor, for the slaves disappeared into the swamp.

There were 19,479 acres remaining in the plantation, which was inventoried for a net worth of $199,240.60. The land itself was worth $193,700. It sold for $37,-987.70.

Its "affairs" were "much involved" with debts and law suits. The sale relieved Anna of the obligations of the plantation and brought her $29,303.07 — just $4,-000 over what Norman owed her.

The attorneys received $7,500 and John A. Stevenson, the man whom Frisby owed about $60,000, took the gin, valued at $5,492.50. Stevenson also bought half of the plantation.

Samuel A. Thompson bought a fourth, and L. V. Reeves and B. C. Fanar bought an eighth each.

Even as late as 1898, land that was to have belonged to Frisby was sold through sheriff's sales because of unpaid taxes. Some of the sales were unqualified, however, for the records show that much of the land sold by the sheriff had been purchased after Frisby was dead.

No doubt the Frisbys continued to live as they had before Norman died. Orlando and Gertrude stayed together. Daniel W. was still in money, giving a tract of land in Franklin to a woman because of "good feeling, respect and esteem." Another Frisby couldn't support his own child.

Changed Hands

The lands of the plantation changed hands with the years, and most of it is owned today by a commercial lumber company. The site on which the Brick House stands belongs to the Ruston Fishing Club, Inc.

It seems only fitting today that Norman Frisby would have come from Mississippi into old Tensas.

The dome of the courthouse at Port Gibson is silver with the sun in the morning, and both white and colored gather around the center of the county's affairs. A hound sleeps beneath the statue of a Confederate general dedicated to the the county sons who served in the war of 1861-1865. The plink of what sounds like a blacksmith is heard in the background.

Across the river, Tensas is equally as old, but young as the days of Norman Frisby in romantic dreams — gray in swamps, purple in wild verbena, green in sprouts of spring.

Even the tattered and yellow records that bring Frisby alive are poetic — "To have and to hold the said sands and Slaves into said Griffing and Frisby forever free from the claim or claims of all and every person or persons whomsoever lawfully claiming or to claim the same."

But the life of Norman Frisby is more than a rich history of the south and the amazing legend of one man's dreams. There were others before him and those who followed him.

Norman Frisby's was a story of the passions of man.

MYSTERY

The old-timers said it was a mystery where Frisby came from, but the records show that he crossed the Mississippi River from Claiborne County, Miss. and maneuvered through property sales until his huge Palo Alto estate began to grow in the corner of Tensas, spreading into Franklin and Madison.

He owned property in Claiborne County and had money — and access to more, either or both from a man named John E. Hall of Claiborne or his wife Anna—when he came; and there were those who thought and are some who still believe that he left treasure buried in the swamp.

Fresh-dug holes in the ruins are indicative that the spirit of Frisby is somewhat of a king even today —nearly 100 years after he died on the banks of Bayou Macon in Madison parish.

Frisby moved to Tensas in about 1855, six years after he bought his first property there. As a fast, shrewd opportunist, he purchased land through sheriff's sales and from several individuals, in one case buying a tract for $10 per acre and selling it shortly afterwards for $30 per acre.

It took him only 10 years to build the plantation, for property sales of Norman Frisby were numerous between 1850 and 1860. There is no way of determining just how many acres he did have. He owned a little over 19,000 at death, and probably sold that much before dying.

History told some that he planned to produce as much as 10,000 bales of cotton a year and raise enough food to make his plantation self - sufficient. It came down through the years of his making his own brick, but buying better in New Orleans, and of his bringing gin equipment from New Orleans, carried on a barge he built generated by the gin engine to navigate through the narrow Tensas River.

DEBTS MOUNT

As debts and law suits began to mount against Frisby and his property, he lived with his family in a small house from where he ran the operation of his plantation and the construction of the mansion.

One old-timer said, he knew a slave of Frisby's, who told of the unmerciful work and cruelty dealt them by the driving master. However, Frisby was said to have been as hard a worker as his slaves.

THE TRAIL OF FRISBY

Frisby's first move into Tensas was shown on Nov. 18, 1849 when he and David C. Griffing bought 1,158 acres from John E. Hall, Claiborne man with whom Frisby did much business.

Included in the sale were 31 slaves, ranging in age from 1 to 45, in names from Swean to David Redman. Both land and man cost the two $19,700.

His slaves dug dirt from the Tensas and built a levee around the mansion. Parts of the levee are still standing, and the river at one point runs into a sharp bluff where slaves a century ago took its bank.

Huge cypress trees were cut from a nearby brake and snaked through the woods and into the river, floating only a short distance to the site of the mansion. A scar was left on the bank. That too can be seen today.

There is no written detail of the house, but it was all brick, built on 10-foot tall pillars on a floor base 100 feet square. Buggs would have been run below the house. The interior was built of wood with furnishings from Natchez.

Records Non-Existent

Port records are non - existent there, and only the story that Frisby said his home would be as good as any in the old country, and Natchez newspaper ads from 1850-1890, indicate the nature of his shipments into the swamp.

He could have bought great artists busts, "tops in their field," marble and stone masons, mantles "of the finest," steps, iron railings, chimney tops, window sills and door facings, "highgrade" shingles, blinds, paint and varnishes, stained glass, door panels, and sashes for "steamboats, mansions and public buildings."

Importer and shipper H. M. Gastrell featured "lightning rods," a reflector against lightning. Would Frisby have been afraid and ordered one?

Possibly the silver bell was brought up from Natchez as a symbol of the supremacy of the empire, to be hanged from the top of the towering house, to be heard on still summer nights when Frisby would have sat in a top room and looked out over his darkened land below, looked to the lights of Vicksburg and Natchez, and listened to the spirituals of his harrassed slaves.

One man said he saw the bell, but explained that everytime he came within 30 yards of it, the swamp opened up and it sank below as though the land itself was Frisby's keeper. Another said he saw it once, but was never able to locate it again.

Superstitious, sure, but the scene of the remains of Frisby's mansion — known today as the Old Brick House — is much the same.

It's obscure from the world — 18 miles by river from one highway, a long walk through the swamp from another. Only the hunter and the fisherman visit there.

You climb the bluff from the river and walk a flat for about a hundred yards until it gradually comes into sight. It looks small at first and hidden by the dense saplings.

Silent, Alone

Silent, standing alone in the dark backwoods country, 32 pillars, some only nubbs, others intact with Frisby's personal design, mark the spot where the dream crumbled like the large heaps of brick piled in the center of the pillars where the house finally fell.

Vines have wrapped themselves around the pillars, and palmetto and plants are growing through the piles of brick, under which den uncountable snakes. Trees have sprung up, replacing the walls and spreading a roof of green. Little sunlight seeps through.

Except for the occasional song of a bird and signs of turkey and deer and the raccoon, the scene is empty of life—eerie in its remorse of yesteryear.

Quiet, silent, dead. Who walks there?

And then you get the feeling of not belonging. It seems to say "go away, leave him be."

But Norman Frisby was not the kind of man that is easily forgotten. It's hard to tell what possessed this man to shoot for a goal so far beyond that of those who surrounded him. However, it's easy to understand that a man that came so close to building a wonder left many enemies behind.

The Frisbys were a large family in Claiborne parish and from the number of property sales recorded there they were by no means poor. Yet the records fail to link their kin, and some could have possessed greater fortunes than their cousins.

Norman's brother, Thomas I. Frisby, was a lawyer in New Orleans. Another Frisby—Daniel W. —was shown to have sold a building Richmond, Va. So with Thomas being an educated man and Daniel owning property in Richmond, they could have originated there.

No Data

However, the Richmond court records, the Virginia State Library and the adjoining counties of Henrico and Chesterfield proved fruitless in producing data on Norman, Thomas and Daniel.

Nevertheless, the Frisbys of Mississippi and Louisiana stood well with men of respect and office. Brother Thomas bought 1,671 acres for $29,375 from H. M. Hymas and Judah P. Benjamin, the latter of whom as none other than the attorney general of the Confederate States of America.

Thomas made the purchase in New Orleans for Norman. Sixteen days later on April 18, 1954, Norman himself bought another tract from the Attorney General and Hymas—this time 785 acres for $11,200.

While the batchelor Thomas was in New Orleans practicing law and possibly mingling with Benjamin in society, Daniel W. And Aaron Frisby were old enough to be setting $200 bonds—as was the practice then—for their children to be married.

The marriage licenses in Claiborne go back to around 1843, but there was no record of Norman's bethrothal to Anna Joe Chambliss.

She no doubt was a young girl from a well-to-do family, as it was brought out in at least two property sales that she relinquished her rights "named from the matrimonial dotal," giving up entirely what she brought into the marriage.

At least it could be speculated of her young age, for she bore him seven children, a fact proving that Norman was not an old man at death. They couldn't have been married much over 20 years, and all their children were minors when Frisby died.

Norman had money, too, and paid $7,000 for 816 acres owned by Jesse O. Runell, the date of the sale being recorded as Oct. 16, 1845. Three years later he bought 896 acres of the "Samuel Hill Tract" in Claiborne from John E. Hall. He made that purchase for $800, which points out a vast difference in the value of land.

Then by 1854 he and Anna bought the remainder of the "Samuel Hill Tract," for $6,000. They bought it from Samuel L. Chambliss. Could it have been that Sam Chambliss was Annas father?

But the Frisbys were not alone as big land owners in Claiborne, for as they bought and sold, the Flowers family, at least one and perhaps two of them who were to play a predominant role in Frisby's doom to come, were spreading likewise.

Families Traced

Both the Frisbys and the Flowers can be traced from Mississippi through Madison and Tensas and finally into Franklin, buying and selling among themselves, back and forth between the two families.

So perhaps when Orlando H. Flowers, husband of Norman's sister, Gertrude, and Norman tangled on Nov. 24, 1864, a tension that had been building through the years had finally risen to a head.

It is doubtful that two men of such means would fight to one's death over a legandary stray mule.

There could have been any number of things and possibly a combination of all that would have caused tension between the two men.

Perhaps the succession of the old Frisby family arose, causing hard feelings between Norman and sister Gertrude and Orlando? Or perhaps the property sales were involved? And could it have been jealousy between the two?

All Tensas could have suspected that trouble was brewing on that summer day in 1855 when old Sheriff G. W. Williams posted a written notice at Waterproof, Kirk's Ferry and the Courthouse at St. Joseph announcing a property sale of 140 acres evolving from a suit between Orlando and Elisha Flowers of Kentu'.

Orlando owed Elisha money and Norman stepped in to buy the property for $1108. And a strange thing happened three years later when Norman — acting unlike the crafty trader that he was—and wife Anna sold 120 acres to Orlando for only $175. Did Anna influence the sale?

A year later Norman sold R. A. Flowers a half interest in a "considerable amount" of property for $11,425. Ten days later "Flowers and Frisby" sold 914 acres for $70,565 in Madison parish with Norman collecting the money and Anna again "relinquishing her rights." Was trouble caused between Norman and R. A. because of that?

So the seed had been planted by 1860, about when Norman stopped purchasing land for his plantation and began the mansion.

But Frisby's dream was still a gamble, for he at this time had gone into tremendous debt.

Not all of his land purchases were made by cash. In fact, he probably owed as much as he had paid out. And there was the operation of the plantation and the cost of building the mansion.

Frisby A Driver

So it was no wonder that Frisby was a driver. He had a mountainous deficit to overcome, and logically he suspected the sooner he put the empire on its feet the quicker his goal would be achieved.

Then what was life like on the plantation of Norman Frisby, his wife Anna and their one boy and six girls — Eugene, Matilda E., Alesta A., Emma, Ann E., Sallie and Mattie?

Was he building this kingdom for them? If so, what twist of irony brought about a business deal between man and wife? At death Norman owed Anna $25,530.

What had happened to David C. Griffing, the man with whom Frisby made his first purchase in Tensas?

Money was coming from several sources. He left this world owing John A. Stevenson $60,503.69, and his succession mentioned that there were "several creditors."

Frisby had reason to drive. He was in trouble. The king was making his last stand.

Some said he worked his slaves long hours in a vain attempt to capitalize off a climbing cotton market due to the Civil War.

It is at this point where the trial of Norman Frisby grows coldest. What was the man doing as news of advancing Union troops spread into the swamp?

He was said to have been building levees around the mansion to convert it into an island castle for protection against the Yanks. Later he was to have started West to build again, but met his death on the way.

Months previous to Frisby's death Port Gibson, Miss. fell to the Union army. Vicksburg followed in July before his death in November.

History proves that it was the control of the Mississipi river that brought Yankee troops down upon Vicksburg. But Frisby didn't know that, and perhaps he believed that they would eventually invade him deep in the Tensas Swamp.

But in face of his financial crisis, Norman Frisby did not pick up his slaves and flee to build another empire. His fight was in Tensas, and had he run from it, defeat would have been his for life. He had gone too far to quit.

Desperate in debt, tired by the long siege of work and nervous with the nearby war, Norman Frisby by now was a dangerous man. His back was to the wall of the swamp, which itself had fought him for nearly 10 years.

There are no records of his death. The war was on, and if there had been an inquest, there were no courts to try the case.

Therefore, the details of the death are numerous in accounts provided by a past generation. Even though not one has ever been proved legally, it's common knowledge in the swamp that Frisby did not survive a fight with his brother-in-law, Orlando H. Flowers.

Assuming that Frisby was not leaving Tensas, the most logical account sent Flowers and his men and stock past the Frisby mansion on their way to join the Confederates in Texas.

Filing past Frisby's home, a mule joined the Flowers ranks and could not be discouraged into returning home. And it was because of this mule that the men finally clashed on the banks of the mansion.

His lion head bent forward against the neck of the big bay horse, Frisby swirled into the center of the Flowers clan at a ferry landing on the bayou. Imagine it. There were few words said, and the battle was on.

Frisby was to have pulled a riding quirt, lashing Flowers down. Eventually both were on the ground. A knife was pulled. Norman Frisby did not ride back home conqueror of another foe.

Somebody had to bring the body home. Anna emerged from the house, the smaller children gathering around. Work stopped at the mansion. The slavemen trembled. The "old marster" was dead.

Wind Blew

And, oh don't you know that night the wind blew and the silver bell rang as the spirit of Frisby walked moaning through the swamlands.

Anna ran the plantation for seven years after Frisby was buried. She fought a flood and law suits, and it was difficult keeping labor, for the slaves disappeared into the swamp.

There were 19,479 acres remaining in the plantation, which was inventoried for a net worth of $199,240.60. The land itself was worth $193,700. It sold for $37,987.70.

Its "affairs" were "much involved" with debts and law suits. The sale relieved Anna of the obligations of the plantation and brought her $29,303.07 — just $4,000 over what Norman owed her.

The attorneys received $7,500 and John A. Stevenson, the man whom Frisby owed about $60,000, took the gin, valued at $5,492.50. Stevenson also bought half of the plantation.

Samuel A. Thompson bought a fourth, and L. V. Reeves and B. C. Fanar bought an eighth each.

Even as late as 1898, land that was to have belonged to Frisby was sold through sheriff's sales because of unpaid taxes. Some of the sales were unqualified, however, for the records show that much of the land sold by the sheriff had been purchased after Frisby was dead.

No doubt the Frisbys continued to live as they had before Norman died. Orlando and Gertrude stayed together. Daniel W. was still in money, giving a tract of land in Franklin to a woman because of "good feeling, respect and esteem." Another Frisby couldn't support his own child.

Changed Hands

The lands of the plantation changed hands with the years, and most of it is owned today by a commercial lumber company. The site on which the Brick House stands belongs to the Ruston Fishing Club, Inc.

It seems only fitting today that Norman Frisby would have come from Mississippi into old Tensas.

The dome of the courthouse at Port Gibson is silver with the sun in the morning, and both white and colored gather around the center of the county's affairs. A hound sleeps beneath the statue of a Confederate general dedicated to the the county sons who served in the war of 1861-1865. The plink of what sounds like a blacksmith is heard in the background.

Across the river, Tensas is equally as old, but young as the days of Norman Frisby in romantic dreams — gray in swamps, purple in wild verbena, green in sprouts of spring.

Even the tattered and yellow records that bring Frisby alive are poetic — "To have and to hold the said sands and Slaves into said Griffing and Frisby forever free from the claim or claims of all and every person or persons whomsoever lawfully claiming or to claim the same."

But the life of Norman Frisby is more than a rich history of the south and the amazing legend of one man's dreams. There were others before him and those who followed him.

Norman Frisby's was a story of the passions of man.

Designing Woman Romantic Comedy

Produced by Dore Schary, and directed by Vincente Minnelli from a sparkling George Wells screen play, this story of a top New York sports - writer, who marries a top New York fashion designer, and finds himself in a world of chic and glamour in sharp contrast to the two-fisted domain of his ringside associates, has a full measure of bounce, bedlam and breezy laugh situations.

The juxtaposition of Mike Hagen's (Peck) activities in a desedem-and-dose atmosphere of cauliflower ears, shady fight promoters, washed - up contenders and down - at - the heel thugs with the smart Park Avenue and upper-crust cafe - society environment of Marilla Brown (Miss Bacall), the girl he has married after a whirlwind courtship, makes for continuous hilarity. Marilla is horrified when Mike takes her to her first prize fight. Mike, in turn, is baffled at his first view of a typical New York fashion show. Their compatibility is further breached when Marilla discovers that luscious Lori Shannon (Dolores Gray), the musical comedy star for whom she is designing costumes, has been something more in her husband's life than a mere friend.

When it looks as though this marriage of seemingly irreconcilable opposite temperaments will be washed up, Mike's life is threatened by a fight racketeer whom he has been exposing in his sports column. It is then that the valiant Marilla, with the aid of a remarkable stage choreographer, goes into action and proves that she is something more than a clothes horse. The picture closes with a free-for-all battle the like of which has never been seen before, with the choreographer (Jack Cole) routing Mike's hoodlum antagonists with a bombardment of dynamite-packed kicks, pirouttes, entrechats and a variety of dance punches

JACK PALANCE

Former Movie Bad Man Now Looking For Varied Roles

By JOHN BECKLER

HOLLYWOOD, April 20 (AP)—Jack Palance, whose fascinatingly malevolent features won him quick fame in films, has brushed aside the mask of brutality and won stardom by sheer force of acting.

The planed face, evilly glinting eyes and the air of menace owed more to make-up men and studio lighting experts than to nature. And now the patent on them is about to expire.

Which is the way Palance (rhimes with balance) wants it. Over the long haul it's ability, no freak looks, that counts.

Television has named Palance the top actor of the year. The movies rate him a solid bet for highest honors. And the critics are running out of laudatory adjectives to describe his performances.

No longer is Palance confined to wearing the black hat of the bad man in Westerns or crammed into the narrow limits of a hired killer's role.

His last appearance, as a brilliant film producer in the television drama, "The Last Tycoon," made no concessions to Palance's appearance. He's the good guy in a forthcoming Western, and plays a difficult dual role in a movie about to be released.

To the general public, however, Palance, 37, seems something of an oddity in the acting profession. The fact that a man who looks like a prizefighter—which he once was—should be an extraordinarily sensitive, creative actor is contrary to the widely held belief that actors should look like — well, actors.

It was a belief held even by Palance, back in the days when he was a towering, 215-pound teenager driven by a deep desire to find some means of expressing himself.

"I always wanted to express myself through words," he said. "But I thought I was too big to be an actor. I could see myself knocking over tables. I thought acting was for little, faggoty guys."

A big break came when Palance got the job of understudy to Anthony Quinn in the road company of "Streetcar Named Desire." Though he performed the meaty Kowolski role only twice during Quinn illnesses, he showed enough so that when Marlon Brando had to leave the Broadway company, Palance replaced him. And when Elia Kazan, director of "Streetcar," moved to Hollywood the following year to make "Panic in the Streets," Palance went with him.

His chilling portrayal of an underworld killer won immediate response from the movie makers, and Palance moved on to equally menacing roles in "Sudden Fear," and "Shane," for each of which he won an Academy Award nomination.

Cochise Here For Telethon

Appearance here on the April 27 and 28 Cerebral Palsy Telethon of Michael Ansara, the "Cochise" of "Broken Arrow," was announced yesterday by David F. Russell, chairman of the committee arranging for the "telethon."

Ansara is to headline the Sunday portion of the "telethon" and, according to Russell, is looking forward to meeting hundreds of children from the northeast Louisiana area.

Born in Lowell, Mass., Ansara moved as a youth to Los Angeles, where he obtained his public school and college education. He studied dramatics to gain poise and then became interested in the theatre as a career. He worked at the Pasadena Playhouse and had numerous parts in motion pictures before breaking into television.

'Heaven Knows, Mrs. Allison' Will Show Here

"Heaven Knows, Mr. Allison," which was five years in the making comes to the Paramount Theatre next Sunday and stars two of Hollywood's brightest stars, Deborah Kerr and Robert Mitchum.

About the time Buddy Adler, now executive production chief at Twentieth Century - Fox completed the Oscar - winning "From Here To Eternity," which revitalized Deborah Kerr's career, he began looking for another good role for the beauty.

He also read Shaw's novel and visualized Deborah in the nun's role, but Frenke held the rights. When Adler went to Twentieth Century - Fox he signed Frenke as a producer and bought the book and "Heaven Knows, Mr. Allison," became a joint Adler-Frenke production.

The start of the picture was put off until the right director and the right male star could be signed. Robert Mitchum, after much dickering, was signed for the role of the hard - boiled Marine. John Huston, was first approached by Frenke three years before about directing "Heaven Knows, Mr. Allison." His unavailability at that time caused Frenke to postpone his plans. Since Adler also wanted Huston, who had just completed "Moby Dick," to postpone his own production of "Typee" and take on their story.

John Lee Mahin, one of Hollywood's top screen writers, was secured to write the screenplay and the preliminaries of production for the picture were over. But this was just the beginning. Huston spent months scouting locations. He decided that Tobago, the British West Indies island, famed as the real - life locale of Robinson Crusoe's adventures, was the ideal island. It had every scenic element needed for the film — curving, coconut palm - fringed beaches, dense tropical foliage, natural coral reefs, the changing hues of the Caribbean, natural caves, even rodent - like animals.

Then came the job of transporting motion picture making equipment, heavy generators, lights and cameras, 6,000 miles from Hollywood. Although the distance meant a considerable expenditure, Producers Adler and Frenke and Director Huston found that the natural scenic advantages outweighed the expense of carting men and equipment.

AF Builds Arctic In Semi-Tropics

EGLIN AIR FORCE BASE, Fla., April 27 (AP)—A bit of the arctic can be found at this sunny, semi-tropical base where the Air Force is deep-freezing its airplanes to find out how they will perform under extremely cold temperatures.

Planes are tested in the Air Force armament center's climatic hangar, which is capable of housing the largest intercontinental bomber and subjecting it to temperature extremes ranging from 65 degrees below zero, Fahrenheit, to 160 degrees above.

Current tests are being run on the latest version of the Northrup F89J Scorpion, an all-weather jet interceptor equipped with a new fire control system.

The Scorpion, which the Air Research and Development Command has given the code name "Popsicle" for this mission, is towed into the climatic hangar prior to each mission. There it is thoroughly cold-soaked at minus 65 degrees, usually for an overnight period.

In the morning the plane is towed out, armed and flown as soon as possible while it is still under the effects of the deep freeze. It must be airborne within 30 minutes.

The daily temperature at Eglin has been averaging 70 degrees during the test. When Popsicle is rolled out of the hangar and the cold air inside meets the warm Florida air outside, a large cloud of fog forms, obscuring both the plane and the hangar. It's been necessary to use the propwash from a four-engine AB50 parked nearby to disperse the fog.

Usually, the Air Force ground and plane crews have Popsicle in the air within 15 minutes of its exit from the hangar. Ice and snow still clings to the plane's fuselage when it takes off.

The 135-degree sudden change in temperature could cause trouble for personnel. The ground crews working outside in the 70-degree warmth are in shirt sleeves while the crews inside the hangar are dressed for bear—with heavy boots, fur parkas and other cold weather gear.

The flying crews just have to be careful. Capts. John Fowler, Houston, Tex., and Robert Herman, Holyoke, Mass., have been piloting Popsicle during the tests while 1st Lts. Dan Leonard, Blountstown, Fla., and Robert Douglass, Postville, Iowa, serve as radar observers.

They board the plane after it has left the deep freeze so they don't have to wear winter equipment. But the plane is still so cold that a man touching its metal frame could come away with a nasty frostbite burn.

Designing Woman Romantic Comedy

Produced by Dore Schary, and directed by Vincente Minnelli from a sparkling George Wells screen play, this story of a top New York sports - writer, who marries a top New York fashion designer, and finds himself in a world of chic and glamour in sharp contrast to the two-fisted domain of his ringside associates, has a full measure of bounce, bedlam and breezy laugh situations.

The juxtaposition of Mike Hagen's (Peck) activities in a desedem-and-dose atmosphere of cauliflower ears, shady fight promoters, washed - up contenders and down - at - the heel thugs with the smart Park Avenue and upper-crust cafe - society environment of Marilla Brown (Miss Bacall), the girl he has married after a whirlwind courtship, makes for continuous hilarity. Marilla is horrified when Mike takes her to her first prize fight. Mike, in turn, is baffled at his first view of a typical New York fashion show. Their compatibility is further breached when Marilla discovers that luscious Lori Shannon (Dolores Gray), the musical comedy star for whom she is designing costumes, has been something more in her husband's life than a mere friend.

When it looks as though this marriage of seemingly irreconcilable opposite temperaments will be washed up, Mike's life is threatened by a fight racketeer whom he has been exposing in his sports column. It is then that the valiant Marilla, with the aid of a remarkable stage choreographer, goes into action and proves that she is something more than a clothes horse. The picture closes with a free-for-all battle the like of which has never been seen before, with the choreographer (Jack Cole) routing Mike's hoodlum antagonists with a bombardment of dynamite-packed kicks, pirouttes, entrechats and a variety of dance punches

'BOY ON A DOLPHIN'

Alan Ladd and Sophia Loren tangle romantically in a fish net in Twentieth Century-Fox's "Boy on a Dolphin." Samuel G. Engel's CinemaScope production, also starring Clifton Webb, opens today at the Paramount Theatre.

'Heaven Knows, Mrs. Allison' Will Show Here

"Heaven Knows, Mr. Allison," which was five years in the making comes to the Paramount Theatre next Sunday and stars two of Hollywood's brightest stars, Deborah Kerr and Robert Mitchum.

About the time Buddy Adler, now executive production chief at Twentieth Century - Fox completed the Oscar - winning "From Here To Eternity," which revitalized Deborah Kerr's career, he began looking for another good role for the beauty.

He also read Shaw's novel and visualized Deborah in the nun's role, but Frenke held the rights. When Adler went to Twentieth Century - Fox he signed Frenke as a producer and bought the book and "Heaven Knows, Mr. Allison," became a joint Adler-Frenke production.

The start of the picture was put off until the right director and the right male star could be signed. Robert Mitchum, after much dickering, was signed for the role of the hard - boiled Marine. John Huston, was first approached by Frenke three years before about directing "Heaven Knows, Mr. Allison." His unavailability at that time caused Frenke to postpone his plans. Since Adler also wanted Huston, who had just completed "Moby Dick," to postpone his own production of "Typee" and take on their story.

John Lee Mahin, one of Hollywood's top screen writers, was secured to write the screenplay and the preliminaries of production for the picture were over. But this was just the beginning. Huston spent months scouting locations. He decided that Tobago, the British West Indies island, famed as the real - life locale of Robinson Crusoe's adventures, was the ideal island. It had every scenic element needed for the film — curving, coconut palm - fringed beaches, dense tropical foliage, natural coral reefs, the changing hues of the Caribbean, natural caves, even rodent - like animals.

Then came the job of transporting motion picture making equipment, heavy generators, lights and cameras, 6,000 miles from Hollywood. Although the distance meant a considerable expenditure, Producers Adler and Frenke and Director Huston found that the natural scenic advantages outweighed the expense of carting men and equipment.

VOODOO WOMAN

JACK PALANCE

Former Movie Bad Man Now Looking For Varied Roles

By JOHN BECKLER

HOLLYWOOD, April 20 (AP)—Jack Palance, whose fascinatingly malevolent features won him quick fame in films, has brushed aside the mask of brutality and won stardom by sheer force of acting.

The planed face, evilly glinting eyes and the air of menace owed more to make-up men and studio lighting experts than to nature. And now the patent on them is about to expire.

Which is the way Palance (rhimes with balance) wants it. Over the long haul it's ability, no freak looks, that counts.

Television has named Palance the top actor of the year. The movies rate him a solid bet for highest honors. Anl the critics are running out of laudatory adjectives to describe his performances.

No longer is Palance confined to wearing the black hat of the bad man in Westerns or crammed into the narrow limits of a hired killer's role.

His last appearance, as a brilliant film producer in the television drama, "The Last Tycoon," made no concessions to Palance's appearance. He's the good guy in a forthcoming Western, and plays a difficult dual role in a movie about to be released.

To the general public, however, Palance, 37, seems something of an oddity in the acting profession. The fact that a man who looks like a prizefighter—which he once was — should be an extraordinarily sensitive, creative actor is contrary to the widely held belief that actors should look like — well, actors.

It was a belief held even by Palance, back in the days when he was a towering, 215-pound teenager driven by a deep desire to find some means of expressing himself.

"I always wanted to express myself through words," he said. "But I thought I was too big to be an actor. I could see myself knocking over tables. I thought acting was for little, faggoty guys."

A big break came when Palance got the job of understudy to Anthony Quinn in the road company of "Streetcar Named Desire." Though he performed the meaty Kowolski role only twice during Quinn illnesses, he showed enough so that when Marlon Brando had to leave the Broadway company, Palance replaced him. And when Elia Kazan, director of "Streetcar," moved to Hollywood the following year to make "Panic in the Streets," Palance went with him.

His chilling portrayal of an underworld killer won immediate response from the movie makers, and Palance moved on to equally menacing roles in "Sudden Fear," and "Shane," for each of which he won an Academy Award nomination.

Cochise Here For Telethon

Appearance here on the April 27 and 28 Cerebral Palsy Telethon of Michael Ansara, the "Cochise" of "Broken Arrow," was announced yesterday by David F. Russell, chairman of the committee arranging for the "telethon."

Ansara is to headline the Sunday portion of the "telethon" and, according to Russell, is looking forward to meeting hundreds of children from the northeast Louisiana area.

Born in Lowell, Mass., Ansara moved as a youth to Los Angeles, where he obtained his public school and college education. He studied dramatics to gain poise and then became interested in the theatre as a career. He worked at the Pasadena Playhouse and had numerous parts in motion pictures before breaking into television.

AF Builds Arctic In Semi-Tropics

EGLIN AIR FORCE BASE, Fla. April 27 (AP)—A bit of the arctic can be found at this sunny, semi-tropical base where the Air Force is deep-freezing its airplanes to find out how they will perform under extremely cold temperatures.

Planes are tested in the Air Force armament center's climatic hangar, which is capable of housing the largest intercontinental bomber and subjecting it to temperature extremes ranging from 65 degrees below zero, Fahrenheit, to 160 degrees above.

Current tests are being run on the latest version of the Northrup F89J Scorpion, an all-weather jet interceptor equipped with a new fire control system.

The Scorpion, which the Air Research and Development Command has given the code name "Popsicle" for this mission, is towed into the climatic hangar prior to each mission. There it is thoroughly cold-soaked at minus 65 degrees, usually for an overnight period.

In the morning the plane is towed out, armed and flown as soon as possible while it is still under the effects of the deep freeze. It must be airborne within 30 minutes.

The daily temperature at Eglin has been averaging 70 degrees during the test. When Popsicle is rolled out of the hangar and the cold air inside meets the warm Florida air outside, a large cloud of fog forms, obscuring both the plane and the hangar. It's been necessary to use the propwash from a four-engine AB50 parked nearby to disperse the fog.

Usually, the Air Force ground and plane crews have Popsicle in the air within 15 minutes of its exit from the hangar. Ice and snow still clings to the plane's fuselage when it takes off.

The 135-degree sudden change in temperature could cause trouble for personnel. The ground crews working outside in the 70-degree warmth are in shirt sleeves while the crews inside the hangar are dressed for bear—with heavy boots, fur parkas and other cold weather gear.

The flying crews just have to be careful. Capts. John Fowler, Houston, Tex., and Robert Herman, Holyoke, Mass., have been piloting Popsicle during the tests while 1st Lts. Dan Leonard, Blountstown, Fla., and Robert Douglass, Postville, Iowa, serve as radar observers.

They board the plane after it has left the deep freeze so they don't have to wear winter equipment. But the plane is still so cold that a man touching its metal frame could come away with a nasty frostbite burn.

More than one-third of the entire population of Arizona reside within a 30-mile radius of Phoenix. r

STAMPS

Special Issue Cites Growth Of US Steel

The American Eagle with outspread wings and a pouring ladle of steel form the theme of the new U. S. 3 cent commemorative stamp honoring the U. S. steel industry. The color will be blue.

It will be placed on first day

Stamp collectors desiring first day covers may send their addressed envelopes together with money orders covering the cost of the stamps to be affixed, to the Postmaster, New York 1, N. Y., prior to May 22.

Collectors should bear in mind that this is a vertical stamp and covers should be addressed in the lower left corner, particularly when blocks are desired.

The United Nations Postal Administration announced that the first day of issue of the 4-cent airmail stamp and 4-cent airmail postal card will be May 27. First day cover collectors are reminded to send their orders to the U. N. Postal Administration United Nations, N. Y., prior to May 27.

There is a distinct possibility that in the near future the nations of western Europe may have common stamps.

Representatives of Great Britain, France, Western Germany, Italy, Belgium, Netherlands, Luxembourg and Switzerland recently met in Frankfurt to discuss a plan for a Western European Postal Union with common stamps for all.

Malaya plans to issue a special 10 cent stamp to mark its Independence Day on Aug. 31. The design includes a portrait of Chief Minister Putra and a vignette depicting the people welcoming independence.

NBC is flying 76 dancers and administrative personnel of the Royal Ballet of Great Britain from London for a single performance of the company's "Cinderella" ballet on "Producer's Showcase" April 29. NBC will televise nationally the windup of the fifth annual Tournament of Champions at the Desert Inn golf course in Las Vegas from 5 to 6 p.m. April 21.

ABC dedicates its new Chicago headquarters April 16. The new studios for ABC and WBKB, the network's owned and operated TV station, are at 190 North State St. They were built at a cost of $1,500,000.

The "U. S. Steel Hour" on CBS will present its first program in compatible color on May 8 when it does "A Drum is a Woman," a fantasy paralleling the history of jazz which will have a score and narration by Duke Ellington.

A program of Chicago origin will hit the CBS network May 4 when "Susan's Show" makes it bow. Saturdays from 11 to 11:30 a.m. The girl of the title is Susan Heinkel, who has been on for Chicago station WBBM each week - day afternoon since last September. She has been in show business since she was three.

Stamp Honors The Princess Of Monaco

Three cheers for the little principality of Monaco.

A welcome addition to the philatelic world can be reported. It's a new set featuring the pretty profile of Princess Grace. The set of nine stamps commemorates the birth of Princess Carolina last January 23.

This issue also marks the second appearance of the former movie star since she attained regal status. And, if this set proves as popular as the royal wedding adhesives the Monaco postal authorities will be in for a busy time.

The nine denominations are: 1, 2, 3, 5, 15, 25, 30, 50 and 75 francs.

U. S. collectors will want to note that the special commemorative to honor the 100th anniversary of the steel industry will be placed on first day sale May 22 at New York. The issuance coincides with the 65th general meeting of the Iron and Steel Institute.

The commemorative honoring the "Teachers of America" will be first placed on sale July 1 at Philadelphia during the Centennial Convention of the National Education Assn.

STAMPS

Special Issue Cites Growth Of US Steel

The American Eagle with outspread wings and a pouring ladle of steel form the theme of the new U. S. 3 cent commemorative stamp honoring the U. S. steel industry. The color will be blue.

It will be placed on first day

Stamp collectors desiring first day covers may send their addressed envelopes together with money orders covering the cost of the stamps to be affixed, to the Postmaster, New York 1, N. Y., prior to May 22.

Collectors should bear in mind that this is a vertical stamp and covers should be addressed in the lower left corner, particularly when blocks are desired.

The United Nations Postal Administration announced that the first day of issue of the 4-cent airmail stamp and 4-cent airmail postal card will be May 27. First day cover collectors are reminded to send their orders to the U. N. Postal Administration United Nations, N. Y., prior to May 27.

There is a distinct possibility that in the near future the nations of western Europe may have common stamps.

Representatives of Great Britain, France, Western Germany, Italy, Belgium, Netherlands, Luxembourg and Switzerland recently met in Frankfurt to discuss a plan for a Western European Postal Union with common stamps for all.

Delegates from Ireland, Austria and Turkey were present at secondary conferences.

MY ANSWER by Billy Graham

QUESTION: I find myself hating a certain woman because she is breaking up our home. She has no qualms about going out with my husband openly. How can I overcome my resentment? S.R.

ANSWER: Your problem is a serious one, and on the human level, you could not be blamed for being resentful. That is only natural. But what you want to do first, is to save your home if you can. But even more important, you must not let this unfortunate experience ruin your life.

Resentment seldom, if ever, helps in a given situation. Have you tried praying for this woman and your husband? I dare say that if your husband came home one night and found your face bathed in tears; not tears of self pity, but tears of compassion for his soul, that it would make a tremendous impact on him. Remember, "more things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of. I know of many homes that have been literally held together by the power of prayer, by the husband, or by the wife, or by both. In your case, there is much more at stake than your home, though that is very important. The destiny of three souls hangs in the balance. With so much at stake you can afford to exercise every patience, and expend every effort, to restore love and understanding in your home. May God give you the grace and the wisdom to handle this situation in a way that will produce results, and an enduring happiness for all concerned.

Today's YOUR GUIDING STAR Message:

0. Prov. 16:8. Better is a little with righteousness than great revenues with injustices.
1. Gita: Prabhavananda-Isherwood. The leader's duty is to be bold, unflinching and fearless.
2. Lao Tzu; Blakney: Poem 10. Act and be independent; be the chief but never the lord.
3. Job 11:6. Know then that God exacts of you less than your guilt deserves.
4. Prov. 8:13. Pride and arrogance and the way of evil and perverted speech I hate.

WHAT EASTER PROVES

The Christian Church celebrates Easter for more than sentimental reasons. It knows that far more important than the corsages and bunnies and baskets is the great historical fact which the day commemorates.

The resurrection of Christ from the dead on Easter morning is a historical fact. By His resurrection Christ gave irrefutable answers to several crucial questions.

In the first place, by His resurrection He proved Himself to be the Son of God. As the Bible puts it, He was "declared to be the Son of God . . . by the resurrection from the dead."

Furthermore, by the miracle of Easter Christ proved that all His doctrines were the truth. What He had taught about sin, about salvation, about heaven and hell—all must be true.

Thirdly, the happenings of that first Easter morning gave proof positive that the Father in heaven had accepted the sacrifice of His Son for the sins of the world.

And finally Christ's resurrection is the guarantee that all believers will arise some day "unto life, eternal." As Christ puts it, "Because I live, ye shall live also."

These are the tremendous facts of Easter. It is because these things are true that Christ could say: "I am the Resurrection and the Life . . . Whosoever liveth and believeth in Me shall never die."—Do you believe?

FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST
Auburn and North Second Streets

"Doctrine of Atonement" is the subject of the lesson - sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, April 21, 1957.
The golden text is: "Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that he loved us, and sent his Son to be the propiation for our sins" (1 John 4:10.)
Among the citations which comprise the lesson - sermon is the following from the Bible: "Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new" (II Cor. 5:17.)
The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The fountain can rise no higher than its source. Christ, Truth, could conciliate no nature above his own, derived from the eternal Love. It was therefore Christ's purpose to reconcile man to God, not God to man" (18.)

MY ANSWER by Billy Graham

QUESTION: I find myself hating a certain woman because she is breaking up our home. She has no qualms about going out with my husband openly. How can I overcome my resentment? S.R.

ANSWER: Your problem is a serious one, and on the human level, you could not be blamed for being resentful. That is only natural. But what you want to do first, is to save your home if you can. But even more important, you must not let this unfortunate experience ruin your life.

Resentment seldom, if ever, helps in a given situation. Have you tried praying for this woman and your husband? I dare say that if your husband came home one night and found your face bathed in tears; not tears of self pity, but tears of compassion for his soul, that it would make a tremendous impact on him. Remember, "more things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of. I know of many homes that have been literally held together by the power of prayer, by the husband, or by the wife, or by both. In your case, there is much more at stake than your home, though that is very important. The destiny of three souls hangs in the balance. With so much at stake you can afford to exercise every patience, and expend every effort, to restore love and understanding in your home. May God give you the grace and the wisdom to handle this situation in a way that will produce results, and an enduring happiness for all concerned.

Today's YOUR GUIDING STAR Message:

0. Prov. 16:8. Better is a little with righteousness than great revenues with injustices.
1. Gita: Prabhavananda-Isherwood. The leader's duty is to be bold, unflinching and fearless.
2. Lao Tzu; Blakney: Poem 10. Act and be independent; be the chief but never the lord.
3. Job 11:6. Know then that God exacts of you less than your guilt deserves.
4. Prov. 8:13. Pride and arrogance and the way of evil and perverted speech I hate.

WHAT EASTER PROVES

The Christian Church celebrates Easter for more than sentimental reasons. It knows that far more important than the corsages and bunnies and baskets is the great historical fact which the day commemorates.

The resurrection of Christ from the dead on Easter morning is a historical fact. By His resurrection Christ gave irrefutable answers to several crucial questions.

In the first place, by His resurrection He proved Himself to be the Son of God. As the Bible puts it, He was "declared to be the Son of God . . . by the resurrection from the dead."

Furthermore, by the miracle of Easter Christ proved that all His doctrines were the truth. What He had taught about sin, about salvation, about heaven and hell—all must be true.

Thirdly, the happenings of that first Easter morning gave proof positive that the Father in heaven had accepted the sacrifice of His Son for the sins of the world.

And finally Christ's resurrection is the guarantee that all believers will arise some day "unto life, eternal." As Christ puts it, "Because I live, ye shall live also."

These are the tremendous facts of Easter. It is because these things are true that Christ could say: "I am the Resurrection and the Life . . . Whosoever liveth and believeth in Me shall never die."—Do you believe?

"Doctrine of Atonement" is the subject of the lesson - sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, April 21, 1957.
The golden text is: "Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that he loved us, and sent his Son to be the propiation for our sins" (1 John 4:10.)
Among the citations which comprise the lesson - sermon is the following from the Bible: "Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new" (11 Cor. 5:17.)
The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The fountain can rise no higher than its source. Christ, Truth, could conciliate no nature above his own, derived from the eternal Love. It was therefore Christ's purpose to reconcile man to God, not God to man" (18.)

Paul Martin Looks 'Em Over

Give those Twin City Speedway operators a little more time and thy'll have one of the major sporting attractions of this area as they continue to improve their plant and programs.

Oliver Cloyd, the track owner, and his cohorts show additional improvements each week, and, when you take into consideration that Mr. Cloyd is doing the work at his own expense, it becomes a major undertaking. Anybody else with such ideas would probably try to work up some public spirit in quest of some donations to secure a finished plant from the start.

But the Twin City Speedway, located on a 40-acre tract off the old Natchitoches road in West Monroe, is growing as the owner finds time and cash to turn into improvements. Anybody who made the first or second stock car races of the season, missed the next couple or so, and were on hand a week ago could see noticeable improvement in park facilities as well as the caliber of races.

Today the auto racing fans will find work has progressed over the week. The new road cutting directly into the speedway acreage from Natchitoches road is ready for full service, and a week of warm winds and dry weather makes the 20-acre parking area of the easterly side of the oval available.

While Cloyd owns the park and maintains the track, the auto races themselves are under the management of Gerald Greenway who each week has seen the number of stock cars and drivers increase. Only seven cars turned out for the opener a few weeks ago, last Sunday 16 cars were in action, and a few more are expected when the time trials begin this afternoon about 1:30 o'clock.

Hugh Lennon, Monroe automobile dealer, gave the racers a boost with the contribution of trophies for the feature and trophy race each Sunday.

Garages and automobile establishments of the area also are getting into the act. Several already have built stock cars and more than half of the machines now racing are operated by drivers other than the owners. Non-driving owners are usually the garages that have overhauled old cars, built them to stock car racing standards, and turned them over to drivers for a good shot of advertising.

Some such enthusiasts are Central Auto Sales, Imperial Motors, Miller's Used Cars, Owen's Garage, Tower Sports Shop, Newcomer Tire Service, A-1 Auto Sales, Larry's Carburetor Shop, C. and M. Motors, and Hurl's Garage. Cloyd's Packing House has two cars. As soon as other garages catch the racing bug the speedway competition and traffic jams will boom.

Cars already listed for today's action are No. 2, driven by A. J. Whitlock, a '50 Hudson; 33, Joe Malard, '51 Studebaker; 99, Sergeant Stevens, '50 Hudson; 9, Buddy Roberson, '51 Chevrolet; 100, Fred Anding, '46 Ford; 7, Hank Wallace, '38 Ford; 4, James "Red" Futch, '49 Ford; 77, Bill Chapman, '46 Ford; 1, Bob Shoemaker, '49 Hudson; 8, Eddie Dye, '47 Plymouth; 3, H. L. Hale, '50 Hudson; 64, "Sonny" Brumfield, '46 Ford; 55, Gerald Greenway, '49 Ford; 11, Wade Bell, '46 Ford; 88, Dewayne Richardson, '50 Oldsmobile. Other drivers will be listed as they appear for action with qualified cars.

As an added attraction today, the Twin City Jubilee singers and musicians will be on hand for entertainment between races. The day's card is due to include the time trials, heat races, consolation, and feature race.

DERBY STOCK JUMPS

Ruler Wins Wood In Record Effort

By JOHN CHANDLER

NEW YORK, April 20 (AP)—Bold Ruler answered all the questions today when he outfought Gallant Man in a spine-tingling stretch duel to win the $59,400 Wood Memorial at Jamaica in track record time before a screaming crowd of 42,122.

In a horse race as sensational as the 1955 Wood when Nashua eged out Summer Tan right at the wire, Eddie Arcaro whipped and slashed at Bold Ruler's hide and the speedy Wheatley Stable's colt came from behind with a desperate lunge in the final stride to win by a nose.

The victory handsomely qualified Mrs. Henry Carnegie Phipps' colt for the Kentucky Derby May 4.

This was strictly a two-horse race after Gallant Man, owned by Ralph Lowe of Texas, roared around the final bend with a rush on the outside to catch the pace-setting Bold Ruler near the head of the stretch. But Jockey John Choquette and Gallant Man, could not hold off Arcaro and Co. in the final, tense seconds of as exciting a horse race as ever run.

It was six lengths back to the third horse, Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs' Promised Land.

The crowd, jumping with excitement, gasped when the lights on the tote board showed that Bold Ruler had stepped the mile and an eighth in 1:48 4-5 on a track called fast but still damp from Friday's rains. Bryan G. held the old track mark, 1:49 1-5, set Oct. 27, 1951. The Wood record was 1:50 flat, made in 1954 by Correlation.

Seven three-year olds started in this 23rd running of the Wood which has produced six Kentucky Derby winners. However, only Bold Ruler and Gallant Man, the latter an Irish-bred, rate a trip to Louisville off this race.

The crowd backed Bold Ruler down to 1-2 and he paid $3.00, $2.60 and $2.30. Gallant Man, who was the fourth choice at 8-1, returned $5.00 and $3.60. Promised Land was $2.90 to show.

1ST YANK IN 12 YEARS

Kelley Wins Marathon Run

BOSTON, April 20 (UP)—Johnny Kelley, a school teacher from Groton, Conn., brought Boston A. A. Marathon laurels back to America for the first time in 12 years today, winning the overland classic by half a mile.

Kelley, a boyish-looking 25, turned in a time of 2:20.5 as he breezed past the finish line in the 61st annual event looking nearly as fresh as when he started the 26 miles, 385 yard grind.

Postal clerk Veikko Karvonen of Finland, who won the classic four years ago, placed second in 2:23.54. Chong Woo Lim, one of three Korean entries, came fast over the last few miles to capture third place in 2:24.59.

A 25 miles an hour tail wind, slapping the 140 entires off their right hips, helped fashion the rapid time.

Kelley's time constituted a record for the hill and dale run from Hopkinton to Boston's back bay since the course was adjusted to the official Olympic distance this year.

The old record for the course was 2:14.14, set last year by Antti Viskari of Finland, but accomplished over a course 1,187 yards shorter than the adjusted distance.

The last American to win was Johnny Kelley, the older (no relation), who turned the trick in 1945. Kelley, now 49, finished 13th today.

Vet, Rookie Ramrod Phils Against Giants

NEW YORK, April 20 (AP)—Veteran Willie (Puddin'head) Jones and rookie Ed Bouchee teamed up today in a batting spree, driving in all of Philadelphia's runs in pacing the Phillies to their first victory of the year, 6-5 over the New York Giants.

Jones sent home four runs with a two-run homer in the first inning, a single and a fly. Bouchee, a strapping, 200-pound first baseman from Miami, Fla., clouted four consecutive hits, including a homer in the seventh inning for

Mission Stars Head Texas League's Bats

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Joe Durham and Henry Moreno are proving quite a batting punch for San Antonio's Missions in the young Texas League season.

Not only were the duo batting .545 apiece during the first week of the race but they had the most hits, with six each; Durham had scored the most runs, five, and had batted in the most runs, with five, and Moreno led the circuit in home runs with two.

Pidge Browne, Houston first baseman, was leading the league in batting with a lusty .571. But he had gone to the plate only seven times, while Durham and Moreno had strolled out to hit 11 times.

Ten pitchers had 1-0 records. Elliott Coleman of San Antonio led in strikeouts with eight.

Paul Rambone of Austin, Wilcy Moore and Willie McCovey of Dallas and Eddie Haas of Fort Worth were tied for the lead in doubles with two each. Keith Little and Jerry Green of Oklahoma City and Fred Marolewski of San Antonio were tied for the lead in triples with one each.

SQUAW VALLEY FUSS

Plans For Winter Olympics Snagged

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif., April 20, (AP)—California's plans for the 1960 Winter Olympics stand at a crucial point with controversy still raging between the planners and the major landowner in this rustic mountain valley.

Involved primarily are but 32 acres of the 500 planned for the site of the giant sports show, but this small percentage has raised an issue that might conceivably send the Olympics to Innsbruck, Austria.

Majority of the land needed, about 400 acres, has been leased on 30-year terms from the U. S. Forest Service. Lease arrangements also have been reached for other private land needed in the valley.

Personalities tied into the situation include Wayne Poulsen, the owner of about 1,250 acres, who objects to state plans to buy the 32, and Alexander Cushing, operator of Squaw Valley Lodge and the man whose presentation won the games for the area.

The two once were partners but now aren't friends.

Avery Brunage, president of the International Olympic Committee, closely watches the developments. Planners say he has promised not to step in until the California legislature, currently in session, takes action.

Before the lawmakers is a bill to add $2,990,000 to the five million already appropriated for the Olympics. The money section of the measure is not causing the biggest battle.

Opponents object to two sections —one would make the Olympics site a permanent state winter recreation area after the games, and the other gives the state the power to condemn and buy private land it believes vital to the project.

Hope has been expressed that a compromise might be reached and the question of the 32 acres be resolved by agreement.

The state groups say they would still need the power of eminent domain under which the land could be condemned for the public benefit. Alan E. Bartholemy, general secretary of the organizing committee, says this is necessary to protect the state, which will have an eight million dollar investment at stake.

Permanent improvements to be constructed include an Olympic ice arena, a double-chair ski lift up Papoose Hill, three ski jumps on Papoose, a bobsled run, utilities including sewage disposal, flood control and water supply units, the Olympic village, two restaurant pavilions, officials housing and administration buildings plus a 1,500-car parking area.

Even with anticipated attendance, money from the actual games will be far less than the monetary investment by the state Bartholomy said the two big things to support state operation of a winter sports recreation area and realize more return on the investment are the ski lift and parking.

These two are involved in the negotiations with Poulsen.

He argues private capital should build the ski lift and has suggested an alternate site for the parking. Poulsen says the spot picked by the state for the latter would injure the beauty of the valley meadow.

"What the state propeses to do is to take over the key property of the whole Squaw Valley area and make it into a parking lot," says Poulsen.

He has asked that property for the ski jump outrun be on a lease basis and he retain the sole right to use the area, after the games, for skiing and to erect ski lifts thereon.

"He wants special privileges at the expense of California taxpayers," charges Bartholemy. "If the legislature fails to pass this bill, then he will have another full year in which to delay us."

Backing Poulsen is an organization, the Squaw Valley Property Owners Association, claiming to represent the majority of the land owners in the valley. Most have small holdings and many use the area only for short vacation periods during the year.

The state had the backing of the Placer County Chamber of Commerce and other groups. Neurals are few.

Still hanging like a spectre over the situation is the now-abandoned proposal made to the state beaches and parks commission that another 2½ million dollar be appropriated to buy up all the private land in the valley for a state park.

In addition to the Poulsen land called for in the Olympic planning and for the winter recreation area, Bartholemy says the right of eminent domain might be necessary to prevent overcharging for use of private lands over which such things as the cross country ski races will be held. He expressed optimism, however, these would be gained on a temporary basis by agreement.

Inswept Beats Derby Entries In Laurel Run

LAUREL, Md., April 20 (AP) — None of five Kentucky Derby eligibles in a field of 14 could finish in the money today in the $24,450 Chesapeake Stakes won by Gough Thompson's Inswept in the last 50 yards.

The Maryland-owned colt swept by Walter M. Jeffords' Gannet, who had taken and held the lead after they had gone three quarters of a mile.

Brandywine Stable's Cannon Fire, up around the head of the pack throughout the entire mile and a sixteenth, 3½ lengths back in third while Cary C: Boshamer's Gama pulled in fourth.

The first of the five Derby eligibles to cross the finish line was Harry F. Guggenheim's The Hammer in seventh place.

The reward for Thompson was $18,125 and the Inswept bettors collected $12, $4.60 and $4 for $2 across the board. Inswept, who is eligible for the Preakness and Belmont, the two triple crown events after the Derby, was timed in a fair 1:44 2-5.

The five Derby eligibles in the Chesapeake, The Hammer, Dark Trust, Pro-Brandy, ederal Judge and Roscoe aney, finished seventh, eighth, ninth, 10th and 11th, respectivsly.

World Champs Capture Third Straight, 10-7

BOSTON, April 20 (UP)—Hank Bauer belted a two-run homer in the 12th inning and Mickey Mantle doubled in the third Yankee run of the frame to give New York a 10-7 victory today over the Boston Red Sox in a slugfest that lasted nearly four hours.

Elston Howard, who singled in the winning run against the Red Sox Thursday, opened the Yankee 12th with a single to center. Bobby Richardson sacrificed him to second and pitcher Bobby Shantz popped out to shortstop. Then Bauer unloaded his second home run of the young season over the left field wall off reliefer Ike Delock. Billy Martin followed with a double, his second of the game, and Mantle came through with his third hit of the contest and his second RBI.

Delock, the third Boston hurler, relieved injured Bob Porterfield in the seventh inning and was charged with the loss.

Porterfield suffered a severe bruise on his pitching hand when he was struck by a wicked grounder hit by Gil McDougald after hurling creditable ball for five innings. Shantz came on in the eighth and yielded the last two of Boston's 11 hits to get the win.

The Red Sox knocked out Don (perfect game) Larsen in the second inning and Dick Gernert walloped a three-run homer off reliefer Bob Turley in the fourth to give Boston a 7-3 lead. It was Larsen's first 1957 start since pitching the dream no-hit, no-run game in the World Series last Oct. 8.

DREAM OF RETURN

Minor Clubs Full Of Ex-Major Aces

By BEN OAN

NEW YORK, April 20 (AP)—Scores of former major leaguers, among them Monte Irvin, Sam Mele, Harry Dorish and Stu Miller, are campaigning on minor league baseball fronts this season.

Many such as the four mentioned are veterans, doggedly holding on and hoping for that one last crack at the big time and the higher salaries, better playing conditions and the improved pension that go with it.

Irvin, who helped the New York Giants to National League championships in 1951 and 1954, is with Los Angeles of the Pacific Coast League. He clubbed a home run in the Angels' opening game.

Monte played of the Chicago Cubs last year, hitting .271 with 15 homers. He's 38 years old and had a major league lifetime batting average of .294 for eight years.

Dorish, a relief ace for the Boston Red Sox and Chicago White Sox, failed with the Baltimore Orioles and was sold to San Francisco (P.C.L.). He'sbeing used as a starting pitcher by the Seals. In his first appearance he shut out Portland. Harry is 34.

Mele, also 34, was released by the Cleveland Indians last month and is playing the outfield for Indianapolis of the American Association. He had a lifetime big league mark of .267 while performing for six American League teams and Cincinnati of the National League.

Stu Miller, 30, was part of the winter deal that sent Jim Hearn from the Giants to the Philidelphia Phillies. The Giants, in turn, sold Miller to Minneapolis of the American Association. In his first start with Minneapolis, the veteran righthander pitched a six-inning no-hit, no-run game.

Harry Byrd, another journeyman pitcher, is working for Charleston of the A.A. Byrd was one of the 11 players involved in the Dec. 16, 1953, trade between the New York Yankees and Philadelphia A's. He moved to New York along with Eddie Robinson and three others for six Yankees including Vic Power.

Forty - year - old Clyde McCullough, a long time favorite of Chicago Cub fans, is catching for Miami of the International League. He has 14 major league seasons under his belt, 10 in the Windy City and four in Pittsburgh.

Also with the Miami club are Jim Greengrass, former Philadelphia outfielder and Cal Abrams, ex-Brooklyn Dodger outfielder and pinchhitter.

Grand Canyon Cops Southern Cross Chase

MIAMI, Fla., April 20 (AP)—Ken Kelman's Grand Canyon came from last place to win the $50,000 Southern Cross Handican in a photo finish at Gulfstream Park today.

Ridden by Charlie Burr and carrying only 107 pounds; Grand Canyon ran the mile and an eighth in 1:50 over a fast track. Second in the blanket finish was E. H. Woods' Mighty Chief and third was Ruffalo Bros.' Flying Chief.

Grand Canyon paid $14.30, $6.90 and $4.80. Mighty Chief returned $9.90 and $6.20. Show price on Flying Chief was $12.30.

OUT OF LINEUP

BOSTON, April 20 (UP)—Third baseman Andy Carey of the New York Yankees will be out of the lineup for at least four days and perhaps a week, it was learned today. He sprained his left ankle in Thursday's game with the Red Sox but the injury was not disclosed until today.

Paul Martin Looks 'Em Over

Give those Twin City Speedway operators a little more time and thy'll have one of the major sporting attractions of this area as they continue to improve their plant and programs.

Oliver Cloyd, the track owner, and his cohorts show additional improvements each week, and, when you take into consideration that Mr. Cloyd is doing the work at his own expense, it becomes a major undertaking. Anybody else with such ideas would probably try to work up some public spirit in quest of some donations to secure a finished plant from the start.

But the Twin City Speedway, located on a 40-acre tract off the old Natchitoches road in West Monroe, is growing as the owner finds time and cash to turn into improvements. Anybody who made the first or second stock car races of the season, missed the next couple or so, and were on hand a week ago could see noticeable improvement in park facilities as well as the caliber of races.

Today the auto racing fans will find work has progressed over the week. The new road cutting directly into the speedway acreage from Natchitoches road is ready for full service, and a week of warm winds and dry weather makes the 20-acre parking area of the easterly side of the oval available.

While Cloyd owns the park and maintains the track, the auto races themselves are under the management of Gerald Greenway who each week has seen the number of stock cars and drivers increase. Only seven cars turned out for the opener a few weeks ago, last Sunday 16 cars were in action, and a few more are expected when the time trials begin this afternoon about 1:30 o'clock.

Hugh Lennon, Monroe automobile dealer, gave the racers a boost with the contribution of trophies for the feature and trophy race each Sunday.

Garages and automobile establishments of the area also are getting into the act. Several already have built stock cars and more than half of the machines now racing are operated by drivers other than the owners. Non-driving owners are usually the garages that have overhauled old cars, built them to stock car racing standards, and turned them over to drivers for a good shot of advertising.

Some such enthusiasts are Central Auto Sales, Imperial Motors, Miller's Used Cars, Owen's Garage, Tower Sports Shop, Newcomer Tire Service, A-1 Auto Sales, Larry's Carburetor Shop, C. and M. Motors, and Hurl's Garage. Cloyd's Packing House has two cars. As soon as other garages catch the racing bug the speedway competition and traffic jams will boom.

Cars already listed for today's action are No. 2, driven by A. J. Whitlock, a '50 Hudson; 33, Joe Mallard, '51 Studebaker; 99, Sergeant Stevens, '50 Hudson; 9, Buddy Roberson, '51 Chevrolet; 100, Fred Anding, '46 Ford; 7, Hank Wallace, '38 Ford; 4, James "Red" Futch, '49 Ford; 77, Bill Chapman, '46 Ford; 1, Bob Shoemaker, '49 Hudson; 8, Eddie Dye, '47 Plymouth; 3, H. L. Hale, '50 Hudson; 64, "Sonny' Brumfield, '46 Ford; 55, Gerald Greenway, '49 Ford; 11, Wade Bell, '46 Ford; 88, Dewayne Richardson, '50 Oldsmobile. Other drivers will be listed as they appear for action with qualified cars.

As an added attraction today, the Twin City Jubilee singers and musicians will be on hand for entertainment between races. The day's card is due to include the time trials, heat races, consolation, and feature race.

DERBY STOCK JUMPS

Ruler Wins Wood In Record Effort

By JOHN CHANDLER

NEW YORK, April 20 (AP)—Bold Ruler answered all the questions today when he outfought Gallant Man in a spine-tingling stretch duel to win the $59,400 Wood Memorial at Jamaica in track record time before a screaming crowd of 42,122.

In a horse race as sensational as the 1955 Wood when Nashua eged out Summer Tan right at the wire, Eddie Arcaro whipped and slashed at Bold Ruler's hide and the speedy Wheatley Stable's colt came from behind with a desperate lunge in the final stride to win by a nose.

The victory handsomely qualified Mrs. Henry Carnegie Phipps' colt for the Kentucky Derby May 4.

This was strictly a two-horse race after Gallant Man, owned by Ralph Lowe of Texas, roared around the final bend with a rush on the outside to catch the pace-setting Bold Ruler near the head of the stretch. But Jockey John Choquette and Gallant Man, could not hold off Arcaro and Co. in the final, tense seconds of as exciting a horse race as ever run.

It was six lengths back to the third horse, Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs' Promised Land.

The crowd, jumping with excitement, gasped when the lights on the tote board showed that Bold Ruler had stepped the mile and an eighth in 1:48 4-5 on a track called fast but still damp from Friday's rains. Bryan G. held the old track mark, 1:49 1-5, set Oct. 27, 1951. The Wood record was 1:50 flat, made in 1954 by Correlation.

Seven three-year olds started in this 23rd running of the Wood which has produced six Kentucky Derby winners. However, only Bold Ruler and Gallant Man, the latter an Irish-bred, rate a trip to Louisville off this race.

The crowd backed Bold Ruler down to 1-2 and he paid $3.00, $2.60 and $2.30. Gallant Man, who was the fourth choice at 8-1, returned $5.00 and $3.60. Promised Land was $2.90 to show.

Kelley Wins Marathon Run

BOSTON, April 20 (UP)—Johnny Kelley, a school teacher from Groton, Conn., brought Boston A. A. Marathon laurels back to America for the first time in 12 years today, winning the overland classic by half a mile.

Kelley, a boyish-looking 25, turned in a time of 2:20.5 as he breezed past the finish line in the 61st annual event looking nearly as fresh as when he started the 26 miles, 385 yard grind.

Postal clerk Veikko Karvonen of Finland, who won the classic four years ago, placed second in 2:23.54. Chong Woo Lim, one of three Korean entries, came fast over the last few miles to capture third place in 2:24.59.

A 25 miles an hour tail wind, slapping the 140 entires off their right hips, helped fashion the rapid time.

Kelley's time constituted a record for the hill and dale run from Hopkinton to Boston's back bay since the course was adjusted to the official Olympic distance this year.

The old record for the course was 2:14.14, set last year by Antti Viskari of Finland, but accomplished over a course 1,187 yards shorter than the adjusted distance.

The last American to win was Johnny Kelley, the older (no relation), who turned the trick in 1945. Kelley, now 49, finished 13th today.

Pidge Browne, Houston first baseman, was leading the league in batting with a lusty .571. But he had gone to the plate only seven times, while Durham and Moreno had strolled out to hit 11 times.

Ten pitchers had 1-0 records. Elliott Coleman of San Antonio led in strikeouts with eight.

Paul Rambone of Austin, Wilcy Moore and Willie McCovey of Dallas and Eddie Haas of Fort Worth were tied for the lead in doubles with two each. Keith Little and Jerry Green of Oklahoma City and Fred Marolewski of San Antonio were tied for the lead in triples with one each.

Plans For Winter Olympics Snagged

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif., April 20, (AP)—California's plans for the 1960 Winter Olympics stand at a crucial point with controversy still raging between the planners and the major landowner in this rustic mountain valley.

Involved primarily are but 32 acres of the 500 planned for the site of the giant sports show, but this small percentage has raised an issue that might conceivably send the Olympics to Innsbruck, Austria.

Majority of the land needed, about 400 acres, has been leased on 30-year terms from the U. S. Forest Service. Lease arrangements also have been reached for other private land needed in the valley.

Personalities tied into the situation include Wayne Poulsen, the owner of about 1,250 acres, who objects to state plans to buy the 32, and Alexander Cushing, operator of Squaw Valley Lodge and the man whose presentation won the games for the area.

The two once were partners but now aren't friends.

Avery Brunage, president of the International Olympic Committee, closely watches the developments. Planners say he has promised not to step in until the California legislature, currently in session, takes action.

Before the lawmakers is a bill to add $2,990,000 to the five million already appropriated for the Olympics. The money section of the measure is not causing the biggest battle.

Opponents object to two sections —one would make the Olympics site a permanent state winter recreation area after the games, and the other gives the state the power to condemn and buy private land it believes vital to the project.

Hope has been expressed that a compromise might be reached and the question of the 32 acres be resolved by agreement.

The state groups say they would still need the power of eminent domain under which the land could be condemned for the public benefit. Alan E. Bartholemy, general secretary of the organizing committee, says this is necessary to protect the state, which will have an eight million dollar investment at stake.

Permanent improvements to be constructed include an Olympic ice arena, a double-chair ski lift up Papoose Hill, three ski jumps on Papoose, a bobsled run, utilities including sewage disposal, flood control and water supply units, the Olympic village, two restaurant pavilions, officials housing and administration buildings plus a 1,500-car parking area.

Even with anticipated attendance, money from the actual games will be far less than the monetary investment by the state Bartholomy said the two big things to support state operation of a winter sports recreation area and realize more return on the investment are the ski lift and parking.

These two are involved in the negotiations with Poulsen.

He argues private capital should build the ski lift and has suggested an alternate site for the parking. Poulsen says the spot picked by the state for the latter would injure the beauty of the valley meadow.

"What the state propeses to do is to take over the key property of the whole Squaw Valley area and make it into a parking lot," says Poulsen.

He has asked that property for the ski jump outrun be on a lease basis and he retain the sole right to use the area, after the games, for skiing and to erect ski lifts thereon.

"He wants apecial privileges at the expense of California taxpayers," charges Bartholemy. "If the legislature fails to pass this bill, then he will have another full year in which to delay us."

Backing Poulsen is an organization, the Squaw Valley Property Owners Association, claiming to represent the majority of the land owners in the valley. Most have small holdings and many use the area only for short vacation periods during the year.

The state had the backing of the Placer County Chamber of Commerce and other groups. Neutrals are few.

Still hanging like a spectre over the situation is the now-abandoned proposal made to the state beaches and parks commission that another 2½ million dollar be appropriated to buy up all the private land in the valley for a state park.

In addition to the Poulsen land called for in the Olympic planning and for the winter recreation area, Bartholemy says the right of eminent domain might be necessary to prevent overcharging for use of private lands over which such things as the cross country ski races will be held. He expressed optimism, however, these would be gained on a temporary basis by agreement.

Inswept Beats Derby Entries In Laurel Run

LAUREL, Md., April 20 (AP) — None of five Kentucky Derby eligibles in a field of 14 could finish in the money today in the $24,450 Chesapeake Stakes won by Gough Thompson's Inswept in the last 50 yards.

The Maryland-owned colt swept by Walter M. Jeffords' Gannet, who had taken and held the lead after they had gone three quarters of a mile.

Brandywine Stable's Cannon Fire, up around the head of the pack throughout the entire mile and a sixteenth, 3½ lengths back in third while Cary C. Boshamer's Gama pulled in fourth.

The first of the five Derby eligibles to cross the finish line was Harry F. Guggenheim's The Hammer in seventh place.

The reward for Thompson was $18,125 and the Inswept bettors collected $12, $4.60 and $4 for $2 across the board. Inswept, who is eligible for the Preakness and Belmont, the two triple crown events after the Derby, was timed in a fair 1:44 2-5.

The five Derby eligibles in the Chesapeake, The Hammer, Dark Trust, Pro-Brandy, ederal Judge and Roscoe aney, finished seventh, eighth, ninth, 10th and 11th, respectivsly.

World Champs Capture Third Straight, 10-7

BOSTON, April 20 (UP)—Hank Bauer belted a two-run homer in the 12th inning and Mickey Mantle doubled in the third Yankee run of the frame to give New York a 10-7 victory today over the Boston Red Sox in a slugfest that lasted nearly four hours.

Elston Howard, who singled in the winning run against the Red Sox Thursday, opened the Yankee 12th with a single to center. Bobby Richardson sacrificed him to second and pitcher Bobby Shantz popped out to shortstop. Then Bauer unloaded his second home run of the young season over the left field wall off reliefer Ike Delock. Billy Martin followed with a double, his second of the game, and Mantle came through with his third hit of the contest and his second RBI.

Delock, the third Boston hurler, relieved injured Bob Porterfield in the seventh inning and was charged with the loss.

Porterfield suffered a severe bruise on his pitching hand when he was struck by a wicked grounder hit by Gil McDougald after hurling creditable ball for five innings. Shantz came on in the eighth and yielded the last two of Boston's 11 hits to get the win.

The Red Sox knocked out Don (perfect game) Larsen in the second inning and Dick Gernert walloped a three-run homer off reliefer Bob Turley in the fourth to give Boston a 7-3 lead. It was Larsen's first 1957 start since pitching the dream no-hit, no-run game in the World Series last Oct. 8.

DREAM OF RETURN

Minor Clubs Full Of Ex-Major Aces

By BEN OAN

NEW YORK, April 20 (AP)—Scores of former major leaguers, among them Monte Irvin, Sam Mele, Harry Dorish and Stu Miller, are campaigning on minor league baseball fronts this season.

Many such as the four mentioned are veterans, doggedly holding on and hoping for that one last crack at the big time and the higher salaries, better playing conditions and the improved pension that go with it.

Irvin, who helped the New York Giants to National League championships in 1951 and 1954, is with Los Angeles of the Pacific Coast League. He clubbed a home run in the Angels' opening game.

Monte played of the Chicago Cubs last year, hitting .271 with 15 homers. He's 38 years old and had a major league lifetime batting average of .294 for eight years.

Dorish, a relief ace for the Boston Red Sox and Chicago White Sox, failed with the Baltimore Orioles and was sold to San Francisco (P.C.L.). He'sbeing used as a starting pitcher by the Seals. In his first appearance he shut out Portland. Harry is 34.

Mele, also 34, was released by the Cleveland Indians last month and is playing the outfield for Indianapolis of the American Association. He had a lifetime big league mark of .267 while performing for six American League teams and Cincinnati of the National League.

Stu Miller, 30, was part of the winter deal that sent Jim Hearn from the Giants to the Philidelphia Phillies. The Giants, in turn, sold Miller to Minneapolis of the American Association. In his first start with Minneapolis, the veteran righthander pitched a six-inning no-hit, no-run game.

Harry Byrd, another journeyman pitcher, is working for Charleston of the A.A. Byrd was one of the 11 players involved in the Dec. 16, 1953, trade between the New York Yankees and Philadelphia A's. He moved to New York along with Eddie Robinson and three others for six Yankees including Vic Power.

Forty - year - old Clyde McCullough, a long time favorite of Chicago Cub fans, is catching for Miami of the International League. He has 14 major league seasons under his belt, 10 in the Windy City and four in Pittsburgh.

Other players big league followers are likely to remember are Sam Jethroe (Boston Braves) with Toronto; Jim Delsing (Detroit and Chicago White Sox) with Indianapolis Joe Presko (St. Louis Cards) with Charleston; Milo Candini (Washington) with Seattle; Toby Atwell (Pittsburgh and Milwaukee) with Wichita; Danny Schell (Philadelphia Phils) with Richmond, Va.; and Wayne Terwilliger (Chicago Cubs and the Giants) with Minneapolis.

Ridden by Charlie Burr and carrying only 107 pounds; Grand Canyon ran the mile and an eighth in 1:50 over a fast track. Second in the blanket finish was E. H. Woods' Mighty Chief and third was Ruffalo Bros.' Flying Chief.

Grand Canyon paid $14.30, $6.90 and $4.80. Mighty Chief returned $9.90 and $6.20. Show price on Flying Chief was $12.30.

OUT OF LINEUP

BOSTON, April 20 (UP)—Third baseman Andy Carey of the New York Yankees will be out of the lineup for at least four days and perhaps a week, it was learned today. He sprained his left ankle in Thursday's game with the Red Sox but the injury was not disclosed until today.

Littler Shoots 69 To Head Champions

January Slips With 73, Holds Second Place

By HAL WOOD

LAS VEGAS, Nev., April 20, (UP)—Blond Gene Littler, who plays the best in the gambling town of Las Vegas where the stakes are big, vaulted into the lead at the end of three rounds in the rich Tournament of Champions today as he fired a three-under-par 69 for a 215 total.

Going for his third straight victory in the classical and exclusive tournament, where first place pay off with a jackpot of $10,000, Littler went out in 33 and came back in 36 as he successfully battled 25-miles-an-hour winds and cold weather.

But even with that brilliant shotmaking, Gene was only one stroke in front of yesterday's leader, Don January, who had a 73 of such young stars as Dick Mayer and Billy Casper.

"Guess the best shot I made all day—and the one that put me in the lead, said Littler, "was a 64-foot putt for a birdie-two on the 11th hole. I would have been glad to get down in two on that one."

Littler now has rounds of 73-73—69.

But since turning professional a few weeks before this event two years ago, he has won twice and now stands to make it three in a row.

In the gallery following him, as usual, was singer Frankie Laine, who won more than $110.000 in Calcutt Apools on the last two triumphs — and owns him again this time. Victory this time in the Calcutta pool is worth a net of about $80.000.

January played well again today in the high winds, but he was so erratic that he probably felt lucky to come in with one-over-par. On the front nine he had only two pars—all the rest were bogies, birdies and an eagle. He has rounds of 73-65-73.

Mayer had a 78-70-69 and Casper 75-70-72.

At the 218 mark came Dow Finsterwalk with 75-73-70 and the veteran Jimmy Demaret, who has 73-72-73. Demaret chipped into the cup on the 18th hole from about 30 feet before the 5,000 spectators.

The 219 bracket included Billy Maxwell (69) Ed Furgol (7) and Arnold Palmer (74). Dr. Cary Middlecoff had a 73 for 220.

January, still bundled up with old newspapers inside his sweaters for protection from the wind, was just about as inconsistent as a golfer can get and still crack par. He birdied the second, bogied the third, birdied the fourth—and then, with the wind in his back, got an eagle three on the par-five fifth when he got home in two on the 554-yard hole. He turned right around and took a four on the par-three 222-yard seventh, then came back with a birdie on the eighth. His pars were on the first and ninth holes.

Littler was more consistent, with two birdies and the rest pars.

Meanwhile, some of the others in contention Friday were having their difficulties today. Arnold Palmer, who was only two strokes off the pace Friday with a 145 score, had a 38 and so did Jimmy Demaret, who had been tied with Palmer. Billy Casper, another 145 starter, had a 36 going out.

Among the first few to finish their 18 holes today, Peter Thomson, the Australian professional, was the best. He had a two-under-par 70 for a 222 score. Jay Hebert had a 73 for a 226; E. J. (Dutch) Harrison a 75 for 228; and Doug Sanders a 77 for 229

AIMS AT BI-DISTRICT

Neville Preparing For Playoff Scrap

With their regular campaign over and installed as district baseball champions for the sixth consecutive year, the Neville High School Tigers are awaiting the outcome of tomorrow's winner between Menard of Alexandria and Pineville to draw an opponent for the bi-district double - A title playoffs.

Three of Neville's previous five district champs went on to state title in 1953-54-55. The 1952 team was state runner-up, and last year's club was eliminated in bi-district contention. In the six-year stretch so far the Tigers have amassed 67 victories against 11 defeats, including playoffs.

The charges of coaches Jim Coats and Hershel McConathy have won eight and lost one in all games this year and went unbeaten in conference play with a 6-0 record.

Pitchers Louis Kincaid, Terry Reeves, Jim Altick, and Fred Southerland each won two decisions with the lone loss tagged on Kincaid who has worked the most innings, 18 1-3. L. M. Welch, who appeared in only one game, is the only hurler without a win or a loss. Altick leads in strikeouts with 24 and allowed only three hits in 15 innings. Reeves has fanned 20 in 16 innings in which he gave up seven hits. Southerland struck out 18 and allowed just four hits in 11 2-3 innings. Kincaid has whiffed 11 and gave up 13 hits. Welch, working only one inning, allowed no hits and fanned none.

Lollar's Five RBI's Boost Chisox Margin

CHICAGO, April 20 (AP)—Catcher Sherm Lollar's five RBI's helped the Chicago White Sox erase a 6-0 deficit and whirl to their third straight victory with a 11-7 triumph over the Kansas City Athletics today. Lollar slammed a two-run homer, a two-run double and drove across a fifth run with a sacrifice fly.

Title Match Here Monday

Promoter Gus Kallio seems to have given the old wrestling master, Jack Curtis, a full assignment for Monday night. The Vicksburg, Miss., grappler will participate in a one-hour time limited tag match to open the evening and follow with a defense of his Louisiana state heavyweight championship against Antone Leone in a 90-minute bounded affair.

In addition to staying in the ring a possible two hours and thirty minutes Curtis will be facing top-notch opposition throughout the evening. Leone from Oyster Bay, N.J., will try his luck for the title after Prince Emir of Arabia, and "Spider" Galento, Hollywood, Calif have battled with the Mississippian in the tag match. George Curtis will team with his brother in the tag scramble.

Leone has quickly built a name of villiany for himself on the local mat, pushing Referee Loy Scarborough almost out of the ring in his debut and following with a stalemate and a victory over young Tarzan Bolo. Bolo's shoulder was injured for the third fall of his second meeting with Leone, but the New Jersey product had little mercy on his crippled victim and hastily took a win by battering his opponent to the floor.

Prince Emir and Galento come to Kallio's "House of Groans and Moans" without any previous notice except that they are nationally known wrestlers.

Doors will open at seven o'clock with the tag team matter kicking off the night's bone stretching at 8:15.

Kallio has announced his regular prices for this week's card with general admission tickets selling for 90 cents and ringside seats on sale for one dollar and 50 cents. Children under six years of age, who are accompanied by their parents, will be admitted free and children from six years to twelve will buy 50-cent pasteboards.

Littler Shoots 69 To Head Champions

January Slips With 73, Holds Second Place

By HAL WOOD

LAS VEGAS, Nev., April 20, (UP)—Blond Gene Littler, who plays the best in the gambling town of Las Vegas where the stakes are big, vaulted into the lead at the end of three rounds in the rich Tournament of Champions today as he fired a three-under-par 69 for a 215 total.

Going for his third straight victory in the classical and exclusive tournament, where first place pay off with a jackpot of $10,000, Littler went out in 33 and came back in 36 as he successfully battled 25-miles-an-hour winds and cold weather.

But even with that brilliant shotmaking, Gene was only one stroke in front of yesterday's leader, Don January, who had a 73 of such young stars as Dick Mayer and Billy Casper.

"Guess the best shot I made all day—and the one that put me in the lead, said Littler, "was a 64-foot putt for a birdie-two on the 11th hole. I would have been glad to get down in two on that one."

Littler now has rounds of 73-73—69.

But since turning professional a few weeks before this event two years ago, he has won twice and now stands to make it three in a row.

In the gallery following him, as usual, was singer Frankie Laine, who won more than $110,000 in Calcutt Apools on the last two triumphs — and owns him again this time. Victory this time in the Calcutta pool is worth a net of about $80,000.

January played well again today in the high winds, but he was so erratic that he probably felt lucky to come in with one-over-par. On the front nine he had only two pars—all the rest were bogies, birdies and an eagle. He has rounds of 78-65-73.

Mayer had a 78-70-69 and Casper 75-70-72.

At the 218 mark came Dow Finsterwalk with 75-73-70 and the veteran Jimmy Demaret, who has 73-72-73. Demaret chipped into the cup on the 18th hole from about 30 feet before the 5,000 spectators.

The 219 bracket included Billy Maxwell (69) Ed Furgol (7) and Arnold Palmer (74). Dr. Cary Middlecoff had a 73 for 220.

January, still bundled up with old newspapers inside his sweaters for protection from the wind, was just about as inconsistent as a golfer can get and still crack par. He birdied the second, bogied the third, birdied the fourth—and then, with the wind in his back, got an eagle three on the par-five fifth when he got home in two on the 554-yard hole. He turned right around and took a four on the par-three 222-yard seventh, then came back with a birdie on the eighth. His pars were on the first and ninth holes.

Littler was more consistent, with two birdies and the rest pars.

Meanwhile, some of the others in contention Friday were having their difficulties today. Arnold Palmer, who was only two strokes off the pace Friday with a 145 score, had a 38 and so did Jimmy Demaret, who had been tied with Palmer. Billy Casper, another 145 starter, had a 36 going out.

Among the first few to finish their 18 holes today, Peter Thomson, the Australian professional, was the best. He had a two-under-par 70 for a 222 score. Jay Hebert had a 73 for a 226; E. J. (Dutch) Harrison a 75 for 228; and Doug Sanders a 77 for 229

AT BAYOU DESIARD

The second round matches, about half completed, are due for a finish in the Cramer Haas Memorial Handicap Tournament today at Bayou DeSiard Country Club. Among those still to appear in second round play today is Dr. J. W. Schonlau, the defending champion. No champ has ever won the title a second time.

Fred Fudickar beat Dickie Guerriero, 2 and 1; David Masur beat A. V. Breard, 1 up; J. S. Washburn won on default from W. O. Smith; John Godfrey beat George Miller, 4 and 3; Amos Smelser beat W. L. Dean, 1 up; Ivy Jordan beat F. E. Bennett, 2 up; Tommy Pitt won on default from Jack Rubin; Ed Pohlman beat Joe Goyne, 1 up; Frank Davis beat Ned Leigh, 3 and 2; H. C. AIMS AT BI-DISTRICT

Neville Preparing For Playoff Scrap

With their regular campaign over and installed as district baseball champions for the sixth consecutive year, the Neville High School Tigers are awaiting the outcome of tomorrow's winner between Menard of Alexandria and Pineville to draw an opponent for the bi-district double - A title playoffs.

Three of Neville's previous five district champs went on to state title in 1953-54-55. The 1952 team was state runner-up, and last year's club was eliminated in bi-district contention. In the six-year stretch so far the Tigers have amassed 67 victories against 11 defeats, including playoffs.

The charges of coaches Jim Coats and Hershel McConathy have won eight and lost one in all games this year and went unbeaten in conference play with a 6-0 record.

Pitchers Louis Kincaid, Terry Reeves, Jim Altick, and Fred Southerland each won two decisions with the lone loss tagged on Kincaid who has worked the most innings, 18 1-3. L. M. Welch, who appeared in only one game, is the only hurler without a win or a loss. Altick leads in strikeouts with 24 and allowed only three hits in 15 innings. Reeves has fanned 20 in 16 innings in which he gave up seven hits. Southerland struck out 18 and allowed just four hits in 11 2-3 innings. Kincaid has whiffed 11 and gave up 13 hits. Welch, working only one inning, allowed no hits and fanned none.

Title Match Here Monday

Promoter Gus Kallio seems to have given the old wrestling master, Jack Curtis, a full assignment for Monday night. The Vicksburg, Miss., grappler will participate in a one-hour time limited tag match to open the evening and follow with a defense of his Louisiana state heavyweight championship against Antone Leone in a 90-minute bounded affair.

In addition to staying in the ring a possible two hours and thirty minutes Curtis will be facing top-notch opposition throughout the evening. Leone from Oyster Bay, N.J., will try his luck for the title after Prince Emir of Arabia, and "Spider" Galento, Hollywood, Calif have battled with the Mississippian in the tag match. George Curtis will team with his brother in the tag scramble.

Leone has quickly built a name of villiany for himself on the local mat, pushing Referee Loy Scarborough almost out of the ring in his debut and following with a stalemate and a victory over young Tarzan Bolo. Bolo's shoulder was injured for the third fall of his second meeting with Leone, but the New Jersey product had little mercy on his crippled victim and hastily took a win by battering his opponent to the floor.

Prince Emir and Galento come to Kallio's "House of Groans and Moans" without any previous notice except that they are nationally known wrestlers.

Doors will open at seven o'clock with the tag team matter kicking off the night's bone stretching at 8:15.

Kallio has announced his regular prices for this week's card with general admission tickets selling for 90 cents and ringside seats on sale for one dollar and 50 cents. Children under six years of age, who are accompanied by their parents, will be admitted free and children from six years to twelve will buy 50-cent pasteboards.

BOWLING

With Tommy Higgins

Men's motch tourney

The second annual men's Monroe City Match Championship will be held at the Monroe Bowling Center April 27th and 28th. The finals will be rolled May 4th and 5th. This is an ABC sanctioned tourney.

Anyone may enter provided they are a member (sanctioned) of ABC and the Monroe City Association. There will be six contestants to roll off in the finals and points will be used by Peterson's system to determine each position or finish.

Qualifying contestants shall roll 18 games across 10 alleys. The first or highest six contestants will advance to the finals. There they will bowl 18 more games to determine the winner.

The winner will go to the state match games and there they will bowl to determine a winner to represent Louisiana in the National Match games.

E. B. Peddy, who does his bowling for Royal Seed and Feed and Cloverleaf, won last year and finished third in the state. E. B. will be seeded this year and will not have to bowl until the finals.

A glance at the leagues

With only three weeks remaining in most of the leagues bowlers are getting down to the business of winning.

In the Major League, it's a two-way battle with Longview Equipment and Continental Labs. Longview holds a half-game edge going into this week's schedule, but the way Continental has been bowling lately its anybody's championship.

The Kegler League is all tied up with the Cloverleaf and Monroe "66" in the top spot. Both of these fine teams have 83 points. Pan-Am, which has been coming up strongly, is in third place with 80 points F&W Motors in fourth place still has a slim chance.

Over in the Ladies' League, it's a pretty good bet to take Silversteins. Silversteins seem to have the league all to themselves. Cloverleaf Dairies is 16 points behind in second place.

Another dogfight is going on in the Business Women's League. Joseph's Esso holds a bare point lead over Delta Music. Each week it seems the two teams swap about in the standings.

Monroe Bowling Center and Schlitz are battling for the number one spot in the Pioneer League. Monroe Bowling Center holds a two point lead and need three points to cinch the crown.

Southwest Gas, doing their bowling in the Industrial Equipment League, is in good shape. They are leading second place Bucyrus Erie by 19 points.

In the Mixed League, it's Louisville Grill over Slade Oil and Gas.

Slagle Johnson and L & B Athletic Association are having quite a fight of their own in the Industrial League. Slagle Johnson at the present is on top but the lead isn't much.

Chatter

In the 11th annual Women's State Tournament Monroe bowlers took home $752. That's more dough than any other city in the state won.

Edmound Brown tossed his first 200 game in league play the past week as the News-Star-World team whipped Henderson's four points to none. Congratulations.

An Easter Thought

To the Major League Bowlers
The Kegler, Industrial and Pioneer,
Ladies League, Business United Gas
And Newcomer's starting this year.
Mixed League and Industrial Equipment
And to our sponsors let me say,
May Joy and happiness forever
Be yours this EASTER DAY

Bums Win On Podres 6-Hitter

Brooks Shut Out Pirates In 2-0 Game

BROOKLYN, April 20 (AP)— Icy-nerved Johnny Podres, making his first start since pitching the Dodgers to their 1955 World Series triumph, shut out Pittsburgh with six hits in leading his unbeaten mates to their third victory, 2-0.

Back-to-back home runs in the fourth inning by Duke Snider and Carl Furillo off the Pirates' Bob Friend provided the chunky, 24-year-old southpaw with all of the battling support he required.

Furillo followed with a blast into the lower leftfield stands. Gil Hodges came close to making it three in a row with a high poke near the left field stands but it barely fell short and Roman Mejias grabbed it with one hand.

Podres won two games from the Yankees in the 1955 World Series including an eight- hit 2-0 thriller in the final game to give the Dodgers their first World Series title. Despite an injured back, Johnny was drafted and inducted into the navy on March 19, 1956. He was given a medical discharge seven months later.

STRUGGLING ON

Evangeline Opens Tuesday

By THE ASSOCIATED RESS

There were many who thought last season would be the final one for the Class C League. New Iberia folded on May 19. Fire razed the Thibodaux stadium. The second round playoff was canceled for lack of interest. And Monroe's operators, saying they had lost more than $11,000 in 1956, announced they would not field a team this year.

But six teams will start the new season Tuesday with the Baton Rouge Rebels at the Alexandria Aces, the Lafayette Oilers at the Thibodaux Senators' new stadium and the Lake Charles Giants at the Crowley Millers.

The league will play 120 games, 20 under the 1956 schedule and end the season on Aug. 21. The first round of the playoff will be for the best of three games. The final round will be for the best of five. Previously each round has been for the best of seven. The all star game will be played July 8.

Only one manager is back from last season — Bill Dossey of Thibodaux. The new pilots are Ken Silvestri of Alexandria, Walter Dixon of Lafayette, Ed Robinson of Crowley, Chester (Whitey) McDowell of Lake Charles and John Streza of Baton Rouge.

Three clubs kept last season's affiliations. Crowley will work with Kansas City, Lafayette with the Chicago Cubs and Baton Rouge will get help from Cincinnati and Atlanta.

Alexandria took over Monroe's agreement with the New York Yankees, Lake Charles will go along as an independent and Thibodaux expects aid from Cincinnati.

THIRD STRAIGHT

Braves Shade Redlegs, 5-4

By CHUCK CAPALDO

MILWAUKEE, April 20 (AP)—The Milwaukee Braves, helped along by a two-run triple by Bobby Thomson and a homer by Del Crandall, today won their third game in as many starts this season by shading the fast-closing Cincinnati Redlegs, 5-4.

The decision enabled the Braves to keep step with the Brooklyn Dodgers in the National League lead. The Dodgers also won their third straight game today.

The Redlegs, who tied the all-time National League record for home runs in one season last year, produced their first two homers of the new campaign, but couldn't evade their third consecutive loss. Wally Post and George Crowe hit for the circit for the losers.

Ray Crone, who started and went 7 2-3 innings before being relieved by Red Murff, got credit for the victory, his first of the season. The loser was Brooks Lawrence, the first of five Cincinnati pitchers.

Manager Birdie Tebbetts used seven pinchhitters in an effort to break the club's victory drouth The last one, Smoky Burgess foule out to Eddie Mathews with a runner on third in the ninth.

Danny O'Connell's run-scoring double in the sixth proved to be the deciding hit. Each side had 11 safeties.

SAVE THOSE FISH!

Wildlife Supports Hog Bayou Project

A Hog Bayou project for better fishing in Bayou DeSiard has been officially supported by the board of directors of the Ouachita Unit of the Wildlife Federation

Unit president A. S. (Bud) Tidwell said the board of directors had acted because of "strong desire" of local fishermen to provide a means for Bayou DeSiard fish to cross the Hog Bayou dam from Hog Bayou back into Bayou DeSiard.

He explained that Bayou DeSiard is losing a "great quantity" of fish because they are unable to swim back over the Hog Bayou dam.

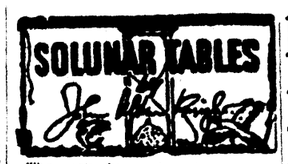
"We are losing uncountable thousands every year for the simple reason that once they cross the dam into Hog Bayou to spawn, they're gone forever," he said.

The board of directors has also called for the prevention of stream pollution, primarily in Ouachita river.

Tidwell said the two projects along with two others will be presented to the unit at its April 30 meeting.

Tentative plans are being made for a fishing contest, sponsored by the local unit. Children under 14 would be eligible and several prizes would be presented, Tidwell stated.

The club is also considering a safety and education program. Boy Scout troops will be invited to attend unit meetings and metal signs calling for conservation will be placed at all boat docks in the parishh Tidwell explained.



The schedule of solunar periods has been taken from John Alden Knight's Solunar Tables. Plan your days so that you will be fishing in good territory or hunting in good cover during these times, if you wish to find the best sport that each day has to offer.

The major periods begin at the times shown and last for an hour and a half or two hours thereafter The minor periods are of somewhat shorter duration.

MORROW HEADS FIELD

Drake Relays Have Touch Of Olympics

By L. E. SKELLEY

DES MOINES, April 20 (AP) — The Drake Relays will have their 48th running next weekend and there will be a post - Olympic touch to the festivities.

Olympians who will appear include sprinter Bobby Morrow of Abilene Christian, distance runner Laszlo Tabori, who deserted his communist - dominated Hungarian homeland for the free world, and Al Oerter, the University of Kansas discus thrower.

Morrow, a triple gold medal winner at the Melbourne games last fall, will have two Olympic foes in the 100 - yard dash. Ira Murchison of Western Michigan, fourth in the 100 - meter Olumpic race Morrow won, and Mike Agostini of Fresno State, who finished sixth, will toss a stern challenge at the Texan.

Morrow has more than one reason for wanting to win here. A year ago at Drake he suffered his first collegiate loss in the 100 when he was beaten by Dave Sime of Duke in the relays record time of :09.4. It was a spectacular duel in the rain in which the Abilene star, off to a slow start, almost caught Sime at the finish.

Morrow's efforts won't be confined to the 100 - yard dash. He will anchor the Abilene sprint relays team which, if the weather is favorable, is expected to do record - breaking stints in the 440 and 880-yard events.

Tabori, one of the few runners who have gone under four minutes in the mile, apparently can't miss wiping out the Drake record of 4:08.4 established by Wes Santee in 1955.

Others in the mile field will include Ted Wheeler, formerly of the University of Iowa and an Olumpic performer; Alex Henderson, the Australian now at Arizona State (Tempe) and Phil Coleman of the Chicago Track Club.

Oerter, winner of the Olympic discus throw at 184 feet, 11 inches, should wreck the Drake mark of 172-11. As a sophomore he won the event at the Texas, Kansas and Drake Relays, and won at Texas this year with a 180-9½ toss.

Deacon Jones of Iowa, another member of the U. S. Olympic team, has designs on the Drake two-mile mark of 9:10 which Greg Rice of Notre Dame set in 1939. Deacon has run 9:04.9.

Another Big Ten athlete, Dave Owen of Michigan, figures to do away with the Drake shot put mark of 56 feet, 3¼ inches. The Big Ten indoor champ has done 59-6.

Kansas and Georgetown are mentioned as the top teams in the distance relays. Georgetown rambled to a 7:39.6 mark for the two-mile in the National A. A. U. indoor meet.

Also from Kansas will come Wilt Chamberlain, the All-America basketball player who is a good high jumper. The Stilt has soared 6 feet, 4⅞ inches.

Over-all, the relays will have a geographical sweep from the west coast to Georgia Tech. Only Indiana and Ohio State of the Big Ten won't be represented. Colorado will be the only absentee from the Big Seven.

Senators Use 4-Run 7th To Beat Orioles

WASHINGTON, April 20 (AP) — Washington erupted for four runs in the seventh inning against Connie Johnson today to defeat Baltimore, 6-4. Camilo Pascual, who yielded to a pinch-hitter in the seventh, got the victory.

BOWLING

With Tommy Higgins

Men's motch tourney

The second annual men's Monroe City Match Championship will be held at the Monroe Bowling Center April 27th and 28th. The finals will be rolled May 4th and 5th. This is an ABC sanctioned tourney.

Anyone may enter provided they are a member (sanctioned) of ABC and the Monroe City Association. There will be six contestants to roll off in the finals and points will be used by Peterson's system to determine each position or finish.

Qualifying contestants shall roll 18 games across 10 alleys. The first or highest six contestants will advance to the finals. There they will bowl 18 more games to determine the winner.

The winner will go to the state match games and there they will bowl to determine a winner to represent Louisiana in the National Match games.

E. B. Peddy, who does his bowling for Royal Seed and Feed and Cloverleaf, won last year and finished third in the state. E. B. will be seeded this year and will not have to bowl until the finals.

A glance at the leagues

With only three weeks remaining in most of the leagues bowlers are getting down to the business of winning.

In the Major League, it's a two-way battle with Longview Equipment and Continental Labs. Longview holds a half-game edge going into this week's schedule, but the way Continental has been bowling lately its anybody's championship.

The Kegler League is all tied up with the Cloverleaf and Monroe "66" in the top spot. Both of these fine teams have 83 points. Pan-Am, which has been coming up strongly, is in third place with 80 points F&W Motors in fourth place still has a slim chance.

Over in the Ladies' League, it's a pretty good bet to take Silversteins. Silversteins seem to have the league all to themselves. Cloverleaf Dairies is 16 points behind in second place.

Another dogfight is going on in the Business Women's League. Joseph's Esso holds a bare point lead over Delta Music. Each week it seems the two teams swap about in the standings.

Monroe Bowling Center and Schiitz are battling for the number one spot in the Pioneer League. Monroe Bowling Center holds a two point lead and need three points to cinch the crown.

Southwest Gas, doing their bowling in the Industrial Equipment League, is in good shape. They are leading second place Bucyrus Erie by 19 points.

In the Mixed League, it's Louisville Grill over Slade Oil and Gas.

Slagle Johnson and L & B Athletic Association are having quite a fight of their own in the Industrial League. Slagle Johnson at the present is on top but the lead isn't much.

Chatter

In the 11th annual Women's State Tournament Monroe bowlers took home $752. That's more dough than any other city in the state won.

Edmound Brown tossed his first 200 game in league play the past week as the News-Star-World team whipped Henderson's four points to none. Congratulations.

An Easter Thought

To the Major League Bowlers
The Kegler, Industrial and Pioneer,
Ladies League, Business United Gas
And Newcomer's starting this year.

Brooks Shut Out Pirates In 2-0 Game

BROOKLYN, April 20 (AP)— Icy-nerved Johnny Podres, making his first start since pitching the Dodgers to their 1955 World Series triumph, shut out Pittsburgh with six hits in leading his unbeaten mates to their third victory, 2-0.

Back-to-back home runs in the fourth inning by Duke Snider and Carl Furillo off the Pirates' Bob Friend provided the chunky, 24-year-old southpaw with all of the battling support he required.

Furillo followed with a blast into the lower leftfield stands. Gil Hodges came close to making it three in a row with a high poke near the left field stands but it barely fell short and Roman Mejias grabbed it with one hand.

Podres won two games from the Yankees in the 1955 World Series including an eight- hit 2-0 thriller in the final game to give the Dodgers their first World Series title. Despite an injured back, Johnny was drafted and inducted into the navy on March 19, 1956. He was given a medical discharge seven months later.

STRUGGLING ON

Evangeline Opens Tuesday

By THE ASSOCIATED RESS

There were many who thought last season would be the final one for the Class C League. New Iberia folded on May 19. Fire razed the Thibodaux stadium. The second round playoff was canceled for lack of interest. And Monroe's operators, saying they had lost more than $11,000 in 1956, announced they would not field a team this year.

But six teams will start the new season Tuesday with the Baton Rouge Rebels at the Alexandria Aces, the Lafayette Oilers at the Thibodaux Senators' new stadium and the Lake Charles Giants at the Crowley Millers.

The league will play 120 games, 20 under the 1956 schedule and end the season on Aug. 21. The first round of the playoff will be for the best of three games. The final round will be for the best of five. Previously each round has been for the best of seven. The all star game will be played July 8.

Only one manager is back from last season — Bill Dossey of Thibodaux. The new pilots are Ken Silvestri of Alexandria, Walter Dixon of Lafayette, Ed Robinson of Crowley, Chester (Whitey) McDowell of Lake Charles and John Streza of Baton Rouge.

Three clubs kept last season's affiliations. Crowley will work with Kansas City, Lafayette with the Chicago Cubs and Baton Rouge will get help from Cincinnati and Atlanta.

Alexandria took over Monroe's agreement with the New York Yankees, Lake Charles will go along as an independent and Thibodaux expects aid from Cincinnati.

THIRD STRAIGHT

Braves Shade Redlegs, 5-4

By CHUCK CAPALDO

MILWAUKEE, April 20 (AP)—The Milwaukee Braves, helped along by a two-run triple by Bobby Thomson and a homer by Del Crandall, today won their third game in as many starts this season by shading the fast-closing Cincinnati Redlegs, 5-4.

The decision enabled the Braves to keep step with the Brooklyn Dodgers in the National League lead. The Dodgers also won their third straight game today.

The Redlegs, who tied the all-time National League record for home runs in one season last year, produced their first two homers of the new campaign, but couldn't evade their third consecutive loss. Wally Post and George Crowe hit for the circit for the losers.

Ray Crone, who started and went 7 2-3 innings before being relieved by Red Murff, got credit for the victory, his first of the season. The loser was Brooks Lawrence, the first of five Cincinnati pitchers.

Manager Birdie Tebbetts used seven pinchhitters in an effort to break the club's victory drouth The last one, Smoky Burgess foule out to Eddie Mathews with a runner on third in the ninth.

Danny O'Connell's run-scoring double in the sixth proved to be the deciding hit. Each side had 11 safeties.

Wildlife Supports Hog Bayou Project

A Hog Bayou project for better fishing in Bayou DeSiard has been officially supported by the board of directors of the Ouachita Unit of the Wildlife Federation

Unit president A. S. (Bud) Tidwell said the board of directors had acted because of "strong desire" of local fishermen to provide a means for Bayou DeSiard fish to cross the Hog Bayou dam from Hog Bayou back into Bayou DeSiard.

He explained that Bayou DeSiard is losing a "great quantity" of fish because they are unable to swim back over the Hog Bayou dam.

"We are losing uncountable thousands every year for the simple reason that once they cross the dam into Hog Bayou to spawn, they're gone foreever," he said.

The board of directors has also called for the prevention of stream pollution, primarily in Ouachita river.

Tidwell said the two projects along with two others will be presented to the unit at its April 30 meeting.

Tentative plans are being made for a fishing contest, sponsored by the local unit. Children under 14 would be eligible and several prizes would be presented, Tidwell stated.

The club is also considering a safety and education program. Boy Scout troops will be invited to attend unit meetings and metal signs calling for conservation will be placed at all boat docks in the parishh Tidwell explained.

The schedule of solunar periods has been taken from John Alden Knight's Solunar Tables. Plan your days so that you will be fishing in good territory or hunting in good cover during these times, if you wish to find the best sport that each day has to offer

The major periods begin at the times shown and last for an hour and a half or two hours thereafter The minor periods are of somewhat shorter duration.

MORROW HEADS FIELD

Drake Relays Have Touch Of Olympics

By L. E. SKELLEY

DES MOINES, April 20 (AP) — The Drake Relays will have their 48th running next weekend and there will be a post - Olympic touch to the festivities.

Olympians who will appear include sprinter Bobby Morrow of Abilene Christian, distance runner Laszlo Tabori, who deserted his communist - dominated Hungarian homeland for the free world, and Al Oerter, the University of Kansas discus thrower.

Morrow, a triple gold medal winner at the Melbourne games last fall, will have two Olympic foes in the 100 - yard dash. Ira Murchison of Western Michigan, fourth in the 100 - meter Olumpic race Morrow won, and Mike Agostini of Fresno State, who finished sixth, will toss a stern challenge at the Texan.

Morrow has more than one reason for wanting to win here. A year ago at Drake he suffered his first collegiate loss in the 100 when he was beaten by Dave Sime of Duke in the relays record time of :09.4. It was a spectacular duel in the rain in which the Abilene star, off to a slow start, almost caught Sime at the finish.

Morrow's efforts won't be confined to the 100 - yard dash. He will anchor the Abilene sprint relays team which, if the weather is favorable, is expected to do record - breaking stints in the 440 and 880-yard events.

Tabori, one of the few runners who have gone under four minutes in the mile, apparently can't miss wiping out the Drake record of 4:08.4 established by Wes Santee in 1955.

Others in the mile field will include Ted Wheeler, formerly of the University of Iowa and an Olumpic performer; Alex Henderson, the Australian now at Arizona State (Tempe) and Phil Coleman of the Chicago Track Club.

Oerter, winner of the Olympic discus throw at 184 feet, 11 inches, should wreck the Drake mark of 172-11. As a sophomore he won the event at the Texas, Kansas and Drake Relays, and won at Texas this year with a 180-9½ toss.

Deacon Jones of Iowa, another member of the U. S. Olympic team, has designs on the Drake two-mile mark of 9:10 which Greg Rice of Notre Dame set in 1939. Deacon has run 9:04.9.

Another Big Ten athlete, Dave Owen of Michigan, figures to do away with the Drake shot put mark of 56 feet, 3¼ inches. The Big Ten indoor champ has done 59-6.

Kansas and Georgetown are mentioned as the top teams in the distance relays. Georgetown rambled to a 7:39.6 mark for the two-mile in the National A. A. U. indoor meet.

Also from Kansas will come Wilt Chamberlain, the All-America basketball player who is a good high jumper. The Stilt has soared 6 feet, 4⅞ inches.

Over-all, the relays will have a geographical sweep from the west coast to Georgia Tech. Only Indiana and Ohio State of the Big Ten won't be represented. Colorado will be the only absentee from the Big Seven.

Revolt Seethes In Cuba Despite High Economy

By LARRY ALLEN

HAVANA, April 20 (AP) — Sugar prices are high and the Cuban people are riding the crest of one of their biggest waves of prosperity—yet this biggest Island republic in the Caribbean seethes with rumors of revolt.

Whether and when revolution might come that could topple the government of President Fulgencio Batista is anybody's guess—for it seems Latin tempers often flare into violence at the very moment everything seems to be so peaceful.

That's the way it appears right now in Havana and most of this 1,000-mile-long island. There are no tanks or reinforced troops and police patrolling the streets but at the presidential palace there are men waiting for trouble. At all of its sandbagged entrances, soldiers and police stand guard.

The over one million inhabitants of this bustling, thriving capital city go about their daily work and play without any outward signs of concern for the future—and that goes for the rest of the island's total of around six million people.

There long has been a saying in Cuba that "As suga· goes, so goes Cuba." Right now, sugar is wholesaling at around five cents per pound, or better—and that's high — and the crop this year should pour over 400 million dollars into the Cuban treasury out of sales to the United States alone.

But there is political bitterness. There is an "uneasy peace" in Cuba. There are undeniable tens- even hundreds of thousands of Cubans —who don't like Batista and the way he runs the government. But his supporters point out that not everybody in the United States likes President Eisenhower. One big fact that has stirred the resentment of many Cubans is that Batista originally took power by force and deposed a constitutionally elected chief executive. Later Batista was elected.

This is a theme that is harped upon constantly by the splurge of handbills frequently circulated in the streets of Havana and elsewhere in Cuba—their exact source unknown.

Those who oppose Batista call him a dictator who rules only because he, himself — a one-time army sergeant — is managing to hold the support of the nation's armed forces and police.

They have charged there is no democracy in Cuba; there is censorship of the press; there are many killings that stem from political gangsterism; the students are opposed to Batista and in retaliation he has closed the nation's universities; there are no constitutional guarantees, and there can never be free elections.

In an interview Batista said he questions whether the term dictator could be applied to him because there are no military men in his Cabinet and his people "enjoy freedom of press, speech and religion and all privileges guaranteed by the constitution."

Batista did suspend some constitutional guarantees — such as rights to peaceful assembly and barring arrest without a warrant last December after a band of 81 men led by Fidel Castro made a futile "invasion" of eastern Cuba from Mexico.

Batista said he suspended the rights "only to prevent terrorism among Cuban People." He said he restored most of them on April 1 when he felt there was no fear of a popular uprising against his government.

Actually, there is no press censorship in Cuba and the heads of the autonomous universities of Oriente, La Villas and Havana themselves ordered doors closed last December in an effort to block participation by students in any revolutionary activities. There is no libel law here and the press often violently attacks Batista.

The view of diplomats long resident here is that there isn't going to be a popular revolt against Batista. But they say a group seeking power could strike at the presidential palace and either kill Batista or smuggle him out of the country.

Such an attempt was made last March 13. Twenty-three of the attackers and five presidential troops were killed.

Observers say attacks of this type would have to have army support to be successful. For in Cuba, whoever has the army with him has control of the nation's destinies.

Phelps-Gordon Vows Exchanged In Chapel Ceremony Saturday

The Chew Memorial Chapel of the First Baptist Church, in Shreveport, was the scene Saturday evening at 7:30 o'clock, of an impressive wedding ceremony uniting in marriage Miss Charlotte Jane Gordon and James LaBatt Phelps, Jr. She is the daughter of Mrs. Lester Gordon and the late Mr. Gordon, of Shreveport, and Mr. Phelps' parents are Mr. and Mrs. James L. Phelps, of this city.

Standards of white gladioli and garden palms and lighted cathedral tapers decorated the altar and the church pews were marked with satin ribbons.

The Reverend James W. Middleton officiated and during the ceremony there were selections by Miss Marjorie Casanova, organist and Kenneth Dooley, vocalist.

The bride was given away by her uncle, Mr. Robert William Gary, of Beaumont, Tex. Her gown was of white embroidered tulle. The sculptured bodice had a sweetheart neckline and long tightfitting sleeves finishing in lily points over the hands. The embroidered motif formed a peplum effect over the extremely bouffant skirt worn over hoops. The entire width of the floor length skirt was scalloped in the same embroidery design. A juliet cap of embroidered tulle studded with sequins, held her veil of illusion. She wore a single strand of pearls and carried a small white Bible covered with a white orchid surrounded by stephanotis and tied with satin ribbons.

Mrs. Sara Kennon, of this city, was the matron of honor. Her dress of tulle over taffeta was in two shades of pink. She carried an arm bouquet of pink carnations. Little Miss Nancy Hammons acted as flower girl. She was dressed like the honor attendant and carried a basket of the same pink blossoms.

B. B. McWhorter was best man and Roland Carter and J. W. Webster, Jr. served as ushers and lighted the candles before the ceremony.

The reception was held in the reception room of the church. Mrs. Gordon received her guests in a gown of pink Chantilly lace over taffeta. Her small hat was matching in color and at her shoulder was a white glammellia corsage.

A blue lace dress combined with chiffon was worn by the groom's mother, who assisted Mrs. Gordon in receiving. Her small hat was of the same shade of blue as were her shoes and bag. She had a white corsage.

White gladioli were placed at vantage points throughout the reception room. The bride's table was covered with a white organdy cloth over white satin garlanded at the edges with smilax, studded with pink carnations. At one end was a crystal punch bowl and at the opposite end the four tiered, white iced wedding cake topped with the figurines of a miniature bride and groom and ornamented at each tier with love birds. Mrs. R. W. Gary, of Beaumont, Tex., aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Alfred Bullock alternated at the punch bowl and serving the cake were Miss Ann Norsworthy, Miss Helen Lumpkin and Miss Fern Hall.

Out of town guests atending the wedding were: Mrs. Roy O. Hale, Mr. and Mrs. Garland Hammons, Miss Nancy Hammons and Miss Sue Ellen Hammons, Mr. and Mrs. James L. Phelps, Mr. and Mrs. B. B. McWhorter, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Webster, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Roland Carter, Mr. and Mrs. Joe F. Rabun, Mrs. Sara S. Kennon, Mr. and Mrs. Frank McDermott and Mrs. Evelyn Curry, all of Monroe. Mr. and Mrs. Ross McDade, III, of El Campo, Tex., Dr. and Mrs. J. D. McGovern, Hooks, Tex. Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Gary, Beaumont, Tex., Mr. and Mrs. Sam Bailey, Sulphur, La., Mr. and Mrs. Guy Kellogg, Springhill, and Miss Fern Hall, Dallas, Tex.

Phelps-Gordon Vows Exchanged In Chapel Ceremony Saturday

The Chew Memorial Chapel of the First Baptist Church, in Shreveport, was the scene Saturday evening at 7:30 o'clock, of an impressive wedding ceremony uniting in marriage Miss Charlotte Jane Gordon and James LaBatt Phelps, Jr. She is the daughter of Mrs. Lester Gordon and the late Mr. Gordon, of Shreveport, and Mr. Phelps' parents are Mr. and Mrs. James L. Phelps, of this city.

Standards of white gladioli and garden palms and lighted cathedral tapers decorated the altar and the church pews were marked with satin ribbons.

The Reverend James W. Middleton officiated and during the ceremony there were selections by Miss Marjorie Casanova, organist and Kenneth Dooley, vocalist.

The bride was given away by her uncle, Mr. Robert William Gary, of Beaumont, Tex. Her gown was of white embroidered tulle. The sculptured bodice had a sweetheart neckline and long tightfitting sleeves finishing in lily points over the hands. The embroidered motif formed a peplum effect over the extremely bouffant skirt worn over hoops. The entire width of the floor length skirt was scalloped in the same embroidery design. A juliet cap of embroidered tulle studded with sequins, held her veil of illusion. She wore a single strand of pearls and carried a small white Bible covered with a white orchid surrounded by stephanotis and tied with satin ribbons.

Mrs. Sara Kennon, of this city, was the matron of honor. Her dress of tulle over taffeta was in two shades of pink. She carried an arm bouquet of pink carnations. Little Miss Nancy Hammons acted as flower girl. She was dressed like the honor attendant and carried a basket of the same pink blossoms.

B. B. McWhorter was best man and Roland Carter and J. W. Webster, Jr. served as ushers and lighted the candles before the ceremony.

The reception was held in the reception room of the church. Mrs. Gordon received her guests in a gown of pink Chantilly lace over taffeta. Her small hat was matching in color and at her shoulder was a white glammellia corsage.

A blue lace dress combined with chiffon was worn by the groom's mother, who assisted Mrs. Gordon in receiving. Her small hat was of the same shade of blue as were her shoes and bag. She had a white corsage.

White gladioli were placed at vantage points throughout the reception room. The bride's table was covered with a white organdy cloth over white satin garlanded at the edges with smilax, studded with pink carnations. At one end was a crystal punch bowl and at the opposite end the four tiered, white iced wedding cake topped with the figurines of a miniature bride and groom and ornamented at each tier with love birds. Mrs. R. W. Gary, of Beaumont, Tex., aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Alfred Bullock alternated at the punch bowl and serving the cake were Miss Ann Norsworthy, Miss Helen Lumpkin and Miss Fern Hall.

Out of town guests atending the wedding were: Mrs. Roy O. Hale, Mr. and Mrs. Garland Hammons, Miss Nancy Hammons and Miss Sue Ellen Hammons, Mr. and Mrs. James L. Phelps, Mr. and Mrs. B. B. McWhorter, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Webster, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Roland Carter, Mr. and Mrs. Joe F. Rabun, Mrs. Sara S. Kennon, Mr. and Mrs. Frank McDermott and Mrs. Evelyn Curry, all of Monroe. Mr. and Mrs. Ross McDade, III, of El Campo, Tex., Dr. and Mrs. J. D. McGovern, Hooks, Tex. Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Gary, Beaumont, Tex., Mr. and Mrs. Sam Bailey, Sulphur, La., Mr. and Mrs. Guy Kellogg, Springhill, and Miss Fern Hall, Dallas, Tex.

Opening lead: King of diamonds.

When a choice of two plays is presented to declarer, that one should be selected which offers the greater chance of success, even though if it fails it involves the loss of an additional 50 to 100 points. An outstanding case of false economy was witnessed in today's hand.

South had committed himself to make seven spades, a contract which it is not our purpose to endorse. By a series of Blackwood bids, he ascertained that his partner had two aces and a king, and decided to worry his way through for the 13th trick. We would not have been so sanguine in our hopes of disposing of the diamond loser.

West opened the king of diamonds and declarer, of course, set about making plans for the disposition of his loser in that suit. There were two methods available. One was to finesse the jack of hearts and the other was to play the king, ace, and ruff a heart in the hope that the queen would fall, establishing dummy's jack.

The actual declarer attempted to ruff out the queen of hearts and, failing in his effort, went down to a one trick set.

He subsequently confessed to me he had a sneaking feeling that the finesse was a slightly better percentage play but if it failed, he would go down two instead of one.

I could have forgiven him for the mistaken belief that the play he chose was better than the finesse, but not for the false type of economy that he put into practice. What is 50 points as a price to pay for a better chance of fulfillment of a grand slam contract?

The finesse is the superior play. It will succeed about half the time. Whereas, with seven cards out, the most probable distribution is 4-3 and the missing card, in this case the queen, is more likely to be in the hand that has four of the suit.

A practical guide in determining whether to finesse or to attempt to drop an honor is mentally to divide the outstanding cards as equally as possible and then act upon the presumption that the missing card is to be found in the larger of the two groups.

Your Best Beauty Aid Soapsuds

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Beauty Editor

Soap may have great beauty advantages for the skin, although we give it credit merely for removing dirt.

One beauty authority believes it invaluable in keeping the skin in a fatty acid condition. Years ago he advised that he believed the proper way to wash the face is to make a lather between the hands, (no wash cloth rubling the suds on the face and over the body if you are in the tub. He believes in rinsing the face with the same water, not clear water, claiming that this method will keep the skin in a fatty acid condition.

Some women claim that soap irritates their skin and this may be true in some instances. It may be drying too, but dry skin types may still use it, providing they rinse it off and apply cream, or lotion to the skin afterwards.

One intriguing phrase that appears in many soap ads is "French milled." What does it mean? After many phone calls to cosmeticians it was finally established by a chemist that French milled soap usually is more elegant in appearance and pleasantly scented.

It is made like this: Instead of just taking the soap out of a kettle and stamping a name on it, French milled soap is made into chips, impregnated with color and perfume and then rolled out on rollers (made in America from French patents) and dried to take out excess moisture. It is supposed to have 25 to 33 per cent less moisture content than ordinary soaps, so should last longer.

One new highly touted soap made in the milled manner also contains softening oil, particularly beneficial for dry skins. It contains extra glycerine which offers a protective coat against cold air that causes wrinkles and skin roughness. It is supposed to lend a real satin glow and is available in scents named after all the sleek satin colors — red, black, white, gold.

MRS. EUGENE PHILLIP M'GLAUFLIN

Miss White And Mr. McGlauflin Say Vows In Candlelight Ceremony

Clad in ivory Duchess satin with fitted bodice of Chantilly lace embroidered in irridescents, Miss Dorothy Rolfe White was married to Eugene Phillip McGlauflin, of Portland, Maine.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Shelby White and the late Mr. White, of Mer Rouge and the groom is the son of Mrs. George Edgar McGlauflin and the late Mr. McGlauflin, of Portland, Me.

The setting for the evening ceremony performed by the Reverend R. W. Vaughan assisted by Rev. Lael Jones was the First Methodist Church in Mer Rouge.

White gladioli and stock and lighted tapers decorated the altar holding an opened Bible. Branched candelabra with burning candles were placed in the chancel behind the rail entwined with southern smilax and garlands of green while a single candle burned in the windows of the church.

The nuptial music was presented by Mrs. R. C. Windsor, aunt of the bride at the organ and vocalists, James C. Rolfe, Mrs. Clare Clark and her three brothers, Warren, Joe Rolfe and Charles.

Warren Shelby White, Jr. gave his sister in marriage. The softly draped bodice of lace was embroidered in irridescents. The full skirt swept into a court train. Her veil of illusion fell from a coronet of orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of white roses and valley lilies centered with a white orchid and cascades of valley lilies. Her only ornament was a strand of pearls, a gift from the bridegroom. For sentiment she wore something old, something borrowed and something blue.

The bride's sisters, Mrs. Dan Douglas McDuff, of Monroe and Mrs. Andrew Benton Cone, of Wilmot, Ark. and her niece, Miss Rolfe Cone, as junior bridesmaid, were her attendants. They all wore dresses of pink embroidered cotton satin with panniers of chiffon. Their hats of horsehair braid, studded with rhinestones, had starched flaring veils and they carried arm bouquets of bridesmaid roses. Another niece, Shelby Dean McDuff acted as flower girl. Her frock was of pink organdy over satin with bouffant skirt. She carried a basket of rose petals.

Charles Gilman White, brother of the bride, served as best man. The groomsmen were Andrew Benton Cone, Dan Douglas McDuff and Joe Rolfe White. Mr. Cone and Mr. McDuff lighted the candles prior to the ceremony.

A reception followed at the home of the bride. Mrs. White received in a gown of mauve lace with a corsage of orchids. The reception rooms were trimmed with bouquets of carnations, stock, tulips and iris.

The bride's table in the dining room was covered with a damask cloth caught at the corners with sprigs of valley lilies and tulle and centered with the tiered wedding cake on a plateau surrounded by white roses, valley lilies and puffs of tulle. Silver punch bowls were at either end of the table and they were presided over by Mrs. B. E. Barham, cousin of the bride, Mrs. E. M. Clark and Mrs. F. J. Macatee, of Shreveport.

Others assisting Mrs. White were Mrs. Charles Gilman White, Mrs. Warren White, Jr., Mrs. Joe Rolfe White, Mrs. Charles G. Rolfe, Mrs. Gale Carter, Mrs. G. A. Hume, Mrs. Jessye Graves, Mrs. William T. Gray, Mrs. E. M. Clark, Mrs. T. E. Barham, Mrs. Clare M. Clark, Mrs. R. C. Windsor, Mrs. Leslie Clark, Mrs. B. E. Barham, Miss Lucille Huffman, Mrs. Willis Montgomery, Mrs. E. M White and Mrs. J. B. Hornbeak. Serving as tea girls were Miss Mary Sterling Rolfe, Miss Fay Louise Hopkins, Miss Joyce Nicklas, Mrs. Martin Rogers and Mrs. Clifford King.

The wedding cake was cut and served by Mrs. Charles White.

Later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. McGlauflin left on their wedding trip to New Orleans and the Gulf Coast. On their return they will be at home in Shreveport, 748 Wilkinson, after May 1. For traveling the bride wore a suit of champagne shantung with contrasting blouse of tangerine chiffon. Her hat was in matching champagne as were her shoes and bag. # Fandango Is Portuguese Rock 'N' Roll

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Women's Editor

LISBON (AP)—I had to come to Portugal to find out that there is very little new under the sun.

For instance, the Portuguese have been doing the rock 'n' roll for centuries, only they call it the fandango.

The dance was part of a floor show at a restaurant in Salvaterra, some 30 miles from Lisbon, where on Sundays they serve a seven-course meal all day long, with peasant songs and dances by local boys and girls.

We were seated at tables strewn with red and white roses. On stage were the fandango dancers and a flamenco orchestra, consisting of two accordions and a piano. Both dancers and musicians were children recruited from nearby farms, where bull-raising is the chief occupation.

The girls wore bright red or green skirts with elaborately embroidered aprons in gay contrasting tones, vivid scarfs or little flower hats, white blouses and knee-length white wool socks without any feet. The dancing is done barefoot. The boys wore white shirts, red vests and dark blue knee breeches with brass buttons.

As the astonishing meal unfolded, the dancers took turns in groups of four or six, doing their traditional dances. But the most popular, the one in which the customers join in and clap hands and shout, is simply the Portuguese version of rock 'n' roll in fancy dress.

Opening lead: King of diamonds.

When a choice of two plays is presented to declarer, that one should be selected which offers the greater chance of success, even though if it fails it involves the loss of an additional 50 to 100 points. An outstanding case of false economy was witnessed in today's hand.

South had committed himself to make seven spades, a contract which it is not our purpose to endorse. By a series of Blackwood bids, he ascertained that his partner had two aces and a king, and decided to worry his way through for the 13th trick. We would not have been so sanguine in our hopes of disposing of the diamond loser.

West opened the king of diamonds and declarer, of course, set about making plans for the disposition of his loser in that suit. There were two methods available. One was to finesse the jack of hearts and the other was to play the king, ace, and ruff a heart in the hope that the queen would fall, establishing dummy's jack.

The actual declarer attempted to ruff out the queen of hearts and, failing in his effort, went down to a one trick set.

He subsequently confessed to me he had a sneaking feeling that the finesse was a slightly better percentage play but if it failed, he would go down two instead of one.

I could have forgiven him for the mistaken belief that the play he chose was better than the finesse, but not for the false type of economy that he put into practice. What is 50 points as a price to pay for a better chance of fulfilment of a grand slam contract?

The finesse is the superior play. It will succeed about half the time. Whereas, with seven cards out, the most probable distribution is 4-3 and the missing card, in this case the queen, is more likely to be in the hand that has four of the suit.

A practical guide in determining whether to finesse or to attempt to drop an honor is mentally to divide the outstanding cards as equally as possible and then act upon the presumption that the missing card is to be found in the larger of the two groups.

Your Best Beauty Aid Soapsuds

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Beauty Editor

Soap may have great beauty advantages for the skin, although we give it credit merely for removing dirt.

One beauty authority believes it invaluable in keeping the skin in a fatty acid condition. Years ago he advised that he believed the proper way to wash the face is to make a lather between the hands, (no wash cloth rubling the suds on the face and over the body if you are in the tub. He believes in rinsing the face with the same water, not clear water, claiming that this method will keep the skin in a fatty acid condition.

Some women claim that soap irritates their skin and this may be true in some instances. It may be drying too, but dry skin types may still use it, providing they rinse it off and apply cream, or lotion to the skin afterwards.

One intriguing phrase that appears in many soap ads is "French milled." What does it mean? After many phone calls to cosmeticians it was finally established by a chemist that French milled soap usually is more elegant in appearance and pleasantly scented.

It is made like this: Instead of just taking the soap out of a kettle and stamping a name on it, French milled soap is made into chips, impregnated with color and perfume and then rolled out on rollers (made in America from French patents) and dried to take out excess moisture. It is supposed to have 25 to 33 per cent less moisture content than ordinary soaps, so should last longer.

One new highly touted soap made in the milled manner also contains softening oil, particularly beneficial for dry skins. It contains extra glycerine which offers a protective coat against cold air that causes wrinkles and skin roughness. It is supposed to lend a real satin glow and is available in scents named after all the sleek satin colors — red, black, white, gold.

MRS. EUGENE PHILLIP M'GLAUFLIN

Miss White And Mr. McGlauflin Say Vows In Candlelight Ceremony

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Shelby White and the late Mr. White, of Mer Rouge and the groom is the son of Mrs. George Edgar McGlauflin and the late Mr. McGlauflin, of Portland, Me.

The setting for the evening ceremony performed by the Reverend R W. Vaughan assisted by Rev. Lael Jones was the First Methodist Church in Mer Rouge.

White gladioli and stock and lighted tapers decorated the altar holding an opened Bible. Branched candelabra with burning candles were placed in the chancel behind the rail entwined with southern smilax and garlands of green while a single candle burned in the windows of the church.

The nuptial music was presented by Mrs. R. C. Windsor, aunt of the bride at the organ and vocalists, James C. Rolfe, Mrs. Clare Clark and her three brothers, Warren, Joe Rolfe and Charles.

Warren Shelby White, Jr. gave his sister in marriage. The softly draped bodice of lace was embroidered in irridescents. The full skirt swept into a court train. Her veil of illusion fell from a coronet of orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of white roses and valley lilies centered with a white orchid and cascades of valley lilies. Her only ornament was a strand of pearls, a gift from the bridegroom. For sentiment she wore something old, something borrowed and something blue.

The bride's sisters, Mrs. Dan Douglas McDuff, of Monroe and Mrs. Andrew Benton Cone, of Wilmot, Ark. and her niece, Miss Rolfe Cone, as junior bridesmaid, were her attendants. They all wore dresses of pink embroidered cotton satin with panniers of chiffon. Their hats of horsehair braid, studded with rhinestones, had starched flaring veils and they carried arm bouquets of bridesmaid roses. Another niece, Shelby Dean McDuff acted as flower girl. Her frock was of pink organdy over satin with bouffant skirt. She carried a basket of rose petals.

Charles Gilman White, brother of the bride, served as best man. The groomsmen were Andrew Benton Cone, Dan Douglas McDuff and Joe Rolfe White. Mr. Cone and Mr. McDuff lighted the candles prior to the ceremony.

A reception followed at the home of the bride. Mrs. White received in a gown of mauve lace with a corsage of orchids. The reception rooms were trimmed with bouquets of carnations, stock, tulips and iris.

The bride's table in the dining room was covered with a damask cloth caught at the corners with sprigs of valley lilies and tulle and centered with the tiered wedding cake on a plateau surrounded by white roses, valley lilies and puffs of tulle. Silver punch bowls were at either end of the table and they were presided over by Mrs. B. E. Barham, cousin of the bride, Mrs. E. M. Clark and Mrs. F J. Macatee, of Shreveport.

Others assisting Mrs. White were Mrs. Charles Gilman White, Mrs. Warren White, Jr., Mrs. Joe Rolfe White, Mrs. Charles G. Rolfe, Mrs. Gale Carter, Mrs. G. A. Hume, Mrs. Jessye Graves, Mrs. William T. Gray, Mrs. E. M. Clark, Mrs. T. E. Barham, Mrs. Clare M. Clark, Mrs. R. C. Windsor, Mrs. Leslie Clark, Mrs. B. E. Barham, Miss Lucille Huffman, Mrs. Willis Montgomery, Mrs. E. M White and Mrs. J. B. Hornbeak. Serving as tea girls were Miss Mary Sterling Rolfe, Miss Fay Louise Hopkins, Miss Joyce Nicklas, Mrs. Martin Rogers and Mrs. Clifford King.

The wedding cake was cut and served by Mrs. Charles White.

Later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. McGlauflin left on their wedding trip to New Orleans and the Gulf Coast. On their return they will be at home in Shreveport, 748 Wilkinson, after May 1. For traveling the bride wore a suit of champagne shantung with contrasting blouse of tangerine chiffon. Her hat was in matching champagne as were her shoes and bag. She wore a white orchid pinned at her shoulder.

Sara Terzia Wins First Prize In Design Contest

Miss Sara Terzia is winner of the Traphagen School of Fashion, New York, where she is a student. $100.00 first prize for her original design for a dress, created in a competition for students at the Traphagen School of Fashion, New York, where she is a student. More than 250 designs were entered in the contest which was sponsored by the Pleaters, Stitchers and Embroiderers Association. The contest was conducted to obtain new ideas for dresses using in fresh ways new and original motifs for those frostings of fashion, pleatings, stitching, and embroideries. Miss Terzia's design used an embroidered flower motif on each of the petal-shaped panels of the beautiful skirt of the gown.

Judges for the competition with the exception of Miss Ermina Stimson of Women's Wear Daily, were all professional designers and manufacturers, including Henry Clements, of Hannah Troy, Herman Siegenfeld, of Maurice Rentner, Miss Aurora Elroy, president of Fashion Designers Equity, Geoffrey Beene of Harmay, Miss Bea Klaits of Andrew Arkin, and Toby Coppock. Mr. Oscar Rutenberg, president of the sponsoring organization, presented the awards at Traphagen last week.

Her design, and other winners of the competition, will be on view in the galleries of the Traphagen School of Fashion, 1680 Broadway New York, through May 15, and the exhibit will be open to the public.

Ever add grated carrot (medium fine) to creamstyle cottage cheese for a salad? Serve the mixture on crisp greens with dressing.

MISS BETTIE LEE WHITE'S engagement to Maurice C. Brownell, son of Mrs. Ruth Brooks, of Shreveport, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. White of Calhoun. The wedding will take place on June 7, at the Liberty Baptist Church, in Calhoun. Both are students at Louisiana Tech and will receive their degrees in August.

Gourd Hats Not For Gourd Heads

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UP) — You never can tell what next the women will be putting on their heads.

Gals have a lot of funny hats in their day, but Mrs. John Hooper has a bonnet to top all bonnets. It's a gourd.

What's more, Mrs. Hooper has a gourd bag to match. But you can't tell they are gourds, by the time her deft hand is through with them.

First, she peels off the husk. Then she scoops out the lace - like inside. She lines the inside with silk, adds lace or a veil . . . and comes up with a new hat at almost no cost.

Sometimes Mrs. Hooper dyes her hats with shoe dye, or trims them with wild potato vines. If she wants a two - toned effect, she dyes part of the gourd

Mrs. Hooper picks the gourds in the fall and lets them dry out during the winter. Using a hot iron, she bends or presses the gourd into the desired shape.

Dressmakers Strike Gold On Beach

BATHING SUITS are big business, as evidenced by the high-powered designers now getting into the sun-and-surf act.

It is a recent trend of the times that American women have become name - designer - conscious, and take as much pride in the labels in their swim suits as in those in their evening gowns.

Nettie Rosenstein is the most recent arrival in the swimwear couture lineup, having discovered that a swimsuit is as basic a part of the avergae woman's wardrobe as the indispensable little black dress for which this designer is famous.

Mrs. Rosenstein's swimwear designs, however, have no hint of the understated restraint of her discreet dress creations. When she turns her designing eye toward the surf, this noted dressmaker throws off all inhibitions and shoots the works on allure. Her theory is that a lady should be discreet in the drawing room, but daring on the beach.

That's why you may see a 1957 bathing beauty in a gold - lame swimsuit that fits like a second skin, in a perky creation of candy - striped can - can ruffles or in a startling creation of white fishnet over flesh - colored jersey.

Rivalry runs high along our rich beaches this season, as such designers as Hubert de Givenchy, Christian Dior, Schiaparelli and Nettie Rosenstein all get in the swim. And the competition is not only in the designs but also in the presentations. At present Mrs. Rosenstein holds the showmanship lead, after unveiling her latest swimwear collection amid icicles and snow peaks, beside a heated outdoor pool in Sun Valley.

Dressmakers Strike Gold On Beach

BATHING SUITS are big business, as evidenced by the high-powered designers now getting into the sun-and-surf act.

It is a recent trend of the times that American women have become name - designer - conscious, and take as much pride in the labels in their swim suits as in those in their evening gowns.

Nettie Rosenstein is the most recent arrival in the swimwear couture lineup, having discovered that a swimsuit is as basic a part of the avergae woman's wardrobe as the indispensable little black dress for which this designer is famous.

Mrs. Rosenstein's swimwear designs, however, have no hint of the understated restraint of her discreet dress creations. When she turns her designing eye toward the surf, this noted dressmaker throws off all inhibitions and shoots the works on allure. Her theory is that a lady should be discreet in the drawing room, but daring on the beach.

That's why you may see a 1957 bathing beauty in a gold - lame swimsuit that fits like a second skin, in a perky creation of candy - striped can - can ruffles or in a startling creation of white fishnet over flesh - colored jersey.

Rivalry runs high along our rich beaches this season, as such designers as Hubert de Givenchy, Christian Dior, Schiaparelli and Nettie Rosenstein all get in the swim. And the competition is not only in the designs but also in the presentations. At present Mrs. Rosenstein holds the showman - ship lead, after unveiling her latest swimwear collection amid icicles and snow peaks, beside a heated outdoor pool in Sun Valley.

SHERROD TOWNS

College Players To Present Arms And The Man

NATCHITOCHES, — Sherrod Towns, head of the music department at Northwestern State College, will play the lead role in the spring production of the College Theatre Players, "Arms and the Man," to be presented here on May 2 and 3.

The play, a three-act comedy by George Bernard Shaw, will be staged in the Fine Arts Auditorium both nights at 8 p.m.

Dr. Edna West, director, has announced the cast as follows:

Professor Towns, Major Petkoff; Clydie Knott, Marthaville, as Catherine Petkoff, the major's wife; Peggy Jo Duke, Natchitoches, as Raina, the Petkoffs' daughter; Sarah Whelan, Shreveport, as Louka, the Petkoffs' maid; Wayne Black, Baton Rouge, as Sergius, Raina's fiance, and Dewey Willams, Shreveport, as Bluntschli, the Swiss officer. Williams is a graduate student at NSC.

Setting of the play is in Bulgaria in 1885. The escapades of an aristocratic Bulgarian family during the period immediately following the Bulgarian - Serbian conflict are related.

While Major Petkoff of the Bulgarian army was fighting the Serbs, his wife and daughter were harboring a Swiss officer in the employ of the Serbian army.

Petkoff's daughter, engaged to marry Sergius, a Bulgarian corporal, promptly falls in love with the young enemy officer. That's when the fun begins.

Future Kitchen Will Do All But Chew Food

CHICAGO (UP) — An electronic kitchen that does just about everything for food except chew it was displayed at the recent Modern Living Exposition here.

One appliance manufacturer showed a kitchen which enables the housewife to sit at a control panel, and by pushing buttons have potatoes diced, food cooked, floors scrubbed, and more.

A control panel in the center of the room doubles as a dining table. In the center of the panel, closed circuit television screen enables the housewife to check on happenings in other rooms of the house.

A tape recorder, equipped with a timer, prompts her: "Time to start dinner." This involves pushing buttons to open cupboards, raise and lower drawers and shelves, and expose a hidden sink. A push - button also produces recipes and menus on a screen.

Meals are planned juke - box fashion in this kitchen-of-tomorrow, which the manufacturer said will be available eventually. The housewife can push a button and lamb chops are carried from their storage space in the kitchen on electronic tracks to an area that prepares and cooks them.

A Wave Of The Hand

Beverages are stored in cupboard dispensers in the wall, and both hot and cold beverages fill your cup, again at the push of a button or the wave of a hand across an electronic area.

Ice cubes are dispensed at will the same way.

Another device peels, dices and slices vegetables and fruits. It removes waste and cleans itself automatically after the work is done.

If the housewife wants to do a little work herself, she has at her disposal a "mixing area" which provides all the apparatus for baking a cake. After she has finished, the device whisks the pans away to be cleaned and returned to their places in the kitchen.

When the family finishes a meal, a serving cart comes to the table at the flick of a switch. Once loaded with dirty dishes, it scoots back into the wall, washes the dishes and puts them away. A floor cleaner and waxer gives a similar performance.

Self - cleaning ovens, an air purifier, and a device which permits change of lighting schemes complete this dream kitchen.

About Homes And Gardens

THE HOME SHIFT

Help Your City Beautification

By Mildred Swift

In olden days, one never entertained during fly time, simply because there were no screens to keep flies out of the house. Well—fly time is here. He'll usually visit the garbage can before he comes in to taste your food. Not an appetizing thought is it? Then let's keep the garbage cans covered. Neither is this can a pretty sight. Is your can well screened from your sight and from your neighbors view? How long since you swept around the can? This is Monroe City Beautification Month. Two ways you can help is to screen both the clothes line and garbage can from view.

Gardening

The fringe tree or grancy graybeard is out in all its glory. Don't they make a gorgeous display? Too late to plant one this year, but never be guilty of robbing our woods of this beautiful tree. They seem to like most any kind of soil as long as it is well drained.

It's too late to plant seed for spring bloom, but you can buy some of the plants such as petunias, verbena, carnations, stock, snapdragons, phlox, sweet Williams. Those seed that can be planted now are marigolds, celosia, phlox, periwinkle, coleus, sweet alyssum. I think one of the saddest graden problems is the new gardener who plants pansy seed now and has vision of blooming pansies in a month or so.

When your roses have bloomed out, cut the faded flowers. This applies to both hybrid teas and cluster roses. This gives a neater appearance to the rose bed, but the roses will bloom again, sooner than if you left the old blossoms on. Don't forget to keep up the spray or dust for leaf spot. There's not quitting time until winter.

Hibiscus belongs to the cotton family, so when you see the farmers planting their crop, get your hibiscus plants out. Easter is usually our last cool spell. When planting, don't overlook the old-fashioned snow on the mountain. It's beautiful in arrangements and brightens the garden in summer.

If the leaves of your azaleas are still yellow, spray with iron sulphate, two tablespoons to a gallon of water. There are other causes of yellow leaves — starvation because you haven't fertilized each year; poor drainage or the shrub may be too deep in the ground. We add mulch every year, and unless you set your plants high enough when you plant them soon the roots are too deep. In that case, transplant next year or pull some of the soil back, being careful not to injure the roots. Azaleas must have their roots close to the top of the ground.

Eggs In The News

And — eggs are in the news and in the Easter baskets today. When you shop for these eggs, let the U. S. government inspection and grading stamps help you. Look for boxes with the letters "USDA" on the grade label giving the size and grade. Keep eggs clean, covered and cool in the refrigerator. Like all protein foods, eggs are tenderest and tastiest when cooked slowly. Cook at low to moderate, even heat. Even hard cooked eggs should be simmered and not boiled.

Mrs. Housewife, you can take advantage of the bountiful supply of top quality eggs by placing extra emphasis on egg dishes in your menu planning. Use them in salads, sandwiches, as a garnish, baked in desserts. Have you ever noticed how the family enjoys stuffed eggs? Yet, we pass up this easily prepared nutritious dish. Here are some suggestions for mixtures. Of course, start by cutting freshly hard - cooked eggs lengthwise or crosswise. Slip out the yolks, mash with a fork and a mixer try anchovy paste (on the expensive side of the budget) grated cheese; 1 or 2 slices of crisply cooked and minced bacon; chopped ripe olives; minced chicken, ham, shrimp or mushrooms; minced or grated onion, and parsley; minced pimiento, crab meat; potted meat or Spam.

3 bay leaves.
2 whole onions.
1 jar hot peppers (use liquid too)

Heat 1 quart white vinegar and 1 quart water.

Add 2 tablespoons salt. Pour this over the eggs. Takes about ten days to pickle. If the children like this recipe, I'd suggest using only one half the bottle of hot peppers. If you like to taste the salt in the eggs, you can add as much as one-half cup. They'll never last 'til pickling time because, honest, they're even good the next day.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Many Flower Shows Slated In The Area

By Mary M. Jardine

It's iris time again and we hope that Easter Sunday and the week following will be favorable for visiting iris gardens in our area. Mr. G. B. Folds, 2607 Swiss St., West Monroe, invites you to visit his iris garden. Last Sunday we published the list of iris gardens in this area that will be open on Easter day. Also Mr. and Mrs. George Parks, 1207 Cypress, West Monroe and Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Eaker, 1509 Trenton St., West Monroe, invite you to see their amaryllis in bloom. Aren't we fortunate here to have a succession of blooms? Next the daylilies will put on their spring dress.

The Garden Wonders of Bastrop staged the springtime flower show at the Garden Center this week. In the horticulture section, blue ribbons were awarded as follows: Mrs. G. I. Johnson, Iris, var. Mountain Sky, Mrs. John Parsel, iris, var. Pinnacle, Mrs. Jim Brendle, white Dutch iris.

Mrs. John J. Parsel was awarded top honors in the arrangement section. Her crescent design was created in a natural tan container set on a matching base. The design was established with arborvitae and enhanced with large white Majestic daisies. Staged against a chartreuse background the combination of colors and materials was most effective.

Hinkston Hudson's striking arrangement of flame colored gladiolus was the object of much admiration. Mr. Hudson selected a modern black container for his design. The background line material was new light green growth of the water oak. A trianuglar design was created with flame red gladiolus. Very compelling color and suitable for a hall table or living room.

Mrs. G. I. Johnson created a beautiful mass arrangement using mauve Dutch iris and self foliage. A large round copper bowl was the perfect complement for these flowers. The background staging of pale pink was most harmonious. This arrangement would be lovely for a large living room or hall table.

Here is good news for all who are interested in knowing more about growing flowers, or arranging and staging of flower shows. The Welcome Garden Club is sponsoring Flower Show School No. 1. The dates are May 28, 29 and 30. The place, United Gas Building, Louisville Avenue, Monroe. Instructors are Mr. C. G. Hobgood, Louisiana Tech in horticulture classes and Mrs. Hugh Sutherland, Greenwood, Miss. Flower arranging and flower show practice lectures. Registration begins at 8 a.m. Tuesday May 28. A prorata charge will be made for any who desire to take only a portion of the course, entire fee being $5.50. For further information call the Garden Center.

May 1, Mer Rouge Garden Club Flower Show, 3 p.m. Methodist annex.

May 9, Bastrop Garden Club flower show, Morehouse Country Club, 3 p.m.

May 9, Farmerville Garden Club Flower Show 2 to 5 p.m.

May 16, Iris Garden Club flower show, Delhi Country club, 3 p. m.

May 24, 25, 26, American Hemerocallis Society convention in Alexandria - Pineville area. Among events are daylily gardens open on Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Judging Clinic conducted by Mr. Claude Davis, Baton Rouge, Saturday May 25, 1:30 p.m. Banquet with Mrs. Bright Taylor, Ocala, Fla., noted daylily specialist, as guest speaker. Registration $5.00. Send to Mrs. E. C. Mounce, Route 1, Box 86A, Donahue Ferry Rd., Pineville.

Drs. Katherine and Edward Foster have presented to the Garden Center library "Louisiana Birds" by George H. Lowery, Jr. This wonderful book is profusely illustrated in both color and black and white by Robert E. Tucker. It is written from a regional point of view and describes all the birds that may be seen in Louisiana in each season of the year.

Spring And Easter Mean Renewed Life

By Euna Spielman

Easter is another one of the Christian World's religious holidays. It gives to each of us hope and assurance of eternal life through the resurrection of Christ. Just isn't it wonderful to live in a Christian world and celebrate this event, victory over death.

Spring Is Here

It is at Easter we see the outburst of new life in our gardens and regardless of weather we know "Spring is here." This fact has been announced in a convincing manner by the wild violets in the landscape at Mrs. J. S. Sims (Calhoun highway, Liberty community). Mrs. Sims is a collector of wild violets and has many varieties ranging from the Birdfoot, (viola pedata, L.) considered the finest with its two upper petals very dark and velvety; Dogtooth, violet blue, (V lovelliana, Brainerd); Downy, light blue (V villosa); viola rosaceae (pink); the dainty white, (V primulifolia L), also, other wild flowers in this garden are: Phlox, native iris, yellow, blue, bronze; Tradescantea, blue and pink — two others I could not identify. One of these very much like the hardy phloxes. It grows 15 to 18 inches tall with a panicle of light blue flowers, the other with spikes of golden yellow flower resembling a snap dragon blossom. There are prickly pears with ripe fruit on them. A visit to Mrs. Sims' garden will remind you of the happy childhood days when you made your first visit into the woods to gather wild flowers at Easter time.

A Visit to Drew 4-H

The agent had the privilege of visiting the 4-H Drew Club this past week with Mrs. Audrey H. Dawson, who devotes her entire time to this program with youth. The program prepared by this group was an Easter program. The wall at the back of the sage was decorated with Easter bunnies, bouquets of spring flowers and baskets of colorful Easter eggs. A poem by Brenda Oglesby, with a large Easter bunny, was the opening number — followed by a quartet — Easter bonnet. Then came the real Easter parade — girls and boys wearing their Easter costumes. The couples paraded by soft music with grace and ease. This program was under the direction of Jo Ann Gist of this 4-H Club. Iva Smith is the president of Drew Club.

Mrs. A. P. Burkett, principal of Drew School, and Miss Elaine Cannidy, 6th grade teacher are the two adult leaders who assist the agents with the Drew 4-H Club.

The program was concluded with a demonstration given by Mrs. Dawson on "Up to Dating our Manners."

The agent also had the privilege of visiting the cafeteria at noon time where the students and teachers were served a most delicious meal. After getting the attractively served plate, the children took their places behind the chairs at the table and remained standing until the entire group was ready to be seated, and until one of the group gave thanks. The refined atmosphere in this entire cafeteria was most impressive. Training of this type is truly educational — preparing one's self for a better, happier life. Drew community is fortunate to have the leadership of Mrs. Burkett to help develop its youth.

Communication Workshop

All extension agents— home and farm, will go to LSU Tuesday afternoon to participate in a communications workshop. They will return late Friday evening or Saturday morning. The secretaries will be on duty to answer and receive calls while the agents are away.

Preservation and Recreation

Food preservation leaders training meeting April 30 at 9:30 at the agricultural building, West Monroe. One leader from each home demonstration club is urged to be present. Two leaders may attend recreation leaders training meeting 9:30 a. m. May 3 same place.

See you next Sunday.

Make Plans Now For Late Summer Gardens

By William Lanier Hunt

Now is the time of the year to plan the August, September, October and November garden. This is the time, if you have not already done it, to order the plants that will be in flower during that late summer and fall period which is so fine in Southern gardens. If you are one of those gardeners who says, each September, "I just cannot think to order fall blooming bulbs in June and July," then order them now.

For that hot, dry, dead period in late August when very little is in bloom in the garden, order right now some plants of the heat resistant, drought resistant old tried-and-true plant our grandmothers called "house leek." This perennial is no leek at all but Sedum spectabile. Most up-to-date perennial catalogues now list the variety called "Brilliant," a bright, deep pink kind. Incidentally, one of the western nurseries now offers a white kind and more pink kinds.

We mentioned in former columns that corms or "bulbs" of Colchicum Autumn Queen and The Giant make a fine showing at about the same time. To add white to the group, you can tuck in some of the tiny bulbs of the late summer and fall flowering Zephyranthes candida. In your columnist's garden, there is also the giant Liriope grandiflora in the background. We mentioned before that this liriope is more desirable than the others because the flowers are borne on the outside of the clump where they will show to good advantage. The leaves are, like those of other varieties, evergreen. They are eighteen inches long, however, and look like a handsome tall grass in winter.

Formosa lilies flower in late summer and should be planted right away. Then there is Anemone hupehansis, the most permanent of all anemones. Perennial catalogues list some named varieties of Japanese anemones that will bloom at least by early September. Give these anemones a spot where they are not exposed to full sun all day. They will respond to watering, too, in our hot summers, for they are not the most drought resistant of perennials.

In September, you can have the flowers of the yellow sternbergias, the dainty little miniature amaryllises, many named kinds of colchicums and several kinds of spiderlilies in your garden if you will take the trouble to order these things now. Catalogues and garden magazines are full, too, of the ads for Hall's amaryllis, the big pink spiderlily that blooms in July and August. Good garden soil with a liberal sprinkling of bone meal is the only preparation you need to make for any of these bulbs.

Chrysanthemums and dahlias can be planted from now till June to bloom in the fall garden. Not all of the named varieties of fall asters succeed in southern gardens, but all of the blazing stars (Liatris) do. These are native plants that look like asters on a long stem. Look back in your old columns for fuller information on them. We discussed them last fall.

House Needs Spring Check

Spring is traditionally house cleaning time, but it also should be house inspection time. A house takes a lot of punishment from winter's blasts — punishment which can result in costly damage.

This is especially true of the roof, which is a home's first line of defense against snow and ice. The weight and movement of snow and ice often can start serious trouble, especially if the roof is an old one.

A good time to check the roof is in the spring after the first heavy rain. Look at the underside of the roof deck, check the rafters carefully, and look closely at areas around the chimney and soil stacks.

Any signs of dampness may mean the roof is leaking. It's wise then to call in a reputable roofing contractor for a professional inspection. Perhaps the dampness is caused by condensation and your attic simply needs more ventilation. But if the cause is a leaky roof, you may need a new one right away to prevent costly interior damage.

Don't be surprised if the roofing contractor doesn't offer to patch up the leaks. Reliable contractors know that patching an older roof is false economy, since a weathered roof generally has worn out uniformly. One leak means more will be coming.

In most cases, a roof of asphalt shingles can be applied directly over the old material, saving the expense and mess of removing the worn roofing. Home-owners who find they must re-roof also can spruce up the appearance of the house with one of the many colors available in asphalt shingles.

THE HOME SHIFT

Help Your City Beautification

By Mildred Swift

In olden days, one never entertained during fly time, simply because there were no screens to keep flies out of the house. Well—fly time is here. He'll usually visit the garbage can before he comes in to taste your food. Not an appetizing thought is it? Then let's keep the garbage cans covered. Neither is this can a pretty sight. Is your can well screened from your sight and from your neighbors view? How long since you swept around the can? This is Monroe City Beautification Month. Two ways you can help is to screen both the clothes line and garbage can from view.

Gardening

The fringe tree or grancy graybeard is out in all its glory. Don't they make a gorgeous display? Too late to plant one this year, but never be guilty of robbing our woods of this beautiful tree. They seem to like most any kind of soil as long as it is well drained.

It's too late to plant seed for spring bloom, but you can buy some of the plants such as petunias, verbena, carnations, stock, snapdragons, phlox, sweet Williams. Those seed that can be planted now are marigolds, celosia, phlox, periwinkle, coleus, sweet alyssum. I think one of the saddest graden problems is the new gardener who plants pansy seed now and has vision of blooming pansies in a month or so.

When your roses have bloomed out, cut the faded flowers. This applies to both hybrid teas and cluster roses. This gives a neater appearance to the rose bed, but the roses will bloom again, sooner than if you left the old blossoms on. Don't forget to keep up the spray or dust for leaf spot. There's not quitting time until winter.

Hibiscus belongs to the cotton family, so when you see the farmers planting their crop, get your hibiscus plants out. Easter is usually our last cool spell. When planting, don't overlook the old-fashioned snow on the mountain. It's beautiful in arrangements and brightens the garden in summer.

If the leaves of your azaleas are still yellow, spray with iron sulphate, two tablespoons to a gallon of water. There are other causes of yellow leaves — starvation because you haven't fertilized each year; poor drainage or the shrub may be too deep in the ground. We add mulch every year, and unless you set your plants high enough when you plant them soon the roots are too deep. In that case, transplant next year or pull some of the soil back, being careful not to injure the roots. Azaleas must have their roots close to the top of the ground.

Eggs In The News

And — eggs are in the news and in the Easter baskets today. When you shop for these eggs, let the U. S. government inspection and grading stamps help you. Look for boxes with the letters "USDA" on the grade label giving the size and grade. Keep eggs clean, covered and cool in the refrigerator. Like all protein foods, eggs are tenderest and tastiest when cooked slowly. Cook at low to moderate, even heat. Even hard cooked eggs should be simmered and not boiled.

Mrs. Housewife, you can take advantage of the bountiful supply of top quality eggs by placing extra emphasis on egg dishes in your menu planning. Use them in salads, sandwiches, as a garnish, baked in desserts. Have you ever noticed how the family enjoys stuffed eggs? Yet, we pass up this easily prepared nutritious dish. Here are some suggestions for mixtures. Of course, start by cutting freshly hard - cooked eggs lengthwise or crosswise. Slip out the yolks, mash with a fork and a mixer try anchovy paste (on the expensive side of the budget) grated cheese; 1 or 2 slices of crisply cooked and minced bacon; chopped ripe olives; minced chicken, ham, shrimp or mushrooms; minced or grated onion, and parsley; minced pimiento, crab meat; potted meat or Spam.

5 bay leaves.
2 whole onions.
1 jar hot peppers (use liquid too)

Heat 1 quart white vinegar and 1 quart water.

Add 2 tablespoons salt. Pour this over the eggs. Takes about ten days to pickle. If the children like this recipe, I'd suggest using only one half the bottle of hot peppers. If you like to taste the salt in the eggs, you can add as much as one-half cup. They'll never last 'til pickling time because, honest, they're even good the next day.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Many Flower Shows Slated In The Area

By Mary M. Jardine

It's iris time again and we hope that Easter Sunday and the week following will be favorable for visiting iris gardens in our area. Mr. G. B. Folds, 2607 Swiss St., West Monroe, invites you to visit his iris garden. Last Sunday we published the list of iris gardens in this area that will be open on Easter day. Also Mr. and Mrs. George Parks, 1207 Cypress, West Monroe and Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Eaker, 1509 Trenton St., West Monroe, invite you to see their amaryllis in bloom. Aren't we fortunate here to have a succession of blooms? Next the daylilies will put on their spring dress.

The Garden Wonders of Bastrop staged the springtime flower show at the Garden Center this week. In the horticulture section, blue ribbons were awarded as follows: Mrs. G. I. Johnson, Iris, var. Mountain Sky, Mrs. John Parsel, iris, var. Pinnacle, Mrs. Jim Brendle, white Dutch iris.

Mrs. John J. Parsel was awarded top honors in the arrangement section. Her crescent design was created in a natural tan container set on a matching base. The design was established with arborvitae and enhanced with large white Majestic daisies. Staged against a chartreuse background the combination of colors and materials was most effective.

Hinkston Hudson's striking arrangement of flame colored gladiolus was the object of much admiration. Mr. Hudson selected a modern black container for his design. The background line material was new light green growth of the water oak. A trianuglar design was created with flame red gladiolus. Very compelling color and suitable for a hall table or living room.

Mrs. G. I. Johnson created a beautiful mass arrangement using mauve Dutch iris and self foliage. A large round copper bowl was the perfect complement for these flowers. The background staging of pale pink was most harmonious. This arrangement would be lovely for a large living room or hall table.

Here is good news for all who are interested in knowing more about growing flowers, or arranging and staging of flower shows. The Welcome Garden Club is sponsoring Flower Show School No. 1. The dates are May 28, 29 and 30. The place, United Gas Building, Louisville Avenue, Monroe. Instructors are Mr. C. G. Hobgood, Louisiana Tech in horticulture classes and Mrs. Hugh Sutherland, Greenwood. Miss. Flower arranging and flower show practice lectures. Registration begins at 8 a.m. Tuesday May 28. A prorata charge will be made for any who desire to take only a portion of the course, entire fee being $5.50. For further information call the Garden Center.

May 1, Mer Rouge Garden Club Flower Show, 3 p.m. Methodist annex.

May 9, Bastrop Garden Club flower show, Morehouse Country Club, 3 p.m.

May 9, Farmerville Garden Club Flower Show 2 to 5 p.m.

May 16, Iris Garden Club flower show, Delhi Country club, 3 p. m.

May 24, 25, 26, American Hemerocallis Society convention in Alexandria - Pineville area. Among events are daylily gardens open on Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Judging Clinic conducted by Mr. Claude Davis, Baton Rouge, Saturday May 25, 1:30 p.m. Banquet with Mrs. Bright Taylor, Ocala, Fla., noted daylily specialist, as guest speaker. Registration $5.00. Send to Mrs. E. C. Mounce, Route 1, Box 86A, Donahue Ferry Rd., Pineville.

Drs. Katherine and Edward Foster have presented to the Garden Center library "Louisiana Birds" by George H. Lowery, Jr. This wonderful book is profusely illustrated in both color and black and white by Robert E. Tucker. It is written from a regional point of view and describes all the birds that may be seen in Louisiana in each season of the year.

Spring And Easter Mean Renewed Life

By Euna Spielman

Easter is another one of the Christian World's religious holidays. It gives to each of us hope and assurance of eternal life through the resurrection of Christ. Just isn't it wonderful to live in a Christian world and celebrate this event, victory over death.

Spring Is Here

It is at Easter we see the outburst of new life in our gardens and regardless of weather we know "Spring is here." This fact has been announced in a convincing manner by the wild violets in the landscape at Mrs. J. S. Sims (Calhoun highway, Liberty community). Mrs. Sims is a collector of wild violets and has many varieties ranging from the Birdfoot, (viola pedata, L.) considered the finest with its two upper petals very dark and velvety; Dogtooth, violet blue, (V lovelliana, Brainerd); Downy, light blue (V villosa); viola rosaceae (pink); the dainty white, (V primulifolia L), also, other wild flowers in this garden are: Phlox, native iris, yellow, blue, bronze; Tradescantea, blue and pink — two others I could not identify. One of these very much like the hardy phloxes. It grows 15 to 18 inches tall with a panicle of light blue flowers, the other with spikes of golden yellow flower resembling a snap dragon blossom. There are prickly pears with ripe fruit on them. A visit to Mrs. Sims' garden will remind you of the happy childhood days when you made your first visit into the woods to gather wild flowers at Easter time.

A Visit to Drew 4-H

The agent had the privilege of visiting the 4-H Drew Club this past week with Mrs. Audrey H. Dawson, who devotes her entire time to this program with youth. The program prepared by this group was an Easter program. The wall at the back of the sage was decorated with Easter bunnies, bouquets of spring flowers and baskets of colorful Easter eggs. A poem by Brenda Oglesby, with a large Easter bunny, was the opening number — followed by a quartet — Easter bonnet. Then came the real Easter parade — girls and boys wearing their Easter costumes. The couples paraded by soft music with grace and ease. This program was under the direction of Jo Ann Gist of this 4-H Club. Iva Smith is the president of Drew Club.

Mrs. A. P. Burkett, principal of Drew School, and Miss Elaine Cannidy, 6th grade teacher are the two adult leaders who assist the agents with the Drew 4-H Club.

The program was concluded with a demonstration given by Mrs. Dawson on "Up to Dating our Manners."

The agent also had the privilege of visiting the cafeteria at noon time where the students and teachers were served a most delicious meal. After getting the attractively served plate, the children took their places behind the chairs at the table and remained standing until the entire group was ready to be seated, and until one of the group gave thanks. The refined atmosphere in this entire cafeteria was most impressive. Training of this type is truly educational — preparing one's self for a better, happier life. Drew community is fortunate to have the leadership of Mrs. Burkett to help develop its youth.

Communication Workshop

All extension agents— home and farm, will go to LSU Tuesday afternoon to participate in a communications workshop. They will return late Friday evening or Saturday morning. The secretaries will be on duty to answer and receive calls while the agents are away.

Preservation and Recreation

Food preservation leaders training meeting April 30 at 9:30 at the agricultural building, West Monroe. One leader from each home demonstration club is urged to be present. Two leaders may attend recreation leaders training meeting 9:30 a. m. May 3 same place.

See you next Sunday.

Make Plans Now For Late Summer Gardens

By William Lanier Hunt

Now is the time of the year to plan the August, September, October and November garden. This is the time, if you have not already done it, to order the plants that will be in flower during that late summer and fall period which is so fine in Southern gardens. If you are one of those gardeners who says, each September, "I just cannot think to order fall blooming bulbs in June and July," then order them now.

BUILT-IN HI-FI

Many high - fidelity fans are building "entertainment walls" with cabinets of pine. The spacious cabinets house all the necessary hi-fi paraphernalia, record player and speakers, with plenty of storage for records.

A television set also can be included in the "wall." An ideal arrangement for this is to use a kitchen cabinet designed to hold a wall oven.

MAKE LADDERS SAFER

Slip-proof the rungs or steps of your ladder to make it safer. Paint each rung or step with a coat of varnish and wait until it becomes tacky. Then sprinkle sawdust or light sand on the varnish. When the mixture is dry, your footing will be more secure.

Beat an egg or two lightly and add to bread stuffing for a change and good nutrition.

WHY GROW OLD

Trim Figure While In The Mood Of Spring

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Spring has a special feel and smell and sound all its own. Like an unusual dish which has a subtle and provocative flavor, the mood is difficult to analyze.

However, in its ensemble of sound we can recognize the gentle patter of rain on a roof, children's voices raised in gladness at being outdoors again, the twittering and singing of birds AND the roar of vacuum cleaners!

When Nature begins to re-do herself, we women are seized with an intense urge toward housecleaning and house decoration. Spring cleaning is as familiar a part of this season as spring fever.

This is a time of bewilderment for the man of the house. Even though he sees it happen over and over again, he always is disturbed when the far away but zealous look of a crusader suddenly appears on the face of his wife. Then one night he comes home to find the curtains down, the furniture piled in the middle of each room and a blend of floor wax, detergents and furniture polish pervading the atmosphere, and he knows that all is well.

Wasn't A-Bomb

This is home in the spring of 1957. It wasn't an atomic bomb! It wasn't Superman! It was just the little woman enjoying her work in an imaginative way!

So, the man of the house settles down in his favorite chair with a delightfully smug sigh. He admits to himself, and sometimes to his wife, that his chair looks a lot better with its new dress on, or is much more comfortable since the sagging springs have been tied up.

He Is Living Dangerously But He Does Not Know It!

No matter how long a man has been married, he never is prepared for the hurricane of self-improvement which spring and spring house cleaning set off in his lady. Even he may be dragged into it as a fringe effect!

There is something about spring which sets off a chain reaction in self improvement. It is a rebirth, a return to a younger outlook and a more youthful appearance.

9-Day Diet

I know just how you feel. Once we have spruced up our houses and gotten rid of some of the clutter and dust, we want to fit into the picture. Why remain cluttered ourselves — with those extra pounds?

You can lose from five to 10 pounds in nine days time if you follow my 9-Day Reducing Diet. The handy, 9-Day Diet booklet is available through this column. Just send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

In the booklet are listed menus for nine days. If you adhere to these menus, and follow the diet directions, you'll find that you won't have to squeeze into the picture of spring—you'll fit in nicely, minus those extra five or 10 pounds.

Girl Scout News

The sign-up day for day camp started off registration with a bang, it seems. The ladies at Sherrouse School, who said they expected no one on such a gloomy morning, were swamped, taking in 51 registrations in a short while. In their neighborhood Susan Demasterson, Fran Carroll, Janice Thompson, Carol Patterson, and Marily Maxwell were first to register.

First to register at the office were Frances Byrd, Janet Noland, Nancy Gilliland, Linda and Judy Engstrom, all of whom have attended previous day camps and didn't want to be left out. At Plum Street School Patricia Hogan and Becky Middleton, both of whom are experienced campers, and Doris Ann Youngblood and Patsy Holloway were first.

Troop 12, Mitchell School, West Monroe registered every girl. Mrs. G. P. Jordan and Mrs. E. R. Cunningham, leaders, must have done a good promotion job. Helen Curley, of Troop 33, who moved to Houston, Tex., a few weeks ago, has registered for day camp at Pine Wood, planning to visit with her grandmother about that time. We'll be glad to have Helen again.

Carolyn Randall and Dedria Womack were the early birds at Highland School, another registration place. Both will be new campers, who are eager for the experience. 171 girls have already registered, so those who plan to do so should act promptly.

The camp committee is having an archery range set up at camp, and it already owns archery tackle which has been used at Wawbansee. Miss Ada Bess Hart, Girl Scout board member and instructor in physical education at the college, is helping some of our program aides brush up on their knowledge of archery so that they can enjoy it themselves and help younger campers.

Next in interest to day camp is the summer program of swimming, cooking, perhaps crafts. This is the 10th year that the Girl Scouts have offered swimming instruction at the municipal pool, providing Red Cross trained teachers for classes for non-swimmers, beginners, intermediates, and swimmers, the Red Cross classification. If enough of next year's seventh graders and older qualify and apply, junior lifesaving will be offered. Last year 203 girls took advantage of the program and this year there are more Brownie troops than ever, with more girls needing to learn to swim or to improve their swimming.

Folders containing information on the summer program will be given out in all troops soon. It is hoped that the cooking class for fifth and sixth graders will be given again and there is some possibility of a craft program, also for intermediates. Leaders will have all information as soon as it is available.

The Easter bunny came early to the Scout office. Our executive came in one afternoon to find a beautifully decorated egg on her desk. It turned out to be one made by Troop 51 and sent her as a sample. Troop 33 made fancy eggs last week, and Troop 17 had an egg hunt. There must have been many more, but these are the ones we heard about. Happy Easter, everyone!

MISS ELIZABETH MIZELL'S betrothal to Henry Rogillio is told today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Mizell, of West Monroe. Mr. Rogillio is the son of Mrs. H. C. Rogillio and the late Mr. Rogillio. The vows will be said June 1 at 7 p.m. at the Ridge Avenue Baptist Church.

From Brown To Baby Blonde Overnight

By GAY PAULEY
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (UP) — A "new me" is writing today's column.

Finally I've become a blonde. Pale - haired as Marilyn Monroe. My decision to join the 20 million women in the nation who bleach, dye or rinse took much urging from friends, much debate with my psyche, much peroxide and other potions at Lilly Dache's pink and gold beauty salon.

Also, much cash.

Whether it was worth it, I don't know yet. Do gentlemen prefer Blondes? I can report the date rate is up. The whistles keener. First day of the new "do", the boss walked by my desk, and barked. No proposals yet, but I am comforted with knowing that even Miss Monroe was single quite a spell.

Started Years Ago

This decision actually had its start several years ago when the gold of my childhood began to darken, first into what they called brownette, and then into plain brown.

You think this is easy, deciding on a drastic change? The National Association of Hairdressers and Cosmetologists assured me some 20 million women, or 60 per cent of our over-14 feminine population, do improve on nature. . . that they "consider hair coloring treatments just as casually as any other cosmetic treatment."

I have news for the association. I spent several sleepless nights before Miss Dache's experts went to work. Would I like being a synthetic blonde? Would my hair be damaged? (Miss Dache assured me it wouldn't). What would my mother think? (Haven't been my native West Virginia for a visit yet.)

Went Through Same Thing

Our mothers and grand mothers probably went through the same emotional upheaval in deciding whether to bob.

The technique in a drastic change to blond-ness is to remove all the color nature gave us. . . then tint back to the desired shade.

Next in interest to day camp is the summer program of swimming, cooking, perhaps crafts. This is the 10th year that the Girl Scouts have offered swimming instruction at the municipal pool, providing Red Cross trained teachers for classes for non-swimmers, beginners, intermediates, and swimmers, the Red Cross classification. If enough of next year's seventh graders and older qualify and apply, junior life-saving will be offered. Last year 203 girls took advantage of the program and this year there are more Brownie troops than ever, with more girls needing to learn to swim or to improve their swimming.

Folders containing information on the summer program will be given out in all troops soon. It is hoped that the cooking class for fifth and sixth graders will be given again and there is some possibility of a craft program, also for intermediates. Leaders will have all information as soon as it is available.

The Easter bunny came early to the Scout office. Our executive came in one afternoon to find a beautifully decorated egg on her desk. It turned out to be one made by Troop 51 and sent her as a sample. Troop 33 made fancy eggs last week, and Troop 17 had an egg hunt. There must have been many more, but these are the ones we heard about. Happy Easter, everyone!

From Brown To Baby Blonde Overnight

By GAY PAULEY
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (UP) — A "new me" is writing today's column.

Finally I've become a blonde. Pale - haired as Marilyn Monroe. My decision to join the 20 million women in the nation who bleach, dye or rinse took much urging from friends, much debate with my psyche, much peroxide and other potions at Lilly Dache's pink and gold beauty salon.

Also, much cash.

Whether it was worth it, I don't know yet. Do gentlemen prefer Blondes? I can report the date rate is up. The whistles keener. First day of the new "do", the boss walked by my desk, and barked. No proposals yet, but I am comforted with knowing that even Miss Monroe was single quite a spell.

Started Years Ago

This decision actually had its start several years ago when the gold of my childhood began to darken, first into what they called brownette, and then into plain brown.

You think this is easy, deciding on a drastic change? The National Association of Hairdressers and Cosmetologists assured me some 20 million women, or 60 per cent of our over-14 feminine population, do improve on nature. . . that they "consider hair coloring treatments just as casually as any other cosmetic treatment."

I have news for the association. I spent several sleepless nights before Miss Dache's experts went to work. Would I like being a synthetic blonde? Would my hair be damaged? (Miss Dache assured me it wouldn't). What would my mother think? (Haven't been my native West Virginia for a visit yet.)

Went Through Same Thing

Our mothers and grand mothers probably went through the same emotional upheaval in deciding whether to bob.

The technique in a drastic change to blond-ness is to remove all the color nature gave us. . . then tint back to the desired shade.

War Background Politics And Love

NOT YET . . . By Tereska Torres. Translated from French by Meyer Levin. Crown.

Politicians rant and soldiers fight, it is the time of the phony war; and against this dark background some girls in Paris try valiantly to grow up to womanhood.

Pretty Sophie, 16, tells this story of the feverish lives led by herself and friends. With Antoinette, Petite Anne, Simone and Izabelle, she attends a convent school. She loves Sister Nathalie but there is for her, a headier passion in the boys she encounters. For Petite Anne it will be the call of the church. For Sophie, however, it's a boy, Gerard, who is Antoinette's brother, and a grown man, Duncan; for unhappy Izabelle it is Albert, 50; for Antoinette it is, more soberly, Olivier; for Simone, a youth from the boulevards.

Before this girl just about to bid farewell to childhood, there unfolds mystifyingly the whole range of love, frightening, tantalizing, dangerous, irresistible. The kiss on the cheek and the lips, the fleeting touch of a bold hand, the stolen glimpses of stark adult mating, the fearsome deed itself filled with love and also barren of love — these are milestones for these girls aquiver with the exciting and uncontrollable emotions that come with growing up. This frank, honest and warm story has the bite of real drama in it.

New Novel Has Curiosity Value

Undoubtedly, "Lincoln's Commando" will have great curiosity value, for one of the co-authors, Charles Van Doren, won TV quiz fame on "Twenty One" a short while back.

In a way, that's unfortunate. "Lincoln's Commando" is quite capable of standing on its own merit, without benefit of public ambition to inquire into Van Doren's writing talents. Nor will such inquiry obtain a satisfactory answer; the book offers no identification of the respective contributions of its two authors.

The hero of this Civil War biography is William Barker Cushing, an officer of the United States Navy best known to history for his daring achievement in sinking a Confederate ram, the Albemarle, at Plymouth, N. C., in 1864. He was not a first rank naval luminary, to rate with Farragut, Porter and Foote, but Van Doren and Roske establish him firmly as a captivating character, well worthy of a biographical study. The authors have come up with an astonishing amount of personal material on him. The book sparkles with anecdotes.

We would enter a mild criticism of the title. It stretches pretty far, in a manner not uncommon in recent Civil War works, to embrace the magic name of Lincoln. There was no special connection between the two, no particular assignment by which Cushing could be judged to be peculiarly and specifically Lincoln's Commando.

"Say, Darling" Good Book About The "Show Biz"

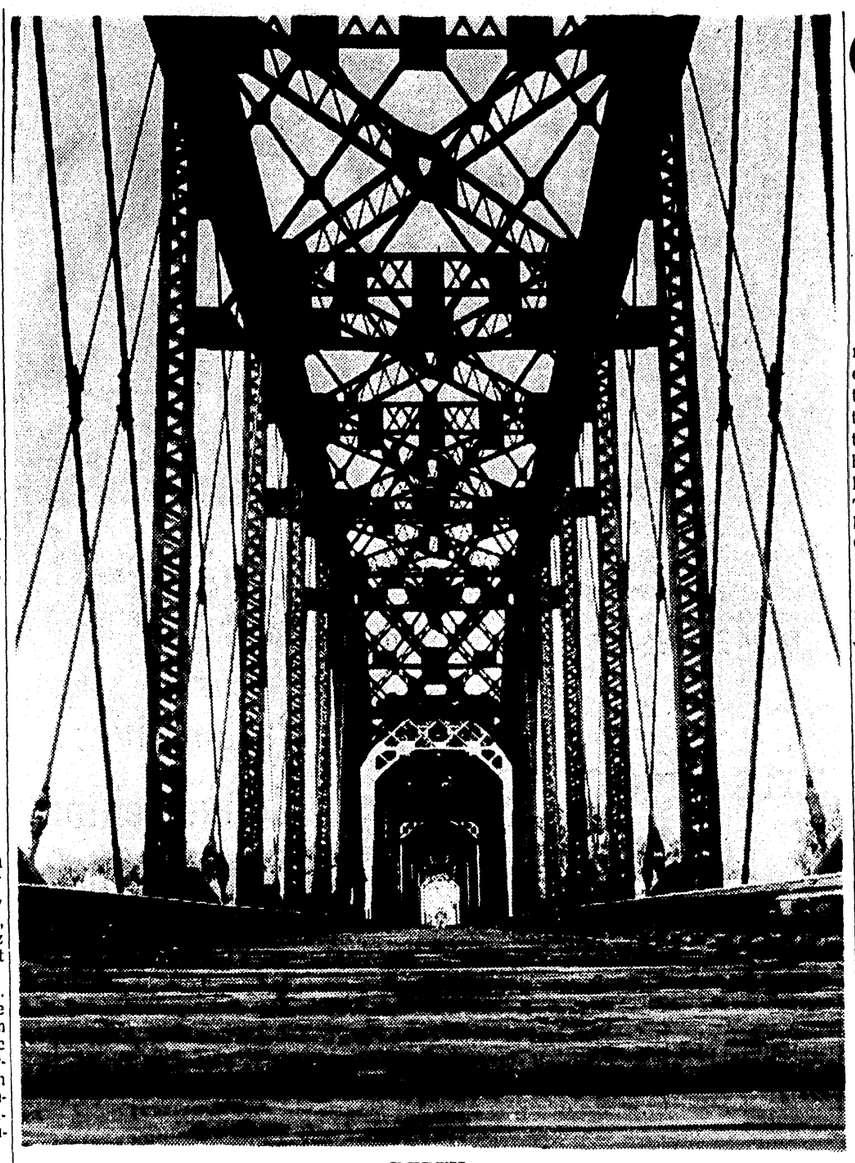
This is one of the funniest novels about Show Biz in a long, long time. It is based upon "The Pajama Game," a musical comedy by George Abbott and Richard Bissell; based in turn upon "7½ Cents," a novel by Richard Bissell.

Hero of "Say, Darling" is Jack Jordan, who rolls his own and comes from Indiana, which is not too far from Dubuque, which is in Iowa and is where Bissell comes from.

There is practically no plot, but the dialogue and lines are wonderful.

It was noted that "Say, Darling" is based upon "The Pajama Game," meaning the events going into the production of it. If you are interested in the behind-the-scene production of a show, this will be your meat.



DEPTH

CAMERA NOTES

Depth Can Often Make Difference In Picture

By JOHN OLDENBURG
Camera Editor

Again, a commonplace sight captures the eye for striking beauty, as we view this unusual angle shot of the railroad bridge across the Ouachita river in downtown Monroe.

Most of us have glanced down the tracks crossing the river as we drove past the end of the bridge, and never suspected that this outstanding beauty existed as we see it in today's photo. John Fogleman staff photographer for the News-Star — World, however, did see an angle from which to shoot it and came up with an interesting picture.

Using a 3.5 Rolliecord camera, he set the F stop at 22 and the shutter speed at a fiftieth of a second, set the camera firmly on the crossties midway between the railroad tracks and shot away. The picture was taken around noon time, which accounts for the sharpness and also helped the amazing amount of depth, which is so clear.

This picture is a striking example of what to do when you want to shoot a scene and want to get everything from foreground to infinity in focus. As one looks at the picture, he will see that even the approaching train which must be at least a quarter of a mile away is in sharp focus, and also the steel trestling in the foreground is just as sharp as can be. The explanation of this is simple, yet many amateur photographers are not aware of this basic principle of photography.

First of all, the formula to go by is this: "The smaller the F stop, the greater the depth of field." This is true because the center of any lens is sharper than when the entire lens surface has to be used to project the image on the film. Also when a lens is made, its resulting shape tends to throw the objects seen through its outer surfaces out of focus. Therefore, when a picture is made with the lens aperture wide open, the depth of field is greatly reduced.

The next time you look at a night football picture, or maybe a picture of a wreck taken at night, where the photographer had to open his F stop, take note of the shortness of the depth of field! A press photographer will always open his stops wide when he is shooting something where the entire area is dark except his subtire area is dark except his subject and upon which he must concentrate.

Music Award Auditions Set For Mid-May

The annual festival of strings and the scholarship to Transylvania auditions sponsored by the Louisiana Federation of Music Clubs will be held jointly May 11 in Baton Rouge, according to Mrs. Frank A. Vought of Paincourtville, chairman of the auditions.

Applications for entrance is to be made with Mrs. Vought at Paincourtville, and deadline for receiving applications has been set for April 22.

The string auditions are open to young musicians of elementary and high school ages. Cash awards will be offered in the two categories of solo and ensemble. Solo entrants must submit two compositions from memory with exception of concertos, for which music may be used. Ensemble groups will be required to present two compositions but may use music.

Rules for the Mrs. W. Carruth Jones Transylvania scholarship are that the junior festival entrants be between the ages of 15 to 18 inclusive, who have been active members of junior and student clubs in the Louisiana Federation for two or more consecutive years, and who received superior ratings in the current year. This scholarship entitles the winner to a full six weeks summer session at Transylvania, Brevard, N. C.

Guide To Good Reading

Now At The Ouachita Parish Public Library

FRANCES FLANDERS, Librarian

Again this week we have a variety of new books to appeal to every reader, but unfortunately there are no new books of fiction. There seems to be a lull in the publishing of fiction, but we hope to have some interesting titles to tell you about next week There are a great number of new books which can be grouped in several broad classifications.

ART

Janet Flanner is the author of a very fine book called "Men and Monuments." She is an authority on French politics as well as the arts, atmosphere, events, and people which emanate from Paris to become part of contemporary history. In this book she has traced the course of four brilliant and historic lives — those of the painters Picasso, Braque and Matisse and the writer, politician and art critic, Andre' Malraux. A very interesting section of this book is devoted to the inside story of the greatest spoils campaign in history, Hitler's and Goering's ransack of the occupied countries She follows the stolen objects through to the last lap of their round trip, the Allies restoration of the property to its rightful owners accomplished with courage, knowledge and care by a handful of specialized men. The collection of American pressed glass is a fascinating hobby and there are many people in this area who are interested in it. A recent book in this subject deals with only one form of pressed glass. Its title is self-explanatory to the connisseurs and amateurs of the art. It is "American Glass Cup Plates" by Ruth Webb Lee and James H. Rose. It is beautifully illustrated and contains a wealth of information for the collector. This is one of the books which was given to the library in memory of Mr. E. L. Neville, who had an extensive collection of American pressed glass. A small book, but one which will be most valuable to the many garden clubs in the community is called "Flower Show Themes" and was written by Dorothy Biddle. It gives excellent ideas for themes of flower shows.

HISTORY AND POLITICS

For the first time in our history an administration while still in office has permitted a distinguished journalist to compile an authentic, independent account of its conduct of affairs of state. The result has been the very fine book "Eisenhower, The Inside Story" by Robert J. Donovon. In a sense this book is the story of Eisenhower in the White House. Found within its pages is a wealth of new and unpublished information. "The Blessings of Liberty" by Zachariah Chafee, Jr. is a vigorous, timely, ringing inquiry into the fundamentals of our personal freedom, by one of its wisest and most distinguished champions. He places his faith in the ultimate wisdom of the American people. "Through These Men" by John Mason Brown is a spirited presentation of our times in terms of some outstanding men who have determined our political life and shaped our outlook.

BIOGRAPHIES

"Much Ado About Me" is the title of Fred Allen's extremely humorous autobiography. To me one of the funniest chapters told as his experiences as an employe of the Boston Public Library, where he worked as a page from the time he was 14 to 18. The entire book is delightful and is one that will be thoroughly enjoyed. A completely different book is "Battle Hymn" by Dean E. Hess. It is the inspiring story of a clergyman turned fighter pilot who flew 300 missions in World War II and Korea. He also developed the Korean air force and saved thousands of Korean war orphans. This book has been made into a movie starring Rock Hudson, which will take it even more popular. An autobiographical book which is really an account of a hazardous journey is "Traveler in the Wilderness" by Cid Rickette Sumner. She answered a personal in the Saturday Review inviting recruits for an expedition down the Green and Colorado Rivers. Her reasoning was that "sixty-four is the right age for adventure. Youth is the time for caution, considering how much it has to lose." An adventure story, "Traveler in the Wilderness" speaks to each reader of his own adventure in search of release from the confusions and pressures of contemporary life. Mrs. Sumner's tone is light, even gay, but in sharing her trip she shares also some of the inner peace which was its by-product. This is a delightful book and is memorable for its unusual story, its high good humor and hard-won wisdom.

SCIENCE

One section of our library collection which needs many more new books is that of science. There are several reasons why it has lagged behind the other collections in the library. One is that scientific books are extremely expensive. Another is that they go out of date rapidly and new ones take their places. We are making a real effort to improve our books in this field and hope to have more and more of them for your use as time goes on. This week we have three new books of science. One is called "Modern Biology" and was written by Moon, Mann and Otto. This is an excellent textbook on a secondary school level and should fill a long-felt need. "Science for Everyday Use" by Smoth and Vance is another valuable book of general scientific information. "Engineering in History" by a number of outstanding engineers is a pictorial account of the development of engineering in western civilization from its origins down to the twentieth century and with interesting discussion of its contributions to human society. This is a book that every engineer should want to read.

Your Ouachita Parish Public Library is prepared to serve you at the main library or any of its branches. We invite you to visit us at your earliest convenience.

New Book On Segregation

GO SOUTH TO SORROW, By Carl T. Rowan, Random House.

Here is an angry book written by a man with rousing convictions, aspirations and ideals—or a single ideal: the bettermen of the lot of his people.

Rowan, of the Minneapolis Tribune, already had two books to his credit, very much to his credit indeed, in which again he talked about the relations of whites and Negroes. Then he struck a journalistic, not cheerful note, didn't approve but didn't despair.

He doesn't approve now, either, nor quite despair, but he is harsh severe and savage at learning how much effective opposition, and in a way, worse, how much hedging, there is on the supreme court's decision against segregation.

He takes up in particular the cases of Emmett Till and Gus Courts in Mississippi, and the Montgomery buses and Autherine Lucy.

He finds a newsman to praise: Jonathan Daniels, and one to criticize: Hodding Carter. He points up the awesome international significant of prejudice. In particular he rips into "moderates." He cries out for the use of pressure, and provides a challenging list of the things accomplished already not by beating about the bush but by coming straight and uncompromisingly to the issue.

You may hate Rowan's attitude, but in that case he will hate yours, too, so that makes it even. But hate it or not, you have here a ragingly sincere book all the more welcome for appearing in a time when so many books express only what an author halfway thinks or what he feels with a little less than all his heart and soul.

'The Gene Austin Story' Will Be Presented Today

By WILLIAM D. LAFFLER

NEW YORK, April 20 (UP)—The life story of Gene Austin is scheduled to be shown on a television network (NBC) on April 21, and if it's available in your city, you should see it.

Perhaps you've never heard of Austin. He was the first big pop record star and his songs sold more than 85 million records over a relatively short span in the 1920's and early 1930's.

His voice is high-pitched and smooth and Austin's recording of "My Blue Heaven" is still considered the classic pressing of that number.

Coming out of retirement after about 25 years away from the recording mikes, Austin has cut a fine LP for Decca. Appropriately it's called "My Blue Heaven" and includes, in addition to the title tune, 11 numbers, among them "Ramona" (his best), "Tonight You Belong to Me," and "Jeanine, I Dream of Lilac Time."

Bargain of the Week — "Bethlehem's Grab Back" is a dirt cheap LP, issued by Bethlehem records, that contains some fine reprises of singles originally issued by this company. Artists include Carmen MacRae (Old Devil Moon), Australian Jazz Quintet (Varsity Drag), Betty Roche (Route 66), Duke Ellington (Stompy Jones) and others, including Mel Torme, Frances Faye and a number of good small combos.

---

Selected singles—"Pocket Book Song" and "Honky Tonk Song" by Leroy Vandyke (Dot), "Dardanella" by Jackie Lee (Coral), "Raindrop" by the Viscounts (Mercury), and "The Yodeling Rag" by Ronnie Ronalde (Capitol).

---

Platter Chatter — The movie "Baby Doll" has been controversial, but the music from the sound track by Kenyon Hopkins (Columbia) is above argument. . . . Joni James has a fine album of songs by the late Victor Young and Frank Loesser (M-G-M) . . . Liberty records proudly shows off the trumpet of Claude Gordon in a younger set LP packaged as "Jazz for Jean-Agers." . . . And for those who prefer softer music Henri Rene serves up "Melodic Magic" on an economical RCA-Camden single.

Europeans Are Getting Taste U.S. Music

NEW YORK, April 20 (UP) — Thomas Scherman, founder and conductor of the Little Orchestra Society, is on a two - month guest-conducting tour of Europe, giving programs well spiced with American music.

Works of contemporary composers will be featured during the last four weeks of the Berkshire Festival in Lenox, Mass., this summer.

Beginning with the July 21 week end, the Boston Symphony's programs will be partly devoted to Igor Stravinsky, Paul Hindemith, Werner Egk, Boris Blacher, Samuel Barber, Piston, and Copland.

The newest opera of the contemporary Frenchman, Francis Poulenic, "Dialogues des Carmelites," is going to have its America premiere in San Francisco next September with Erich Leinsdorf conducting the San Francisco Opera.

Leinsdorf is conducting Stravinsky's opera, "The Rake's Progress," in the Netherlands in June and will drop in on Poulenc in Paris to get the composer's ideas for the event.

All this reflects an increasing public interest in the works of living composers which was one of the conspicuous developments of the new concluding 1956-57 season.

New Novel Has Curiosity Value

Undoubtedly, "Lincoln's Commando" will have great curiosity value, for one of the co-authors, Charles Van Doren, won TV quiz fame on "Twenty One" a short while back.

In a way, that's unfortunate. "Lincoln's Commando" is quite capable of standing on its own merit, without benefit of public ambition to inquire into Van Doren's writing talents. Nor will such inquiry obtain a satisfactory answer; the book offers no identification of the respective contributions of its two authors.

The hero of this Civil War biography is William Barker Cushing, an officer of the United States Navy best known to history for his daring achievement in sinking a Confederate ram, the Albemarle, at Plymouth, N. C., in 1864. He was not a first rank naval luminary, to rate with Farragut, Porter and Foote, but Van Doren and Roske establish him firmly as a captivating character, well worthy of a biographical study. The authors have come up with an astonishing amount of personal material on him. The book sparkles with anecdotes.

We would enter a mild criticism of the title. It stretches pretty far, in a manner not uncommon in recent Civil War works, to embrace the magic name of Lincoln. There was no special connection between the two, no particular assignment by which Cushing could be judged to be peculiarly and specifically Lincoln's Commando.

"Say, Darling" Good Book About The "Show Biz"

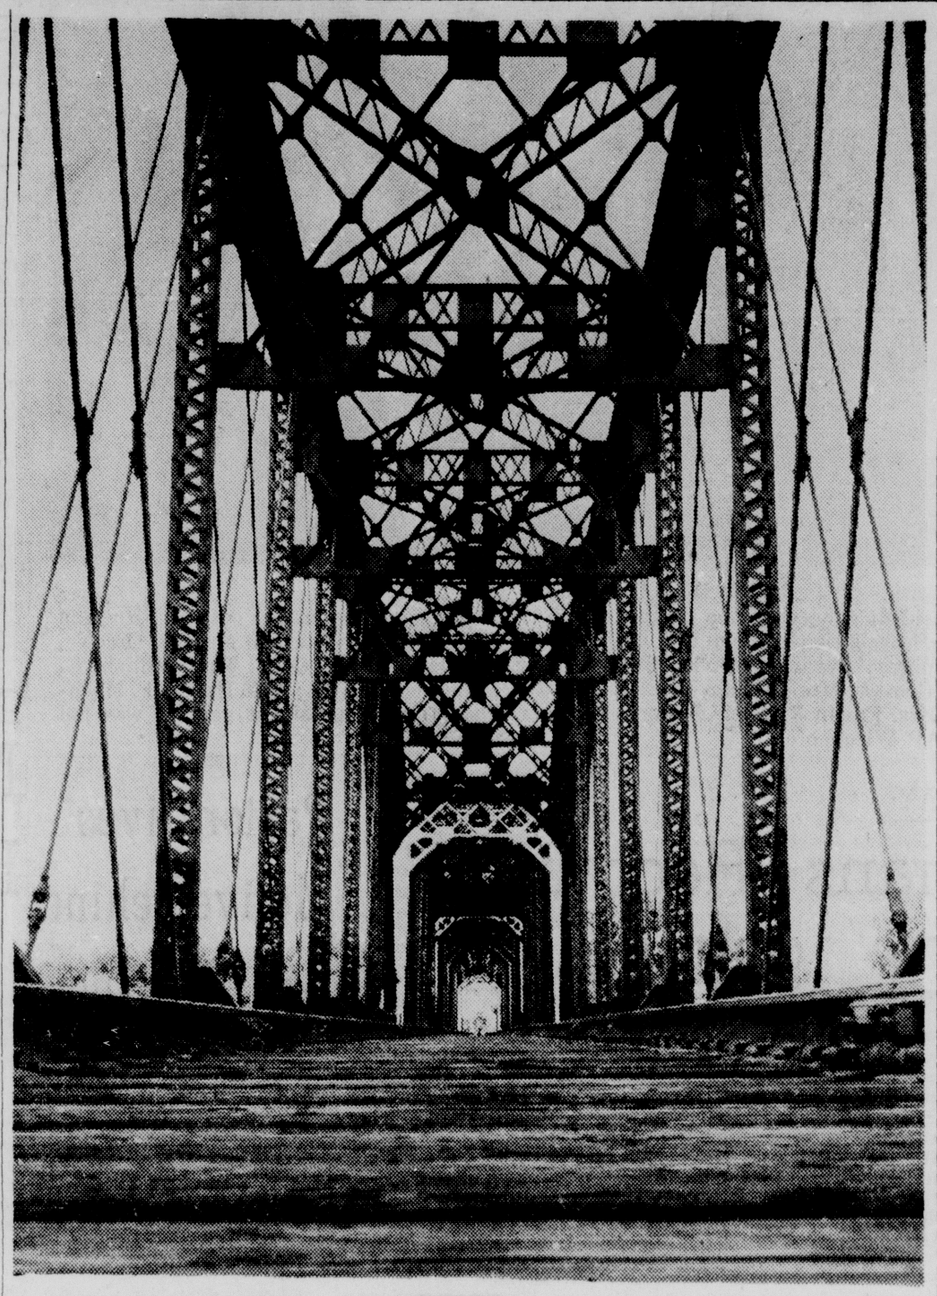
This is one of the funniest novels about Show Biz in a long, long time. It is based upon "The Pajama Game," a musical comedy by George Abbott and Richard Bissell; based in turn upon "7½ Cents," a novel by Richard Bissell.

Hero of "Say, Darling" is Jack Jordan, who rolls his own and comes from Indiana, which is not too far from Dubuque, which is in Iowa and is where Bissell comes from.

There is practically no plot, but the dialogue and lines are wonderful.

It was noted that "Say, Darling" is based upon "The Pajama Game," meaning the events going into the production of it. If you are interested in the behind-the-scene production of a show, this will be your meat.



DEPTH

CAMERA NOTES

Depth Can Often Make Difference In Picture

By JOHN OLDENBURG
Camera Editor

Again, a commonplace sight captures the eye for striking beauty, as we view this unusual angle shot of the railroad bridge across the Ouachita river in downtown Monroe.

Most of us have glanced down the tracks crossing the river as we drove past the end of the bridge, and never suspected that this outstanding beauty existed as we see it in today's photo. John Fogleman staff photographer for the News-Star — World, however, did see an angle from which to shoot it and came up with an interesting picture.

Using a 3.5 Rolliecord camera, he set the F stop at 22 and the shutter speed at a fiftieth of a second, set the camera firmly on the crossties midway between the railroad tracks and shot away. The picture was taken around noon time, which accounts for the sharpness and also helped the amazing amount of depth, which is so clear.

This picture is a striking example of what to do when you want to shoot a scene and want to get everything from foreground to infinity in focus. As one looks at the picture, he will see that even the approaching train which must be at least a quarter of a mile away is in sharp focus, and also the steel trestling in the foreground is just as sharp as can be. The explanation of this is simple, yet many amateur photographers are not aware of this basic principle of photography.

First of all, the formula to go by is this: "The smaller the F stop, the greater the depth of field." This is true because the center of any lens is sharper than when the entire lens surface has to be used to project the image on the film. Also when a lens is made, its resulting shape tends to throw the objects seen through its outer surfaces out of focus. Therefore, when a picture is made with the lens aperture wide open, the depth of field is greatly reduced.

The next time you look at a night football picture, or maybe a picture of a wreck taken at night, where the photographer had to open his F stop, take note of the shortness of the depth of field! A press photographer will always open his stops wide when he is shooting something where the entire area is dark except his subtire area is dark except his subject and upon which he must concentrate.

Music Award Auditions Set For Mid-May

The annual festival of strings and the scholarship to Transylvania auditions sponsored by the Louisiana Federation of Music Clubs will be held jointly May 11 in Baton Rouge, according to Mrs. Frank A. Vought of Paincourtville, chairman of the auditions.

Applications for entrance is to be made with Mrs. Vought at Paincourtville, and deadline for receiving applications has been set for April 22.

The string auditions are open to young musicians of elementary and high school ages. Cash awards will be offered in the two categories of solo and ensemble. Solo entrants must submit two compositions from memory with exception of concertos, for which music may be used. Ensemble groups will be required to present two compositions but may use music.

Rules for the Mrs. W. Carruth Jones Transylvania scholarship are that the junior festival entrants be between the ages of 15 to 18 inclusive, who have been active members of junior and student clubs in the Louisiana Federation for two or more consecutive years, and who received superior ratings in the current year. This scholarship entitles the winner to a full six weeks summer session at Transylvania, Brevard, N. C.

Guide To Good Reading

Now At The Ouachita Parish Public Library

FRANCES FLANDERS, Librarian

Again this week we have a variety of new books to appeal to every reader, but unfortunately there are no new books of fiction. There seems to be a lull in the publishing of fiction, but we hope to have some interesting titles to tell you about next week. There are a great number of new books which can be grouped in several broad classifications.

ART

Janet Flanner is the author of a very fine book called "Men and Monuments." She is an authority on French politics as well as the arts, atmosphere, events, and people which emanate from Paris to become part of contemporary history. In this book she has traced the course of four brilliant and historic lives — those of the painters Picasso, Braque and Matisse and the writer, politician and art critic, Andre' Malraux. A very interesting section of this book is devoted to the inside story of the greatest spoils campaign in history, Hitler's and Goering's ransack of the occupied countries. She follows the stolen objects through to the last lap of their round trip, the Allies restoration of the property to its rightful owners accomplished with courage, knowledge and care by a handful of specialized men. The collection of American pressed glass is a fascinating hobby and there are many people in this area who are interested in it. A recent book in this subject deals with only one form of pressed glass. Its title is self-explanatory to the connisseurs and amateurs of the art. It is "American Glass Cup Plates" by Ruth Webb Lee and James H. Rose. It is beautifully illustrated and contains a wealth of information for the collector. This is one of the books which was given to the library in memory of Mr. E. L. Neville, who had an extensive collection of American pressed glass. A small book, but one which will be most valuable to the many garden clubs in the community is called "Flower Show Themes' and was written by Dorothy Biddle. It gives excellent ideas for themes of flower shows.

HISTORY AND POLITICS

For the first time in our history an administration while still in office has permitted a distinguished journalist to compile an authentic, independent account of its conduct of affairs of state. The result has been the very fine book "Eisenhower, The Inside Story" by Robert J. Donovon. In a sense this book is the story of Eisenhower in the White House. Found within its pages is a wealth of new and unpublished information. "The Blessings of Liberty" by Zachariah Chafee, Jr. is a vigorous, timely, ringing inquiry into the fundamentals of our personal freedom, by one of its wisest and most distinguished champions. He places his faith in the ultimate wisdom of the American people. "Through These Men" by John Mason Brown is a spirited presentation of our times in terms of some outstanding men who have determined our political life and shaped our outlook.

BIOGRAPHIES

"Much Ado About Me" is the title of Fred Allen's extremely humorous autobiography. To me one of the funniest chapters told as his experiences as an employe of the Boston Public Library, where he worked as a page from the time he was 14 to 18. The entire book is delightful and is one that will be thoroughly enjoyed. A completely different book is "Battle Hymn" by Dean E. Hess. It is the inspiring story of a clergyman turned fighter pilot who flew 300 missions in World War II and Korea. He also developed the Korean air force and saved thousands of Korean war orphans. This book has been made into a movie starring Rock Hudson, which will take it even more popular. An autobiographical book which is really an account of a hazardous journey is "Traveler in the Wilderness" by Cid Rickette Sumner. She answered a personal in the Saturday Review inviting recruits for an expedition down the Green and Colorado Rivers. Her reasoning was that "sixty-four is the right age for adventure. Youth is the time for caution, considering how much it has to lose." An adventure story, "Traveler in the Wilderness" speaks to each reader of his own adventure in search of release from the confusions and pressures of contemporary life. Mrs. Sumner's tone is light, even gay, but in sharing her trip she shares also some of the inner peace which was its by-product. This is a delightful book and is memorable for its unusual story, its high good humor and hard-won wisdom.

SCIENCE

One section of our library collection which needs many more new books is that of science. There are several reasons why it has lagged behind the other collections in the library. One is that scientific books are extremely expensive. Another is that they go out of date rapidly and new ones take their places. We are making a real effort to improve our books in this field and hope to have more and more of them for your use as time goes on. This week we have three new books of science. One is called "Modern Biology" and was written by Moon, Mann and Otto. This is an excellent textbook on a secondary school level and should fill a long-felt need. "Science for Everyday Use" by Smoth and Vance is another valuable book of general scientific information. "Engineering in History" by a number of outstanding engineers is a pictorial account of the development of engineering in western civilization from its origins down to the twentieth century and with interesting discussion of its contributions to human society. This is a book that every engineer should want to read.

Your Ouachita Parish Public Library is prepared to serve you at the main library or any of its branches. We invite you to visit us at your earliest convenience.

New Book On Segregation

Here is an angry book written by a man with rousing convictions, aspirations and ideals—or a single ideal: the bettermen of the lot of his people.

Rowan, of the Minneapolis Tribune, already had two books to his credit, very much to his credit indeed, in which again he talked about the relations of whites and Negroes. Then he struck a journalistic, not cheerful note, didn't approve but didn't despair.

He doesn't approve now, either, nor quite despair, but he is harsh severe and savage at learning how much effective opposition, and in a way, worse, how much hedging, there is on the supreme court's decision against segregation.

He takes up in particular the cases of Emmett Till and Gus Courts in Mississippi, and the Montgomery buses and Autherine Lucy.

He finds a newsman to praise: Jonathan Daniels, and one to criticize: Hodding Carter. He points up the awesome international significant of prejudice. In particular he rips into "moderates." He cries out for the use of pressure, and provides a challenging list of the things accomplished already not by beating about the bush but by coming straight and uncompromisingly to the issue.

You may hate Rowan's attitude, but in that case he will hate yours, too, so that makes it even. But hate it or not, you have here a ragingly sincere book all the more welcome for appearing in a time when so many books express only what an author halfway thinks or what he feels with a little less than all his heart and soul.

'The Gene Austin Story' Will Be Presented Today

By WILLIAM D. LAFFLER

NEW YORK, April 20 (UP)—The life story of Gene Austin is scheduled to be shown on a television network (NBC) on April 21, and if it's available in your city, you should see it.

Perhaps you've never heard of Austin. He was the first big pop record star and his songs sold more than 85 million records over a relatively short span in the 1920's and early 1930's.

His voice is high-pitched and smooth and Austin's recording of "My Blue Heaven" is still considered the classic pressing of that number.

Coming out of retirement after about 25 years away from the recording mikes, Austin has cut a fine LP for Decca. Appropriately it's called "My Blue Heaven" and includes, in addition to the title tune, 11 numbers, among them "Ramona" (his best), "Tonight You Belong to Me," and "Jeanine, I Dream of Lilac Time."

Bargain of the Week — "Bethlehem's Grab Back" is a dirt cheap LP, issued by Bethlehem records, that contains some fine reprises of singles originally issued by this company. Artists include Carmen MacRae (Old Devil Moon), Australian Jazz Quintet (Varsity Drag), Betty Roche (Route 66), Duke Ellington (Stompy Jones) and others, including Mel Torme, Frances Faye and a number of good small combos.

Selected singles—"Pocket Book Song" and "Honky Tonk Song" by Leroy Vandyke (Dot), "Dardanella" by Jackie Lee (Coral), "Raindrop" by the Viscounts (Mercury), and "The Yodeling Rag" by Ronnie Ronalde (Capitol).

Platter Chatter — The movie "Baby Doll" has been controversial, but the music from the sound track by Kenyon Hopkins (Columbia) is above argument. . . . Joni James has a fine album of songs by the late Victor Young and Frank Loesser (M-G-M) . . . Liberty records proudly shows off the trumpet of Claude Gordon in a younger set LP packaged as "Jazz for Jean-Agers." . . . And for those who prefer softer music Henri Rene serves up "Melodic Magic" on an economical RCA-Camden single.

Europeans Are Getting Taste U.S. Music

NEW YORK, April 20 (UP) — Thomas Scherman, founder and conductor of the Little Orchestra Society, is on a two - month guest-conducting tour of Europe, giving programs well spiced with American music.

Works of contemporary composers will be featured during the last four weeks of the Berkshire Festival in Lenox, Mass., this summer.

Beginning with the July 21 week end, the Boston Symphony's programs will be partly devoted to Igor Stravinsky, Paul Hindemith, Werner Egk, Boris Blacher, Samuel Barber, Piston, and Copland.

The newest opera of the contemporary Frenchman, Francis Poulenic, "Dialogues des Carmelites," is going to have its America premiere in San Francisco next September with Erich Leinsdorf conducting the San Francisco Opera.

Leinsdorf is conducting Stravinsky's opera, "The Rake's Progress," in the Netherlands in June and will drop in on Poulenc in Paris to get the composer's ideas for the event.

All this reflects an increasing public interest in the works of living composers which was one of the conspicuous developments of the new concluding 1956-57 season.

Cancer-Stricken Couple Dead From Murder, Suicide

WEST HOLLYWOOD, April 20 (UP)—An elderly couple, both suffering from cancer, died in a murder-suicide tolay so that their son could continue law school.

The son, Roger Maxwell Vivian, 29, a first year law school student at University of Southern California, found his parents' bodies about 8:30 a.m. when he returned from his late night job as a hotel night clerk. Letters to the son from his father said in part:

"I have cancer, and taking our lives is a serious thing to do, but we don't want to be a burden to you. We can leave you enough money so that you'll be able to finish law school."

Sgt. H. A. Waldrip, in charge of the sheriff's investigation, said the letter added: "We both realize full well that cancer death is awful beyond any words to describe and what is to be gained by such an agonizing death."

The elderly Vivian had been operated on for cancer last summer, Waldrip said. Mrs. Vivian had undergone surgery two or three years ago, he said.

Dr. William M. Rosenberg, Mrs. Vivian's doctor, said the woman's body was riddled with cancer and estimated she had only a month or two to live.

Dr. Francis Wertz, who attended the elderly Vivian, was not available for comment.

Roger said he would continue law school, the wish of his parents. Asked if he had enough money to continue, Roger said, "I'll get by." He said the family was not wealthy and he knew of no insurance policies left by his parents. The letter from Vivian to his son contained a $300 cashier's check, the sheriff's office said.

Waldrip said Vivian apparently shot his wife in bed with a .38 caliber gun anl then turned it on himself. Mrs. Vivian was shot in the head and heart, Waldrip said. Vivian shot himself in the head.

Roger was on duty at his hotel job when his father called him at 3 a.m. to say the son would find an important letter waiting for him at home.

Solon Seeks Restriction Of Levee Powers

THIBODAUX, La., April 20 (UP)—State Rep. Francis Dugas of Thibodaux said today he planned a bill for the May session of the legislature to cut powers and duties of the state's 18 levee districts.

"There is precedent for such legislation action," he said. "The state building authority has been stripped of all power and authority except for the duty of redeeming its outstanding bonds as they become due."

Several weeks ago Dugas proposed abolishment of the Lafourche basin levee district. He said there was evidence of extravagant political spending by the board.

Dugas said money saved under his new plan could be diverted into necessary road and drainage projects.

The representative also said the U. S. Corps of Engineers since 1928 has controlled major levee construction and repair.

"The levee districts created when there was necessity for their existence are now reduced to the job of cutting the grass on the levees and carrying out minor repair work," he said.

"It does not make sense for the taxpayer's money to be piling up in surpluses in levee districts that do not need money while there are genuine needs that cannot be fulfilled by other agencies for lack of funds."

A state audit report recently showed the combined total revenues of levee districts in the state was more than $9 million.

Eighteen active levee districts now operate in Louisiana and include:

Atchafalaya Basin Levee District.
Chalmette Back Levee District.
Fifth Louisiana Levee District.
Lafourche Basin Levee District.
Lake Borne Basin Levee District.
Nineteenth Louisiana Levee District.
North Bossier Levee District.
Plaquemines Parish East Bank Levee District.
Pontchartrain Levee District.
Tensas Basin Levee District.
Natchitoches Levee District.

The Buras Back Levee District is listed as inactive and the Buras Levee district and Grand Prairie Levee Districts are already under the government authority of the Plaquemines parish police jury.

Humble To Go To Conference Of Presbyterians

John Humble, prominent Presbyterian layman, has been assigned as representative from this area to attend the 97th general assembly of the Presbyterian church of the United States. The sessions will be held in Birmingham, Ala., for five days. Humble will be the only delegate from North Louisiana in attendance.

When the assembly begins Thursday, the commissioners from 84 presbyteries in 16 Southern states, will be faced with a docket of work that fills 197 closely printed pages of the official work book.

Highly controversial items face the commissioners meeting in South Highland Presbyterian church at Birmingha. A proposal by a minority group in the committee on interchurch relations ask that the assembly withdraw the Southern Presbyterian membership in the National and World Councils of Churches of Christ. This recommendation is made on the basis of strong charges against these interdenominational bodies, and is directly opposed by the majority of the same committee, which asks continues membership.

The general Assembly of 1956 had before it a list of charges against these ecumenical bodies, and asked that the committee on interchurch relations make a study and report to the 1957 assembly. The majority and minority reports, differing very sharply, are the result.

City Manager Of M'Alester Resigns Post

McALESTER, Okla., April 20 (UP)—McAlester City Manager A. E. Bookout, formerly of San Antonio, Tex., today resigned his post here and said he was stepping down from the post he has held since March 1 for the "good of the people."

Soon after taking office less than two months ago, a bond company notified the city council that it planned to recall a $25,000 bond on Bookout. The insurance company refused to tell why it planned to recall the bond.

City Manager Steve Matthews of San Antonio, shortly after that, charged that a letter of recommendation for Bookout supposedly signed by Matthews, was a forgery.

Bookout, who apparently was appointed city manager here on the strength of the letter, claimed the letter was sent by enemies to embarrass him.

The city council met only last Tuesday and had delayed for three weeks any action pending further investigation.

A cousin of Bookout's came here two days ago to clear his name after the city manager said the bond company might have investigated the wrong A. E. Bookout. The two men have the same initials.

He said he would return to San Antonio where he was formerly a police officer.

The city council accepted Bookout's resignation. No successor was named.

Bodies Remain Unrecovered In Barge Accident

NEW ORLEANS, April 20 (UP)—The Easter sun to rise in the Gulf of Mexico tomorrow will beam on a wrecked barge which an accident turned into a tomb for six or maybe nine men.

The oil drilling barge, named the Mister K, capsized Wednesday. Six crewmen were rescued. Nine men are missing and are believed to be in the watery interior of the barge.

Mud - darkened waters of the lower Mississippi river causes the 3,000 ton barge to bob, but it does not move further into the Gulf.

So wild is the terrain which divides the barge from the nearest towns that most relatives of the survivors have been unable to view the Mister K, which holds their loved ones.

A lone coast guard ship which had been standing a solitary watch pulled away 10 hours before Easter morning leaving the barge unattended.

Survivors, who had kept a vigil 20 miles from the rescue scene, returned to their homes or to New Orleans, 100 miles away to await further search attempts next week and a Coast Guard investigation which will try Monday to find the cause of the Mister K tragedy.

ANNIVERSARY TODAY

Mississippians Recount Horrors Of 1927 Floods

By DOUGLAS STARR
Associated Press Staff

Thirty years ago Sunday, a raging Mississippi River tore open the levee at Stop's Landing, Miss., and poured hundreds of tons of swirling, muddy water onto 3,000 square miles of the rich Mississippi Delta.

Four Counties — Washington, Issaquena, harkey and Humphreys —were completely under water and parts of seven others were flooded.

Statistics showed at least 42 persons died, more than 300,000 head of livestock and poultry drowned, 735,000 cultivated acres were flooded and more than 200,000 families were left homeless.

The flood was a result of a turbulent spring. For weeks before the levee broke 18 miles upstream from Greenville, the Mississippi River Valley had been washed by torrential rains, buffeted by dozens of tornadoes and windstorms, and menaced by high water and floods along the upper reaches.

Mississippi was far from serene during the early part of April 1927 despite regular reports by the U.S. Corps of Engineers that the levees were in "first-class condition" and would hold back the rampaging river.

On April 5, the river was at flood stage and rising, but the engineers reported sandbagging had been effective and there was no cause for alarm.

However, the almost continuous rains were wreaking havoc among families in low lying areas, forcing them to evacuate to high ground.

Ten days later, Greenville mayor John Cannon proclaimed April 15 "Straw Hat Day." The next day, the Weather Bureau said the April 15-16 rainfall totaled 10½ inches.

On the 17th a tornado spawned high among the thunderheads and crashed through Greenville, destroying a veneer mill and causing more than $200,000 damage.

The entire situation was so critical Gov. Dennis Murphree, completing the term left vacant by the death of Gov. Henry Lewis Whitfield, was unable to open his campaign for governor on schedule. He eventually opened but lost the election to the late Theodore Bilbo.)

Then, on April 20, engineers and other river experts predicted wearily their efforts would prove victorious, that Mississippi would be safe from flood.

With so mech water diverted from the main stream, the pressure between the levees was reduced and the threat of floods to the areas to the south was eased.

Almost as soon as the levee broke, disaster and relief organizations moved into help return the area to normal. Then Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover spent many days in Mississippi, inspecting the damage and offering advice and assistance. A state relief organization was established to coordinate the work and raise money.

One fellow, who declined identification when questioned by newspapermen, said he and a Negro were trapped in a tree. Flood waters lashed at the lower branches and a snake clung to the higher limbs. The wind was moaning and the Negro was praying loudly. Unable to bear it any longer, the fellow shouted:

"Lord, save me, too. Damn it, you know I haven't ever prayed before, but save me, too."

Ike Accused Of 'About Face' In Attitude Toward Controls

BILOXI, Miss., April 20 (AP)—An about face by President Eisenhower was claimed tonight by a Georgia States Rights official arguing against concentration of power in government.

R. Carter Pittman of Dalton, Ga., maintained that the attitude leaders, once they rise to high positions, often diametrically change to the increasing peril of human liberties.

"Liberty and power are in eternal enmity," he declared, quoting also from England's Lord Action that "power tends to corrupt and absolute power corrupts absolutely."

In an address for delivery at a four-day Congress of Freedom, Pittman said that Eisenhower in 1949 as president of Columbia University strongly opposed any federal grants to the states for education.

He quoted Eisenhower as saying in a letter to a House education subcommittee that such federal aid would destroy "the watchful economy that comes through local supervision" and as adding:

"I firmly believe that the army of persons who urge greater centralization of authority and greater dependence upon the federal treasury are really more dangerous to our form of government than any external threat that can be arrayed against us."

"Those," said Pittman, "were the words of Dwight D. Eisenhower, president of Columbia University—the same Dwight Eisenhower, who, as President of the United States, is urging the enactment of the same program of federal aid for education which eight years ago he opposed."

The Georgian contended also that the attitude of Franklin D. Roosevelt on the question of power altered materially between 1930, when he was "out of power," and later years.

Pittman is president of the States Rights Council of Georgia, an organization set up among other things to preserve racial segregation.

Williams Cites Costly Quirk In U. S. Tax Laws

WASHINGTON, April 20 (AP)—Sen. Williams (R-Del) insisted today that under present tax rules, a member of Congress risks extra income taxes if he economizes on official expense allowances.

Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey has offered to take back the $1,508.26 Williams said he saved from his stationery money. But Williams said Humphrey "missed the point," adding in a telephone interview from his home in Millsboro, Del.:

"There has never been any question that he or the Treasury would take the money," Williams said. "What he can't do is relieve a member of Congress from tax liability if he saves expense money under a present tax ruling.."

Williams told the Senate Thursday he had been trying to return the $1,508.26 to the Treasury, but that the agency wouldn't let him do so. He said the money remained from his $1,800 stationery allowance for the fiscal year which ended last June 30.

The Senator said that when he tried to give back the money, he was informed of a 1956 ruling that the allowance belonged to members of Congress, and that if he didn't use all of his, he would have to pay taxes on what was left over.

Yesterday, Humphrey said that if Williams "would offer me a check for the amount, I will be glad to receive it personally" on behalf of the Treasury.

It was in this connection that Williams said Humphrey missed the point.

The senator said that under the revenue ruling any member of Congress "who is in the 40 per cent income tax bracket" would have to pay about $600 additional income taxes to leave the $1,500 in the Treasury.

Williams said he expects the comptroller general to find some way to reverse the 1956 ruling.

Peal Of Bells Rings In Easter At Vatican City

VATICAN CITY, Sunday, April 21 (UP)— The bells of 447 churches pealed the glorious tidings of the resurrection this Easter morning for Romans and an unprecedents number of foreign pilgrims.

The great bell of St. John Lateran, mother church of Christianity, led the thunderous clanging at midnight that symbolized the end of lent and proclaimed that "Christ is risen."

Later today, tens of thousands of pilgrims will mass in St. Peter's square to hear Pope Pius XII's annual Easter appeal for peace in the world.

The pontiff appeared in the window of his study Saturday to bless some 5,000 pilgrims and Romans gathered in the great square.

By his decree, lent this year lasted until midnight instead of ending at noon on Holy Saturday.

Pastor Gives Motive Behind Ark. Slaying

COVE, Ark., April 20 (AP) — A young minister said tonight he had been dating pretty Helen Griffith in recent weeks and that the rejected suitor who killed her during a pre-Easter church service last night also was trying to kill him.

The Rev. Davis sat beside the 20-year-old girl in Hilltop Holiness church last night just before a fusillade of six bullets ripped through the church window, killing Miss Griffith and wounding another member of the congregation in the leg.

Marshal Burl Brown said Haskell Sullivan, 28-year-old resident of Buffalo, Okla., just across the line from this west Arkansas mountain community, killed himself later and left a note which said: "I killed Helen and I'm going with her."

The marshal said Sullivan, whose body was found in his pickup truck in Nano Chito, Okla., about 20 miles from here, had been warned by the girl's father to "stop bothering her." The marshal said he, also, had given Sullivan "a talking-to."

He said Sullivan had dated Miss Griffith a few times.

The Rev. Davis said he had escorted Miss Griffith to the revival-type service at the church and that she had just finished singing with the choir and returned to the pew when:

"I looked around for some reason and saw through the window the muzzle of a gun. He was trying to get us both. I yelled, 'Hit the floor,' and ducked, trying to pull Helen with me."

He said he vaguely recalled Miss Griffith, wounded by four bullets, staggering into the aisle. The girl was dead on arrival at a hospital in nearby Mena, Ark.

Four Autos Are Involved In Freak Accident

All cars were going east on DeSiard, and three were halted for a red light at the intersection of North Fourth street. At that place, DeSiard is one-way, and two of the cars were on the right side, with the third on the left.

At this point, Jesse H. Roberts, Sr., 27 of Monroe, driving in the same direction, tried to apply his brakes - and found that he didn't have any. He swerved the car and went between all three cars, bashing in the right side of two of them, and the left side of the third.

In the left lane was Gertie L. McNeal, 47, Negro of P. O. Box 217, West Monroe, driving a 1956 Pontiac. The right rear of the car was damaged.

No charges were filed in the accident, and no one was injured.

Braniff Plane Lands Safely After Scare

DALLAS, April 20 (AP)—A Braniff Airways plane with 41 persons aboard and a jammed nose landing gear eased in for a safe landing last night as thousands looked on.

The two-engined Convair 340 flight originated at Corpus Christi and had made stops at San Antonio, Dallas and Oklahoma City. The gear developed the malfunction after the plane took off from Oklahoma City for Kansas City.

Crossett Extends Fire Protection Outside City Limits

CROSSETT, April 20 (Special)—For the first time persons now in areas outside of Crossett will be assured of some fire protection, James Armstrong, fire chief, announced.

Chief Armstrong asked the Council's permission to draw up contracts between the Crossett Volunteer Fire Department and Fire Protection Associations in South and West Crossett. The Council granted the permission and the contracts will now be written.

Under the agreements the local fire department will answer alarms from West and South Crossett with the old fire truck. Payment will be made on a cost basis, Chief Armstrong said. Each man who answers the call will receive $2.50 and the department will be paid $5.00 per hour for the truck. This is the department's cost, he pointed out, as it costs at least $5.00 for the truck's operation and the firemen are paid $2.50 for each call they answer.

Chief Armstrong said the agreements came about after groups from South and West Crossett were contacted about securing some type of fire protection for their areas. He said North Crossett citizens were also informed of the meeting, but no response came from that area.

During the past five years a total of seven alarms has been received from the outlying areas, the chief said, but until now the city fire department has not been allowed to answer across the city line.

CEMETERY WASHES AWAY

McGregor, Texas, Hunting Caskets

MCGREGOR, Tex., April 20 (UP)—Teams of five men each patrolled both shores of flooded Harris Creek early tonight, searching for missing bodies and caskets from washed-out McGregor cemetery.

Chief of Police Joe Burks reported that 11 caskets had been found after a waterspout on the creek's watershed caused that stream to overflow and cover the city's burial grounds. The creek normally curves around the cemetery.

It was believed that from 11 to 17 caskets—officers couldn't be positive—were still missing.

Some 1,000 to 1,500 automobiles were milling around the cemetery. Many of the cars bore persons who had loved ones buried in the cemetery and were anxious to find out whether their graves withstood the flood.

Other autos were filled with the morbid curious, creating traffic problems for this city of 6,000 person.

Many of the caskets found and some missing contained the bodies of babies. The 11 caskets found were stacked at the McGregor Milling and Grain Co. Officers hadn't decided what to do with them and said it may be impossible to make identification.

Searching parties used long steel poles to probe into the ground in many of the washed out areas in the cemetery. If the pole hit a box then they knew the casket remained.

"Some of them are so badly deteriorated I expect we'll never find them," he said. "I guess there are 1,000 or 1,500 cars down there at the cemetery now. They still come in droves, more out of curiosity than anything else."

Julius A. Hudson, Dallas photographer who flew over the area, said he could see casket boxes sticking out of the ground.

Virginia Dinner 'Worry Signal' Put Out Again

RICHMOND, Va., April 20 (AP)—The worry signal went on again today at the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce with discovery that a fourth Negro had been invited by mistake to its May 17 dinner party for distinguished Virginians.

Judge Edward R. Dudley of Domestic Relations Court in New York, a member of the NAACP's legal staff, said he had received the invitation sent under the name of Gov. Thomas B. Stanley and the chamber, and had accepted.

He said also he might attend but that depended on his work schedule in New York and a number of other factors. Judge Dudley, a former ambassador to Liberia, is a native of South Boston, Va.

The New York jurist's appearace on the guest list for what was designed as an all-white affair for Virginia natives who have moved elsewhere brought renewed headshaking to Chamber officials who were beginning to breathe easier only yesterday.

Their temporary feelings of relief were occasioned by what appeared to be the end of 10 days of anxiety over a fouled-up invitation list which included three inadvertant invitations to Negroes. Invitations to the three were recalled and all three said finally they wouldn't make an issue of it and wouldn't attend.

Then the invitation to Judge Dudley came to light.

Vernon Kemp, executive director of the chamber, said the policy on seating persons at the dinner remains the same.

"All the invitations were sent RSVP," he said. "We will have to rescind them if they are Negro. But if they insist on coming we are not going to make an issue of it at the door."

When the previous errors were discovered — due to bobbles in the screening process, the chamber said — the chamber president, Frank A. Ernst, withdrew the invitations with expressions of regret and apology.

Johnny To Feel Of Easter Bunny

ATLANTA, April 20 (AP) — Johnny Pair, the 5-year-old Atlanta boy who lost both eyes to cancer, is looking forward to "seeing" the Easter bunny with his hands tomorrow.

"I can't see with my eyes, but I can see with my hands," he said. "If I hadn't lost my eyes I would have died — and aren't we glad I'm here?"

gla I'm here?"

Johnny, the son of divorced parents, had his remaining eye removed last Oct. 8 to stop the spread of a malignant growth doctors said threatened his life. The other eye was removed about a year before.

U. S. Proposes Talks On Red China Trade

WASHINGTON, April 20 (UP)—The United States announced today that it has advised 14 allied nations that it is prepared to discuss "certain modifications" in allied controls on trade with Red China.

The State Department's announcement came shortly after Tokyo dispatches quoted Japanese sources as saying the United States had agreed to relax a western embargo on shipments of strategic goods to Communist China.

The dispatches said jubilant Japanese business and government leaders immediately began preparing for increased trade with the Chinese Reds.

The State Department announcement did not go quite as far as the Japanese indicated. The department said its proposal, made to embassies of the 14 nations during the past week, involved three basic points:

—Certain items, which were not identified, would be removed from the list of items banned for allied trade with Communist China. The items could only be used for "peaceful" purposes.

—Certain other items now embargoed would be transferred to the same status and would be subject to a "lesser degree of control" than before.

—So-called "exceptions" procedure would be tightened so that Britain, for example, could step up its trade despite allied trade controls.

The department added:

"It was emphasized to our allies that there is no change in United States policy with respect to trade with Communist China. The United States will continue its unilateral embargo on all trade with Communist China."

Ike Approves Bond Rate Hike

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 20 (UP)—President Eisenhower made a higher interest rate on government bonds official today and laid aside his paper work to spend a quiet Easter with close friends at his golfing vacation headquarters.

A hot Georgia sun has done its work well with the President. Eisenhower is developing a tan and close associates said the 80-degree plus weather is "baking out" the remnants of his lingering winter cold. The cough that has nagged him since January is noticeably improved, friends said.

Before adjourning for the Easter observance the President signed legislation permitting the Treasury to raise the interest on series E and H bonds from three to three and one-fourth per cent. This will enable the Treasury to make these bonds more attractive to the small investing but numerically large savings group.

Cancer-Stricken Couple Dead From Murder, Suicide

WEST HOLLYWOOD, April 20 (UP)—An elderly couple, both suffering from cancer, died in a murder-suicide tolay so that their son could continue law school.

The son, Roger Maxwell Vivian, 29, a first year law school student at University of Southern California, found his parents' bodies about 8:30 a.m. when he returned from his late night job as a hotel night clerk. Letters to the son from his father said in part:

"I have cancer, and taking our lives is a serious thing to do, but we don't want to be a burden to you. We can leave you enough money so that you'll be able to finish law school."

Sgt. H. A. Waldrip, in charge of the sheriff's investigation, said the letter added: "We both realize full well that cancer death is awful beyond any words to describe and what is to be gained by such an agonizing death."

The elderly Vivian had been operated on for cancer last summer, Waldrip said. Mrs. Vivian had undergone surgery two or three years ago, he said.

Dr. William M. Rosenberg, Mrs. Vivian's doctor, said the woman's body was riddled with cancer and estimated she had only a month or two to live.

Dr. Francis Wertz, who attended the elderly Vivian, was not available for comment.

Roger said he would continue law school, the wish of his parents. Asked if he had enough money to continue, Roger said, "I'll get by." He said the family was not wealthy and he knew of no insurance policies left by his parents. The letter from Vivian to his son contained a $300 cashier's check, the sheriff's office said.

Waldrip said Vivian apparently shot his wife in bed with a .38 caliber gun anl then turned it on himself. Mrs. Vivian was shot in the head and heart, Waldrip said. Vivian shot himself in the head.

Roger was on duty at his hotel job when his father called him at 3 a.m. to say the son would find an important letter waiting for him at home.

Solon Seeks Restriction Of Levee Powers

THIBODAUX, La., April 20 (UP)—State Rep. Francis Dugas of Thibodaux said today he planned a bill for the May session of the legislature to cut powers and duties of the state's 18 levee listricts.

Dugas said millions of dollars is being wasted under the present levee board system.

Levee boards would have only the duty of paying off the district indebtedness under Dugas' plan.

"There is precedent for such legislation action," he said. "The state building authority has been stripped of all power and authority except for the duty of redeeming its outstanding bonds as they become due."

Several weeks ago Dugas proposed abolishment of the Lafourche basin levee district. He said there was evidence of extravagant political spending by the board.

Dugas said money saved under his new plan could be diverted into necessary road and drainage projects.

The representative also said the U. S. Corps of Engineers since 1928 has controlled major levee construction and repair.

"The levee districts created when there was necessity for their existence are now reduced to the job of cutting the grass on the levees and carrying out minor repair work," he said.

"It does not make sense for the taxpayer's money to be piling up in surpluses in levee districts that do not need money while there are genuine needs that cannot be fulfilled by other agencies for lack of funds."

A state audit report recently showed the combined total revenues of levee districts in the state was more than $9 million.

Eighteen active levee districts now operate in Louisiana and include:

Atchafalaya Basin Levee District.
Chalmette Back Levee District.
Fifth Louisiana Levee District.
Lafourche Basin Levee District.
Lake Borne Basin Levee District.
Nineteenth Louisiana Levee District.
North Bossier Levee District.
Plaquemines Parish East Bank Levee District.
Pontchartrain Levee District.
Tensas Basin Levee District.
Natchitoches Levee District.

The Buras Back Levee District is listed as inactive and the Buras Levee district and Grand Prairie Levee Districts are already under the government authority of the Plaquemines parish police jury.

Humble To Go To Conference Of Presbyterians

John Humble, prominent Presbyterian layman, has been assigned as representative from this area to attend the 97th general assembly of the Presbyterian church of the United States. The sessions will be held in Birmingham, Ala., for five days. Humble will be the only delegate from North Louisiana in attendance.

When the assembly begins Thursday, the commissioners from 84 presbyteries in 16 Southern states, will be faced with a docket of work that fills 197 closely printed pages of the official work book.

Highly controversial items face the commissioners meeting in South Highland Presbyterian church at Birmingha. A proposal by a minority group in the committee on interchurch relations ask that the assembly withdraw the Southern Presbyterian membership in the National and World Councils of Churches of Christ. This recommendation is made on the basis of strong charges against these interdenominational bodies, and is directly opposed by the majority of the same committee, which asks continues membership.

The general Assembly of 1956 had before it a list of charges against these ecumenical bodies, and asked that the committee on interchurch relations make a study and report to the 1957 assembly. The majority and minority reports, differing very sharply, are the result.

City Manager Of M'Alester Resigns Post

McALESTER, Okla., April 20 (UP)—McAlester City Manager A. E. Bookout, formerly of San Antonio, Tex., today resigned his post here and said he was stepping down from the post he has held since March 1 for the "good of the people."

Soon after taking office less than two months ago, a bond company notified the city council that it planned to recall a $25,000 bond on Bookout. The insurance company refused to tell why it planned to recall the bond.

City Manager Steve Matthews of San Antonio, shortly after that, charged that a letter of recommendation for Bookout supposedly signed by Matthews, was a forgery.

Bookout, who apparently was appointed city manager here on the strength of the letter, claimed the letter was sent by enemies to embarrass him.

The city council met only last Tuesday and had delayed for three weeks any action pending further investigation.

A cousin of Bookout's came here two days ago to clear his name after the city manager said the bond company might have investigated the wrong A. E. Bookout. The two men have the same initials.

He said he would return to San Antonio where he was formerly a police officer.

The city council accepted Bookout's resignation. No successor was named.

Bodies Remain Unrecovered In Barge Accident

NEW ORLEANS, April 20 (UP)—The Easter sun to rise in the Gulf of Mexico tomorrow will beam on a wrecked barge which an accident turned into a tomb for six or maybe nine men.

The oil drilling barge, named the Mister K, capsized Wednesday. Six crewmen were rescued. Nine men are missing and are believed to be in the watery interior of the barge.

Mud - darkened waters of the lower Mississippi river causes the 3,000 ton barge to bob, but it does not move further into the Gulf.

The barge is unattended surrounded only by water and the two-mile distant desolate marsh lands of south Louisiana.

So wild is the terrain which divides the barge from the nearest towns that most relatives of the survivors have been unable to view the Mister K, which holds their loved ones.

Rescue operations ended until next week at the river scene after divers were unable to enter living quarters of the barge.

A lone coast guard ship which had been standing a solitary watch pulled away 10 hours before Easter morning leaving the barge unattended.

Survivors, who had kept a vigil 20 miles from the rescue scene, returned to their homes or to New Orleans, 100 miles away to await further search attempts next week and a Coast Guard investigation which will try Monday to find the cause of the Mister K tragedy.

ANNIVERSARY TODAY

Mississippians Recount Horrors Of 1927 Floods

By DOUGLAS STARR
Associated Press Staff

Thirty years ago Sunday, a raging Mississippi River tore open the levee at Stop's Landing, Miss., and poured hundreds of tons of swirling, muddy water onto 3,000 square miles of the rich Mississippi Delta.

Four Counties — Washington, Issaquena, harkey and Humphreys —were completely under water and parts of seven others were flooded.

Statistics showed at least 42 persons died, more than 300,000 head of livestock and poultry drowned, 735,000 cultivated acres were flooded and more than 200,000 families were left homeless.

The flood was a result of a turbulent spring. For weeks before the levee broke 18 miles upstream from Greenville, the Mississippi River Valley had been washed by torrential rains, buffeted by dozens of tornadoes and windstorms, and menaced by high water and floods along the upper reaches.

Mississippi was far from serene during the early part of April 1927 despite regular reports by the U.S. Corps of Engineers that the levees were in "first-class condition" and would hold back the rampaging river.

On April 5, the river was at flood stage and rising, but the engineers reported sandbagging had been effective and there was no cause for alarm.

However, the almost continuous rains were wreaking havoc among families in low lying areas, forcing them to evacuate to high ground.

Ten days later, Greenville mayor John Cannon proclaimed April 15 "Straw Hat Day." The next day, the Weather Bureau said the April 15-16 rainfall totaled 10½ inches.

On the 17th a tornado spawned high among the thunderheads and crashed through Greenville, destroying a veneer mill and causing more than $200,000 damage.

The entire situation was so critical Gov. Dennis Murphree, completing the term left vacant by the death of Gov. Henry Lewis Whitfield, was unable to open his campaign for governor on schedule. He eventually opened but lost the election to the late Theodore Bilbo.)

Then, on April 20, engineers and other river experts predicted wearily their efforts would prove victorious, that Mississippi would be safe from flood.

With so mech water diverted from the main stream, the pressure between the levees was reduced and the threat of floods to the areas to the south was eased.

Almost as soon as the levee broke, disaster and relief organizations moved into help return the area to normal. Then Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover spent many days in Mississippi, inspecting the damage and offering advice and assistance. A state relief organization was established to coordinate the work and raise money.

The situation was not without humor.

Houses at Ward Lake were braced for flood waters. But a heavy windstorm arose and destroyed every one.

One fellow, who declined identification when questioned by newspapermen, said he and a Negro were trapped in a tree. Flood waters lashed at the lower branches and a snake clung to the higher limbs. The wind was moaning and the Negro was praying loudly. Unable to bear it any longer, the fellow shouted:

"Lord, save me, too. Damn it, you know I haven't ever prayed before, but save me, too."

Ike Accused Of 'About Face' In Attitude Toward Controls

BILOXI, Miss., April 20 (AP)—An about face by President Eisenhower was claimed tonight by a Georgia States Rights official arguing against concentration of power in government.

R. Carter Pittman of Dalton, Ga., maintained that the attitude leaders, once they rise to high positions, often diametrically change to the increasing peril of human liberties.

"Liberty and power are in eternal enmity," he declared, quoting also from England's Lord Action that "power tends to corrupt and absolute power corrupts absolutely."

In an address for delivery at a four-day Congress of Freedom, Pittman said that Eisenhower in 1949 as president of Columbia University strongly opposed any federal grants to the states for education.

He quoted Eisenhower as saying in a letter to a House education subcommittee that such federal aid would destroy "the watchful economy that comes through local supervision" and as adding:

"I firmly believe that the army of persons who urge greater centralization of authority and greater dependence upon the federal treasury are really more dangerous to our form of government than any external threat that can be arrayed against us."

"Those," said Pittman, "were the words of Dwight D. Eisenhower, president of Columbia University—the same Dwight Eisenhower, who, as President of the United States, is urging the enactment of the same program of federal aid for education which eight years ago he opposed."

The Georgian contended also that the attitude of Franklin D. Roosevelt on the question of power altered materially between 1930, when he was "out of power," and later years.

Pittman is president of the States Rights Council of Georgia, an organization set up among other things to preserve racial segregation.

Williams Cites Costly Quirk In U. S. Tax Laws

WASHINGTON, April 20 (AP) — Sen. Williams (R-Del) insisted today that under present tax rules, a member of Congress risks extra income taxes if he economizes on official expense allowances.

Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey has offered to take back the $1,508.26 Williams said he saved from his stationery money. But Williams said Humphrey "missed the point," adding in a telephone interview from his home in Millsboro, Del.:

"There has never been any question that he or the Treasury would take the money," Williams said. "What he can't do is relieve a member of Congress from tax liability if he saves expense money under a present tax ruling.."

Williams told the Senate Thursday he had been trying to return the $1,508.26 to the Treasury, but that the agency wouldn't let him do so. He said the money remained from his $1,800 stationery allowance for the fiscal year which ended last June 30.

The Senator said that when he tried to give back the money, he was informed of a 1956 ruling that the allowance belonged to members of Congress, and that if he didn't use all of his, he would have to pay taxes on what was left over.

Yesterday, Humphrey said that if Williams "would offer me a check for the amount, I will be glad to receive it personally" on behalf of the Treasury.

It was in this connection that Williams said Humphrey missed the point.

The senator said that under the revenue ruling any member of Congress "who is in the 40 per cent income tax bracket" would have to pay about $600 additional income taxes to leave the $1,500 in the Treasury.

Williams said he expects the comptroller general to find some way to reverse the 1956 ruling.

Reported missing are W. J. Davis, Arm, Miss.; Jasmia Harvey, Jr., Jayess, Miss.; and Lewis Hightower, Jayess, Miss.; Fred Stanford, Ponchatoula; T. O. Goodman, Channelview, Tex.; William Darden, Monroe, La.; R. J. Faucheaux, Norco, La.; Henry Guret, Reserve, La.; and George Chandler, Jr., Austin, Tex.

COVE, Ark., April 20 (AP) — A young minister said tonight he had been dating pretty Helen Griffith in recent weeks and that the rejected suitor who killed her during a pre-Easter church service last night also was trying to kill him.

"He was trying to get both of us," said the Rev. Gene Davis, a 20 - year - old co-minister of the church.

Marshal Burl Brown said Haskell Sullivan, 28-year-old resident of Buffalo, Okla., just across the line from this west Arkansas mountain community, killed himself later and left a note which said: "I killed Helen and I'm going with her."

The marshal said Sullivan, whose body was found in his pickup truck in Nano Chito, Okla., about 20 miles from here, had been warned by the girl's father to "stop bothering her." The marshal said he, also, had given Sullivan "a talking-to."

He said Sullivan had dated Miss Griffith a few times.

The Rev. Davis said he had escorted Miss Griffith to the revival-type service at the church and that she had just finished singing with the choir and returned to the pew when:

"I looked around for some reason and saw through the window the muzzle of a gun. He was trying to get us both. I yelled, 'Hit the floor,' and ducked, trying to pull Helen with me."

He said he vaguely recalled Miss Griffith, wounded by four bullets, staggering into the aisle. The girl was dead on arrival at a hospital in nearby Mena, Ark.

Four Autos Are Involved In Freak Accident

Monroe city police yesterday morning investigated a freek - three cars standing still, damaged by a fourth auto which sideswiped them.

All cars were going east on DeSiard, and three were halted for a red light at the intersection of North Fourth street. At that place, DeSiard is one-way, and two of the cars were on the right side, with the third on the left.

At this point, Jesse H. Roberts, Sr., 27 of Monroe, driving in the same direction, tried to apply his brakes - and found that he didn't have any. He swerved the car and went between all three cars, bashing in the right side of two of them, and the left side of the third.

In the left lane was Gertie L. McNeal, 47, Negro of P. O. Box 217, West Monroe, driving a 1956 Pontiac. The right rear of the car was damaged.

No charges were filed in the accident, and no one was injured.

Braniff Plane Lands Safely After Scare

DALLAS, April 20 (AP)—A Braniff Airways plane with 41 persons aboard and a jammed nose landing gear eased in for a safe landing last night as thousands looked on.

The two-engined Convair 340 flight originated at Corpus Christi and had made stops at San Antonio, Dallas and Oklahoma City. The gear developed the malfunction after the plane took off from Oklahoma City for Kansas City.

Crossett Extends Fire Protection Outside City Limits

CROSSETT, April 20 (Special)—For the first time persons now in areas outside of Crossett will be assured of some fire protection, James Armstrong, fire chief, announced.

Chief Armstrong asked the Council's permission to draw up contracts between the Crossett Volunteer Fire Department and Fire Protection Associations in South and West Crossett. The Council granted the permission and the contracts will now be written.

Under the agreements the local fire department will answer alarms from West and South Crossett with the old fire truck. Payment will be made on a cost basis, Chief Armstrong said. Each man who answers the call will receive $2.50 and the department will be paid $5.00 per hour for the truck. This is the department's cost, he pointed out, as it costs at least $5.00 for the truck's operation and the firemen are paid $2.50 for each call they answer.

Chief Armstrong said the agreements came about after groups from South and West Crossett were contacted about securing some type of fire protection for their areas. He said North Crossett citizens were also informed of the meeting, but no response came from that area.

During the past five years a total of seven alarms has been received from the outlying areas, the chief said, but until now the city fire department has not been allowed to answer across the city line.

CEMETERY WASHES AWAY

McGregor, Texas, Hunting Caskets

MCGREGOR, Tex., April 20 (UP)—Teams of five men each patrolled both shores of flooded Harris Creek early tonight, searching for missing bodies and caskets from washed-out McGregor cemetery.

Chief of Police Joe Burks reported that 11 caskets had been found after a waterspout on the creek's watershed caused that stream to overflow and cover the city's burial grounds. The creek normally curves around the cemetery.

It was believed that from 11 to 17 caskets—officers couldn't be positive—were still missing.

Some 1,000 to 1,500 automobiles were milling around the cemetery. Many of the cars bore persons who had loved ones buried in the cemetery and were anxious to find out whether their graves withstood the flood.

Other autos were filled with the morbid curious, creating traffic problems for this city of 6,000 person.

Many of the caskets found and some missing contained the bodies of babies. The 11 caskets found were stacked at the McGregor Milling and Grain Co. Officers hadn't decided what to do with them and said it may be impossible to make identification.

Searching parties used long steel poles to probe into the ground in many of the washed out areas in the cemetery. If the pole hit a box then they knew the casket remained.

City officials of Waco were concerned since Harris Creek flows into Bosque River which in turn feeds into Lake Waco, source of that city's water supplies.

Burks said some of the caskets may never be found.

"Some of them are so badly deteriorated I expect we'll never find them," he said. "I guess there are 1,000 or 1,500 cars down there at the cemetery now. They still come in droves, more out of curiosity than anything else."

Julius A. Hudson, Dallas photographer who flew over the area, said he could see casket boxes sticking out of the ground.

Virginia Dinner 'Worry Signal' Put Out Again

RICHMOND, Va., April 20 (AP)—The worry signal went on again today at the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce with discovery that a fourth Negro had been invited by mistake to its May 17 dinner party for distinguished Virginians.

Judge Edward R. Dudley of Domestic Relations Court in New York, a member of the NAACP's legal staff, said he had received the invitation sent under the name of Gov. Thomas B. Stanley and the chamber, and had accepted.

He said also he might attend but that depended on his work schedule in New York and a number of other factors. Judge Dudley, a former ambassador to Liberia, is a native of South Boston, Va.

The New York jurist's appearace on the guest list for what was designed as an all-white affair for Virginia natives who have moved elsewhere brought renewed headshaking to Chamber officials who were beginning to breathe easier only yesterday.

Their temporary feelings of relief were occasioned by what appeared to be the end of 10 days of anxiety over a fouled-up invitation list which included three inadvertant invitations to Negroes. Invitations to the three were recalled and all three said finally they wouldn't make an issue of it and wouldn't attend.

Then the invitation to Judge Dudley came to light.

Vernon Kemp, executive director of the chamber, said the policy on seating persons at the dinner remains the same.

"All the invitations were sent RSVP," he said. "We will have to rescind them if they are Negro. But if they insist on coming we are not going to make an issue of it at the door."

When the previous errors were discovered — due to bobbles in the screening process, the chamber said — the chamber president, Frank A. Ernst, withdrew the invitations with expressions of regret and apology.

Johnny To Feel Of Easter Bunny

ATLANTA, April 20 (AP) — Johnny Pair, the 5-year-old Atlanta boy who lost both eyes to cancer, is looking forward to "seeing" the Easter bunny with his hands tomorrow.

"I can't see with my eyes, but I can see with my hands," he said. "If I hadn't lost my eyes I would have died — and aren't we glad I'm here?"

Johnny, the son of divorced parents, had his remaining eye removed last Oct. 8 to stop the spread of a malignant growth doctors said threatened his life. The other eye was removed about a year before.

U. S. Proposes Talks On Red China Trade

WASHINGTON, April 20 (UP)—The United States announced today that it has advised 14 allied nations that it is prepared to discuss "certain modifications" in allied controls on trade with Red China.

The State Department's announcement came shortly after Tokyo dispatches quoted Japanese sources as saying the United States had agreed to relax a western embargo on shipments of strategic goods to Communist China.

The dispatches said jubilant Japanese business and government leaders immediately began preparing for increased trade with the Chinese Reds.

The State Department emphasized there will be no change in this country's own embargo against any type of trade by Americans with Red China.

The State Department announcement did not go quite as far as the Japanese indicated. The department said its proposal, made to embassies of the 14 nations during the past week, involved three basic points:

—Certain items, which were not identified, would be removed from the list of items banned for allied trade with Communist China. The items could only be used for "peaceful" purposes.

—Certain other items now embargoed would be transferred to the same status and would be subject to a "lesser degree of control" than before.

—So-called "exceptions" procedure would be tightened so that Britain, for example, could step up its trade despite allied trade controls.

The department added:

"It was emphasized to our allies that there is no change in United States policy with respect to trade with Communist China. The United States will continue its unilateral embargo on all trade with Communist China."

Ike Approves Bond Rate Hike

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 20 (UP)—President Eisenhower made a higher interest rate on government bonds official today and laid aside his paper work to spend a quiet Easter with close friends at his golfing vacation headquarters.

A hot Georgia sun has done its work well with the President. Eisenhower is developing a tan and close associates said the 80-degree plus weather is "baking out" the remnants of his lingering winter cold. The cough that has nagged him since January is noticeably improved, friends said.

Before adjourning for the Easter observance the President signed legislation permitting the Treasury to raise the interest on series E and H bonds from three to three and one-fourth per cent. This will enable the Treasury to make these bonds more attractive to the small investing but numerically large savings group.

2 Men Injured In Wreck Here

Two persons were taken to St. Francis hospital yesterday morning following a two-car crash at 1300 Natchitoches street, West Monroe.

West Monroe police who investigated said L. E. Rye, 60, of 730 East Lucas Drive, Beaumont, Texas, was pulling out onto the highway at 10:15 a.m. when another car driven by John V. Allen, 27, of 310 Ouachita Drive, West Monroe, smashed into the Rye car, knocking it across a ditch into some barbed wire.

Rye's car was halted by several fence posts. Both he and E. M. Ramsey of Route 4, Farmerville, who was a passenger in the Allen car, were rushed to St. Francis.

Hospital officials sail that Rye suffered a "whip lash syndome" injury to his neck and possible dorsal and cervical injury. Ramsey had multiple scratches and cuts about his face and forehead. Both men were admitted.

Allen was unhurt, but was charged with public intoxication. Both drivers were charged with reckless driving and causing a wreck. The front and back of Rye's car was damaged, and the right front and windshield of Allen's car was smashed.

The automobile buyer these days hears a lot about "good deals." An automobile is no better than the dealer who stands behind it. When you become an Olcott Motors Chrysler or Plymouth owner—our job is just beginning. 75% of our personnel and the majority of our investment in equipment is employed to see you stay one! Since we're not a volume dealer—a satistied Chrysler-Plymouth owner is more important to us than another sales registration. We have a nice selection of Chryslers and Plymouths at prices as low as anyone. Full trade-in value for your car with terms up to 36 months at bank interest rates. May we make you an offer?

Many Relics Are Pouring Into The Ouachita Musem

By MARIE KENT

Museum committee members of the Ouachita Genealogical and Historical Society have been busy this week answering calls and collecting donations. The interest and enthusiasm has continued to grow the past few weeks and it gives us great encouragement. In fact so many relics have come in we are now in need of more cases in which to display them. Several of you merchants have been remodeling this spring and we hope you have some old cases you will donate or sell at a moderate price. If so, please call Mrs. Tynes, phone 2-6476.

The display cases located at the Northeast Louisiana State College took on a new look last week. Several members of the local society met for a 'clean up' at the museum. Some paint, polish and hard work really gave the display a face lifting. Have you been out to see it yet?

We had several generous donors this week. One of them is Mr. Lafayette A. Trousdale, a member of a very prominent family that dates back to the early history of this area. One which played a great part in helping to make our history. Mr. Trousdale's album containing several pictures of the early boats that traveled the Ouachita and Mississippi rivers is a very interesting donation.

It is understood that in the 1800's the only means of travel and transportation of goods our people had were by the rivers. To turn the pages in Mr. Trousdale's album is like turning back the curtain of time. The pictures are of such outstanding steamers as, "The Ouachita Belle," taken in New Orleans in 1872 while loaded with cotton from this area. She was owned by Fred A. Blanks and commanded by Capt. J. W. Blanks. A close up of "The America," owned and commanded by Capt. L. V. Cooley, was made in 1898. The boat is loaded with passengers, lumber and barrels, so apparently the picture was taken at the Monroe port. Also shown in the picture is a large stack of baled cotton on the loading platform, and several wagons and buggies drawn by horses were in the background. The people awaiting the landing of the boat were many, and dressed in the garb that was high style in that day.

A picture of "The John H. Hanna," was made on the Monroe banks of the Ouachita in 1872 and showed only a vastly wooded area where West Monroe is now located.

"The Grand Republic," 1876, was one of great beauty. Her dining room was 50 feet by 300 feet surrounded on either side with bedrooms that would accommodate 600 passengers. Her ceiling was studded with gold ornaments and from which hanged oil burning chandeliers. A piano costing $1,000 stood in one corner of the thick, plush carpeted room.

There are several others worthy of more than a mere mention, such as The Natchez and Robert E. Lee Race July 4, 1870; the Baton Rouge 1876; The Vicksburg, U. S. Mail, 1876; Captain Cryer's "D. Stein," 1878; The Levere: The Ouachita docked at South Grand opposite Capt. Cooley Home; The M. L. Meredith and others, but our space is limited.

These will soon be mounted along with a brief history and placed on display at your museum. Plan to visit it and make your donation soon.

A SYMBOL, NOT A SACRAMENT

Baptists do not call the Lord's Supper a "sacrament." To them, "sacrament" suggests a meaning foreign to New Testament teaching by suggesting that the act itself brings the individual salvation from his sin. Baptists prefer to call the supper an "ordinance"—something established by the Lord. Rightly observed, however, the Lord's Supper is worship on the highest level and has a very sacred meaning.

The Lord's Supper is a memorial of love. Jesus said "This do in remembrance of me" (1 Corinthians 11:24). He wanted it to remind Christians of his sacrifice for their sins. It is indeed a memorial of his self-giving on the cross. The supper declares the amazing love of Christ in giving his body and shedding his blood to reclaim men for God. Its observance, therefore, declares the grateful love of those who have been restored to God through his death. They keep this ordinance in joyful obedience to honor the Saviour.

The Lord's Supper is a symbol. It is really a dramatic sermon; it is truth in a picture. When Jesus said of the bread, "This is my body," he meant that it represented his body. Likewise he spoke of the cup: it represented his blood poured out for the forgiveness of sins.

The Lord's Supper is not spiritual magic. To eat and to drink at this service can never impart any divine favor to cover one's sins. Salvation is not provided by a ceremony but by Christ. A person does not receive salvation by obedience but by faith. According to the New Testament, "by grace are ye saved through faith" (Ephesians 2:8). Observing the supper can add nothing to the free gift of divine pardon.

The Lord's Supper is a declaration of faith. By observing it, "Ye do shew the Lord's death till he come" (1 Corinthians 11:26). Christians thus declare their faith in Christ, who sacrificed his own life for the sins of others. They testify to the reality of Christ's continuing presence and pardoning power. And they affirm their faith in the certainty of his coming again.

The sacred importance of the Lord's Supper, therefore, arises from its meaning and purpose. It is a symbol of holiest truth: first, that Christ gave his life to restore men to God; second, that this restoration comes through partaking of Christ and Christ alone. The observance of the Lord's Supper vividly recalls Jesus' suffering for sin. Its observance furnishes new insights into the glory of the cross and moves people to follow Christ in a way of self-denial, sacrifice, and fidelity.

A SYMBOL, NOT A SACRAMENT

Baptists do not call the Lord's Supper a "sacrament." To them, "sacrament" suggests a meaning foreign to New Testament teaching by suggesting that the act itself brings the individual salvation from his sin. Baptists prefer to call the supper an "ordinance"—something established by the Lord. Rightly observed, however, the Lord's Supper is worship on the highest level and has a very sacred meaning.

The Lord's Supper is a memorial of love. Jesus said "This do in remembrance of me" (1 Corinthians 11:24). He wanted it to remind Christians of his sacrifice for their sins. It is indeed a memorial of his self-giving on the cross. The supper declares the amazing love of Christ in giving his body and shedding his blood to reclaim men for God. Its observance, therefore, declares the grateful love of those who have been restored to God through his death. They keep this ordinance in joyful obedience to honor the Saviour.

The Lord's Supper is a symbol. It is really a dramatic sermon; it is truth in a picture. When Jesus said of the bread, "This is my body," he meant that it represented his body. Likewise he spoke of the cup: it represented his blood poured out for the forgiveness of sins.

The Lord's Supper is not spiritual magic. To eat and to drink at this service can never impart any divine favor to cover one's sins. Salvation is not provided by a ceremony but by Christ. A person does not receive salvation by obedience but by faith. According to the New Testament, "by grace are ye saved through faith" (Ephesians 2:8). Observing the supper can add nothing to the free gift of divine pardon.

The Lord's Supper is a declaration of faith. By observing it, "Ye do shew the Lord's death till he come" (1 Corinthians 11:26). Christians thus declare their faith in Christ, who sacrificed his own life for the sins of others. They testify to the reality of Christ's continuing presence and pardoning power. And they affirm their faith in the certainty of his coming again.

The sacred importance of the Lord's Supper, therefore, arises from its meaning and purpose. It is a symbol of holiest truth: first, that Christ gave his life to restore men to God; second, that this restoration comes through partaking of Christ and Christ alone. The observance of the Lord's Supper vividly recalls Jesus' suffering for sin. Its observance furnishes new insights into the glory of the cross and moves people to follow Christ in a way of self-denial, sacrifice, and fidelity.
